OTHER FOR JANUARY LAW

No Word from President or Any Intimation That He Will Take Action Toward Repeal.

CITY NOT TO BE "BONE DRY"

Hotels and Restaurants to Sell Beer and Light Wines, Even if the President Does Not Act.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—With only five days remaining before wartime prohibition is scheduled to become effective, and with Congress apparently determined not to repeal the act, there was no evidence at the White House today that the President would interfere and save the day for the "wets" for the period of six months that will elapse from July 1 until January, 1920, when constitutional prohibition becomes effective.

Despite intimations from some Democratic leaders that President Wilson would repeal the wartime Prohibition act by July 1 or indicate his intention to remove it very soon thereafter, and predictions that the President would act on June 25, the day passed without any word reaching the White House from the President relative to the prohibition question.

Secretary Baker, when asked to what strength the army would have to be reduced to bring it within the status of demobilization, said that was a question for the Attorney General to determine. Asked when the "emergency" during which it was legally permissible to continue the five-mile dry zones around military reservations would be regarded as having passed, he replied that this also was a matter of law to be determined by the Attorney General.

In the absence of any word as to the attitude of the President later than what he said on prohibition in his message to the special session of the Congress, leaders at the Capitol went ahead with and virtually completed plans for the enforcement of both wartime and constitutional prohibition. Drastic legislation for the strict enforcement of both measures is provided for in the Volstead bill, which was completed by the House Judiciary Committee today. After its completion, Representative Walsh of Massachusetts moved that the proposed legislation for the enforcement of wartime prohibition be separated from the proposed legislation for the enforcement of constitutional prohibition.

When the Judiciary Committee meets tomorrow morning a vote will be taken on the Walsh motion. There is every indication tonight that this motion will prevail. In that event two bills will be reported—one, a short measure, providing for the enforcement of wartime prohibition after July 1; the other, the longer and more comprehensive and drastic Volstead bill, providing for enforcement of constitutional prohibition after Jan. 1, 1920.

If, as now appears probable, the committees' decision will be to deal with the two kinds of prohibition separately, the House Committee will report the same short bill dealing with wartime prohibition that was reported to the House by the Judiciary Committee on Feb. 22 last.

Temporary Victory for Wets.

This bill merely provides for the enforcement of wartime prohibition by making it a crime to manufacture or sell intoxicating liquors and giving the courts power to enforce this by appropriate injunction. Unless the decision of the Judiciary Committee tomorrow is against separating wartime from constitutional prohibition, all references to wartime prohibition will be stricken from the Volstead bill, and it will be reported as an out-and-out enforcement bill for constitutional prohibition alone. If the decision is in favor of dividing the two propositions, the drastic provisions of the Volstead bill as it stands will not be applicable to wartime prohibition, although the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor during the period that wartime prohibition remains in effect would be punishable as a crime.

The more conservative members of the House Committee won a temporary victory over the more radical "drys" during consideration of the Volstead bill when they carried an amendment offered by Representative Steele of Pennsylvania, intended to allow each State to regulate the manufacture, sale, and distribution within the commonwealth of intoxicating liquors. This, in effect, would have left the whole liquor problem

PRODUCE STRIKE REACHES CRISIS

Fruit and Vegetable Shortage Is Felt, as No Fresh Consignments Are Received.

With no sign of a settlement in sight, despite the presence of Joseph B. Buchanan, United States Commissioner of Conciliation, who came from Washington to supplement the efforts of the committee of the State Mediation and Arbitration Board, the strike of the teamsters, chauffeurs, and porters employed by fruit and vegetable merchants, which began Monday morning, has reached an acute stage.

The produce merchants, who were closed yesterday for the first time in the history of the city, save on Sundays and holidays, decided at a meeting at the Boosters' Club in the afternoon to reopen at 6 o'clock this morning and to remain open every day from that hour to 5 o'clock in the afternoon. A committee which visited Police Headquarters received a promise of ample police protection. Word from Jersey City last night was that the Pennsylvania Railroad, under the protection of the Jersey City police, would make an effort at 5:30 o'clock this morning to get the congested shipments in that place to the Pennsylvania Ferry.

The produce men do not conceal that their effort to move the fruit and vegetables which are ruining at the railroad and steamship terminals and in their stores may lead to trouble.

Neil Strome of Walden, N. Y., of the New York Federation of Agriculture, a member of the committee that called on the police for protection, said at the Continental Hotel last night that if the police cannot handle the situation the National Government will be called upon. If all other appeals fail, he said, "there are 5,000 farmers with shotguns who will come here and see that their produce is moved." He said that the farmers will bear the brunt of the loss resulting from the strike.

Unions Threaten Trouble.

Officials of Local No. 202, International Brotherhood of Teamsters, 205 Chambers Street, declined to consider arbitration of their differences, if by arbitration was meant any concessions on their part. Following word to this effect, the commission merchants decided on opening up their places. Late in the afternoon officials of the union announced their willingness to accept the proposal of the employers as it applies to the striking porters, leaving open for individual contracts the demands of teamsters and chauffeurs. This offer is to be placed before the commission men early today by Joseph B. Popp, Secretary of the union.

The union officials say the Market Truck Owners' Association stands in the way of a settlement and that the commission men are willing to meet their demands. It was reported that the truck owners expected to operate their own trucks today. Union officials said such a move would result in serious trouble.

While many of the hotels and retail markets reported a rapidly-growing shortage of fruits and vegetables because of inability to get deliveries, L. J. Lippman, Chairman of the dealers' committee, said there is enough foodstuffs to supply the city's needs for several days if it is moved promptly. Shipments to the city have been diverted to other points, and it would be a day or so after the strike is settled before normal conditions could be restored. Mr. Strome said the farmers are forced to let their stuff rot in the fields, as they cannot arrange for other markets on such short notice.

There were virtually no receipts yesterday of fruits and vegetables. Eight hundred barrels of potatoes arrived over the Old Dominion Line. Almost no tomatoes, cucumbers, watermelons, asparagus, string beans, strawberries, peas, and carrots arrived, and no onions, peaches, or cantaloupes were received.

COMMITTEE PUTS OFF VOTE ON FALL MOVE FOR PEACE

COVENANT AGAIN ASSAILED

TREATY 'GUARANTEE OF WAR'

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Although a majority of the Foreign Relations Committee appears to favor the Fall resolution to declare a state of peace in advance of consideration of the treaty with Germany, so that economic intercourse may immediately be resumed with Germany and Austria-Hungary, the committee today voted to put off action upon it until next Monday. It was thought better to defer making a favorable report on the resolution to the Senate until after Germany had signed the treaty so as not to give Germany any excuse for refusing to sign in the hope that in any event peace was about to be re-established with the United States.

Senator Lodge, Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, argued that Germany might attempt to seize upon Senate action declaring a state of peace to exist as an advantage in pressing further demands upon the Peace Conference. With the United States out of the conflict, he said, the conference might be put to some embarrassment in dealing with a somewhat awkward situation.

It was by a vote of 11 to 4 that the committee agreed to postpone immediate action on the Fall measure. The vote came upon a motion of Senator Swanson, Democrat, of Virginia. It was supported by every one of the nine Republican members. Senator Hitchcock, ranking Democratic member of the committee, also voted for it.

The vote of the committee in no sense, it was stated by Republican members afterward, reflected the sentiment of the majority members toward the resolution. Senator Lodge expects the measure to be reported favorably when the committee meets Monday. In that event it will be pushed to consideration at the earliest opportunity. Owing to the pressure of appropriation legislation, however, it is expected that Senator Fall will not be able to call it up before the end of next week.

Sharp Disapproval.

During committee consideration of the resolution Administration Senators expressed sharp disapproval of any action by the Senate toward declaring a status of peace to exist in advance of consideration of the Peace Treaty. Senators Hitchcock, Pomerene, and other Democratic members argued that the method of establishing peace is clearly defined in the Constitution. The Senate, they pointed out, through its ratification of a treaty of peace, actually establishes the status of peace, while the President completes the process through proclamation.

In no other way, the Democratic Senators insisted, can peace be declared between Germany and the United States. They characterized the Fall resolution as tending to upset the legal method which Congress has always pursued. They argued that there is no occasion to rush any such measure to establish peace. The Peace Treaty, they said, will undoubtedly be before the Senate within ten days.

If the Senate so desires, it can ratify the Peace Treaty within a week's time, the Democrats argued. The hint was thrown out that the opponents of the League of Nations advocated the Fall resolution so that they would have ample time to fight the League covenant and, at the same time, shield themselves from any charge that they were delaying the final consummation of peace.

The Republican members of the committee argued that the Fall resolution was directed simply to an effort to establish peace at once, so that the United States could resume trade relations with the Central Powers, while time would be afforded the Senate to calmly consider the treaty, along with the League covenant.

Bitter Fight Expected.

That the fight over the Fall resolution will be bitter was indicated from the attitude of the Administration Democrats. After the committee had ad-

French Deputies Would Destroy German National Monument

PARIS, June 25.—Deputy Ferroux, of the Federated Republican groups in the Chamber of Deputies, and several of his colleagues introduced a resolution in the Chamber today calling for the destruction of the German National monument on the Niederwald so as to punish German pride and to answer the destruction of the fleet at Scapa Flow and the burning of the French battle flags of 1870. The Deputy requested an immediate discussion.

The German national monument on the Niederwald is opposite Bingen on the Rhine in the French area of occupation. It was erected to commemorate the founding of the German Empire in 1870-71. The monument is on a hill 740 feet above the Rhine, the base is 78 feet high, and a large figure of Germania rises to a height of 38 feet more. It is embellished with allegorical figures and portraits.

The cost of the monument was said to have been about $265,000.

PORTERS WERE AGAINST HIM

British Sportsman's Protest Over Display of Irish Emblem Opens Hostilities.

When Sir Charles Carrick Allom, the English sportsman and airplane manufacturer, went into the St. Regis Hotel at Fifth Avenue and Fifty-fifth Street for luncheon yesterday, he was asked by two girls in the lobby if he wished to subscribe to the Irish "Victory Fund," now being collected in this country for the benefit of the Sinn Fein movement in Ireland. The girls were standing at a table near the door of the main dining room, and the American flag and the emblem adopted by the Sinn Fein movement were displayed by them.

Several different versions of the conversation that followed were given last night by persons who had taken part in it, but all agreed upon several of the main questions said to have been asked the girls by Sir Charles. After the conversation with the girls upon the aims of the movement, Sir Charles called for E. M. Haan, the manager, and protested against the display of the emblem in the hotel. All those who took part in the discussion, and those who heard it, admitted that it was animated, but the reports of the conclusion of the argument differ widely.

Mr. Haan and his brother, Joseph Haan, said that Sir Charles was ejected through the main door into Fifty-fifth Street by attendants who admit Irish parentage. Sir Charles says he left the hotel voluntarily after an animated discussion with the managers and some of the attendants who were not in sympathy with his views.

Sir Charles said last night that he had lived in the hotel for several months when here on his last visit, and that he had left there after he had gained the impression that some person not in sympathy with the aims of the Allies was tampering with mail sent to him in reference to contracts with the British Government for airplanes and explosives. The managers denied last night that Sir Charles ever had complained to them, while he was living there, that any of his letters had been opened, and they said that he had been there for luncheon and dinner frequently since he ceased living there.

When it was brought to Sir Charles's attention that the management of the St. Regis emphatically denied that he had complained that his mail had been tampered with, he declared that he had spoken of the matter both to the management and Mr. Haan when it happended in 1914. He added:

"I never, however, for one moment suggested, nor do I now suggest, that Mr. Haan had anything to do with this interference with my correspondence, but it left a distinctly unpleasant feeling between us when I left the hotel on account of it."

According to all versions of the story, Sir Charles asked the two girls if they believed in the "Irish rebellion." The girls replied that they believed in the Irish "republic." Sir Charles told the girls that he believed that their time could be put to better use if they refrained from assisting a cause that was inimical to the aims of the Allies. The girls were Sheila O'Reilley and Mabel Clayton, both 16 years old and both living at 777 East 179th Street.

Sir Charles Makes a Protest.

After this conversation with the girls had ended Sir Charles protested to Joseph Haan against the display of the Sinn Fein emblem in the hotel. R. M. Haan joined the discussion with some of the assistant managers, including

MORE DELAY IN SIGNING

GERMANS FACE BIG STRIKE

BERLIN, June 25, (Associated Press.) Hermann Müller, the new Foreign Minister, the Tageblatt says, has declined to go to Versailles to sign the Peace Treaty.

The streets of Berlin were scenes of rioting and plundering last night and this morning. Incited by speeches from agitators in Alexanderplatz, mobs attacked and robbed pedestrians and maltreated isolated soldiers.

Troops sent to Alexanderplatz were fired upon by crowds in the streets and from the roofs of buildings. They finally succeeded in clearing the streets.

Elsewhere in the city bands of marauders robbed shops and attacked citizens, rifling their pockets. The neighborhood of the Stettin Railroad Station, the Hochstrasse and the Badstrasse was notably disorderly.

Street cars were held up while rioters searched the passengers' pockets and stole women's rings. Here, also, soldiers were beaten and shots were fired at them from roofs and windows, and the soldiers returned the fire.

After daylight this morning the city was quieter, but at noon the police appealed for troops, as the crowds were gathering once more. Four thousand workers in the shops of the Gruenewald Railroad had struck. Troops have occupied the Goerlitz and Stettin Stations, which are still being used by the public.

Germany is faced with a nation-wide railroad strike for higher wages. At the Gorlitz Station, in Berlin, service has been stopped in both directions. The Breslau service has been badly interrupted.

The Government is negotiating in an endeavor to halt the strikes, which are largely the outcome of communist propaganda.

Dispatches to the Berlin papers from their correspondents at Weimar say that feeling among German military leaders is still running high, notwithstanding the fact that they are admonishing the troops to continue in the service.

Luettwitz Renews Protest.

Major Gen. Baron von Lüttwitz in a special call, reiterates his opposition to the peace terms, while Major von Glisa, Herr Noske's Adjutant, has announced that Prussian War Minister Reinhart "will endeavor to defend the menaced honor of the army and its leaders by the adoption of special measures." He will confer with Herr Noske today.

Major von Glisa denied the report that army officers had been resigning as a protest against the acceptance of the peace terms. Nevertheless, it is said, the regular army officers will oppose vigorously the surrender of their former leaders. The situation created by their attitude has become acute already and those in touch with the situation fear that it may result in serious complications both for the Cabinet and for the nation.

Correspondents at Weimar are unanimous in the belief that the prestige of Mathias Erzberger has been damaged because of his mysterious, but emphatic, assurances that the Entente would be willing to yield on the honor issue, which failed to materialize. Herr Erzberger's position is a subject of much speculation, and it is believed that as soon as the peace crisis is passed he faces a rather trying period.

French Flags Taken by Subterfuge.

Copyright, 1919, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

BERLIN, June 23, (via Paris.)—The burning of the French flags held as trophies since 1870 was the result of a careful scheme matured last week. It was not, as was supposed somewhat generally, inspired by the sinking of German war vessels by their own crews and the cry of the militarists for "another stroke." The act was openly executed under the noses of the Noske guards and almost within the shadow of the imperial palaces.

Two hours later organized bands of plunderers began systematically looting food and clothing stores in northern Berlin. The civil police asked military aid and troops armed with rifles, revolvers, machine guns, and armored cars gave the streets of that quarter once more the appearance of revolutionary days. Ebert Urges Germans to Carry Out the Treaty; Pledges Faith to Regions Marked for Separation

LONDON, June 25.—President Ebert, Premier Bauer, and all the Ministers, have issued a proclamation to the German people, according to a wireless message from Berlin, announcing the conclusion of peace and urging as the first pressing need the bending of all efforts to its fulfillment.

"As far as it is possible to carry it out," says the proclamation, "the treaty must be carried out."

It declares faithful loyalty to those threatened with separation from the empire and promises to intercede in their behalf, "as we would intercede for ourselves."

It concludes by exhorting the people to realize the need of work and faithfulness to duty for the redemption of the country.

EXPECT KAISER TO ESCAPE TRIAL

TALK OF A SUICIDE CLUB

Said to be Composed of U-Boat Commanders Booked for Punishment by Allies.

COBLENZ, June 24.—Up and down the Rhineland goes the word that William Hohenzollern, ex-Emperor of Germany, will never be brought to trial as provided in the terms of the Peace Treaty, which the conquered nation, through its Weimar Assembly, has now voted to sign. The ex-Kaiser has many friends along this noble stream.

A center of conservatism, this New England of Germany has hoped against hope that some turn of affairs would bring Wilhelm back to the throne. He is respected and venerated here.

The newspapers today tell of the bitter fight the Centrists and Democrats made to the last to have stricken from the treaty the provision that the ex-Kaiser should be tried. And they failed. But those who think much of the ex-Emperor are saying that he will never face a court of nations to answer "for a supreme offense against international morality and sanctity of treaties."

There has been loud acclaim for the German sailors who died in sinking their ships in Scapa Flow to cheat the war's victors. They are hailed as "real Germans, men of honor."

Friends of the ex-Kaiser are not saying that he will commit suicide rather than face judgment, but one reads in their declaration, pompous and verbose, that this idea of the maintenance of Wilhelm's honor hinges on that eventuality. Whether or not the man whose honor was such that he ran away rather than face the nation's crisis is such as to give him nerve to solve the nasty problem by removing himself does not appear to enter into their speculations. They are simply sure the ex-Kaiser will never come to trial.

In this connection there is another interesting story going the rounds of the Rhineland beer gardens, where chagrined Germans are rejoicing over the burning of the French flags in Berlin yesterday and praying again for "Der Tag" when they will clean up France. This story is to the effect that those submarine commanders who are on England's blacklist for crimes against humanity committed in the von Tirpitz "spurlos versenkt" sea warfare, and whom the Allies propose to try, have formed a suicide club. It is said this club has held seventy meetings. The main idea is that its members will defeat justice by killing themselves if justice gets too close to their trail.

SHOCK AT AMERONGEN OVER WEIMAR YIELDING

AMERONGEN, June 24, (Associated Press.)—News of Germany's decision to accept the peace terms, including the clause providing for the delivery of the former Emperor to the Allies, reached the castle here late yesterday evening.

Exactly how the former Emperor was affected by the tidings cannot be ascertained, but the attitude of members of his party gives rise to the belief that the news was a considerable shock.

When The Associated Press correspondent talked with attendants they said that the news was already known at the castle. They made the most scathing criticisms of the German National Assembly for its action.

Evidently they had held to the hope that some way would be found for the former Emperor to return to Germany. Now, however, it is apparently realized that he is exiled forever.

The former monarch resumed his customary log-sawing at the usual hour.

ASK REPARATION FOR FLEET SUNK

PROTEST ANOTHER ACTION

PARIS, June 25.—The Council of Three decided this afternoon, according to the Havas News Agency, to send two notes to the President of the German Peace Delegation at Versailles, one regarding the actions of the Germans in Poland, in connection with a significant telegram intercepted by the Poles, and the other relative to the sinking of the German fleet in the Scapa Flow.

The Allies announce that they will demand reparation for the sinking of the fleet.

The council, according to the Paris office of Reuter's, Ltd., had before it and examined fully the facts relative to what took place with regard to the ships at the time the armistice was signed.

The following statement, the news agency says, may be regarded as an official explanation:

"At the time of the signing of the armistice the British Admiralty and the British Government strongly urged that the German ships should be surrendered. The French military authorities, however, put forward the view that for the purpose of the armistice the surrender of the German ships was not absolutely essential. They were most anxious that the armistice should be concluded, having regard for the very serious loss of life daily on the western front. Insistence upon surrender of the fleet, they felt, might delay the signing, for which, despite rumors to the contrary, Marshal Foch was as desirous as any one.

"The French, therefore, suggested that the German ships be interned in neutral ports, a course which they believed would not be regarded by the enemy in the same way as would the surrender of the ships. This view was supported by Admiral Benson, (American naval representative in Paris.)

"Ultimately a compromise was reached providing for the internment of the ships in a British port."

Authorized denial was made in a high American source today that there was any truth in an intimation made in the British House of Commons yesterday by Horatio Bottomley, Independent Member from South Hackney and editor of John Bull, respecting the disposition of the German war fleet. Mr. Bottomley's intimation was that President Wilson had overruled the plea of Premier Lloyd George that the German ships be surrendered, instead of interned.

THURSO, Scotland, June 25.—It was owing to the gallantry of a young midshipman on one of the British patrol-ships that four of the German destroyers were saved from sinking at Scapa Flow. The midshipman, who is unnamed, armed himself with a rifle and, boarding a destroyer, compelled the German crew to close the seacocks and thus kept the vessel afloat until she could be beached.

Following this success, it is said, he did the same with the other three vessels.

LONDON, June 25.—Speaking in the House of Commons today on the subject of reparation for the sinking of the German warships, Walter Hume Long, First Lord of the Admiralty, said the allied representatives in Paris had this under consideration. The statement that the crews were changed periodically was not correct, he declared, but invalids were exchanged. The total guard and maintenance party had been reduced from 4,700 to about 1,500.

Mr. Long explained that it was impossible for the Admiralty to take precautions to prevent the sinking, because the ships were interned, not surrendered. Therefore, the Admiralty had no power to place guards on them.

The First Lord denied that the Admiralty had recommended internment, emphasizing the point that the decision of the allied heads for internment controlled the situation and made prevention of the scuttling utterly impossible.

COUNCIL WAITING ON BERLIN

German Delay in Selecting Delegates Perplexes Leaders.

CEREMONY IS DELAYED

1,000 TO SEE THE EVENT

Three Hundred Newspapermen to be There—Wilson Dinner to Delegates Today.

PARIS, June 25, (Associated Press.)—Advices from Germany to the Council of Five are to the effect that the German Government was occupied today in selecting new delegates for Versailles.

Up to a late hour, however, no official word had been received here regarding Germany's plans with regard to the formal signing of the Peace Treaty, and the Peace Conference leaders were undisguisedly perplexed over the situation.

It was conceded to be impossible that the ceremony of signing could take place before Saturday. Unofficial reports were that it would probably be delayed until Monday.

Paul Dutasta, the General Secretary of the Peace Conference, went to Versailles this afternoon under the instructions of the Council to see if Haniel von Haimhausen, representing the Germans there, had any information of his Government's intentions. The German representative said, however, that he had received no news except the fact that the members of the Government left Weimar for Berlin last night.

Hint of a New Ultimatum.

If the heads of the allied powers in Paris do not hear from Weimar very soon regarding the German delegation for the signing of the Peace Treaty an ultimatum will be sent to the German Government, according to the Paris office of Reuter's, Limited. The ultimatum will demand the appointment of plenipotentiaries within a certain number of hours.

It was announced today that President Poincaré's official dinner to the peace plenipotentiaries would take place on Thursday evening. It was originally planned to hold the dinner on the evening of the signing of the treaty, but the uncertainty as to the date for the ceremony has caused Thursday to be named definitely for the dinner, irrespective of the time of the event at Versailles.

Veterans of 1870 to See Signing.

Notable among the persons who will attend the ceremony of the signing of the treaty will be five Senators who participated in the campaign of 1870. Premier Clemenceau announced in the Senate today that these men would be honored with places in the Hall of Mirrors in the palace at Versailles.

Marshal Pétain, accompanied by six French Generals, Mrs. Wilson, her secretary, and Miss Margaret Wilson will be among the 1,000 persons, including delegates and secretaries, who will be present when the Germans attach their signatures to the treaty. Three hundred newspaper men from all the interested nations, a few neutral newspaper correspondents, and about 300 guests apportioned among the signatory nations will have places in the hall.

Seven regiments of cavalry and four regiments of infantry will guard the palace grounds during the ceremony. Within the marble court through which all the witnesses except the Germans will pass will be stationed a company of drummers and buglers. No other musicians will participate. The soldiers within the palace will all be members of the Republican Guard, wearing silver helmets, red coats, and white breeches.

The Germans will be admitted at a side entrance from the park after the other delegations are seated about the horseshoe table within which will be the signing table where the treaty will lie.

Sixty Americans to See Signing.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 25.—No definite information has been received as to the time of the arrival of the new German peace plenipotentiaries. In a statement given yesterday to the Council of the great powers by Haniel von Haimhausen, Acting Chairman of the German delegation at Versailles, the latter said that he had been informed that the plenipotentiaries probably would reach Versailles Thursday night or Friday morning. It now appears that this information was indefinite, and uncertainty exists as to whether the delegation has even left Weimar.

In the hope of expediting the movements of the enemy envoys the Council has asked the German representative to ascertain the names of the members of the delegation.

It was reported today that the Council had delivered an ultimatum fixing the date when the Germans must sign the treaty, but this is untrue. It is believed that the inquiry mentioned will be a sufficient hint to the German Government to have the plenipotentiaries start immediately for Versailles if they have not already done so.

Until it is known positively when the Germans will arrive the council will not fix the time for the ceremony of signing. Tentatively Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock has been set. Sixty spectators' seats for the ceremony in the Hall of Mirrors have been placed at the disposition of American plenipotentiaries.

Yesterday, when the members of the Council were inspecting the arrangements at Versailles, M. Clemenceau asked if ladies were to be present. "I want my ladies present," said Mr. Wilson, and it was decided then that women should be admitted as spectators—each delegation distributing its seat tickets as it saw fit.

The President's particular guests, it is supposed, will be Mrs. Wilson, Miss Margaret Wilson, Miss Edith Benham, Mrs. Wilson's secretary, and Admiral Grayson, the President's physician.

June 24.—When Wilson, Clemenceau, Balfour, Sonnino, and Makino made a pilgrimage to Versailles this afternoon to look over the Hall of Mirrors and supervise the final arrangements for the signing of the Peace Treaty they were evidently full of that enthusiasm which has been apparent everywhere in Paris since the notification was received yesterday that the German Government had agreed to accept the peace conditions without reservations. While they were in the Hall of Mirrors they cracked jokes and beamed at one another. It was obvious that any irritation that had prevailed during the trying period of the interallied exchanges had passed away, and a most cordial friendship seemed to exist between the members of the party.

For instance, when the suggestion was made that M. Clemenceau, as President of the Peace Conference, should sign the treaty first, the old Tiger of France would have none of it.

"No, you must sign first, Mr. President," he said turning to Mr. Wilson, and it was so agreed by the others present.

The party had a discussion as to how long the ceremony of signing would last. Some quick calculations indicated that attaching seals to the signature copy of the treaty would lengthen the time considerably, and that the whole ceremony could not be concluded in less than five hours. Some concern was shown over this, but Baron Sonnino solved the problem. He suggested that the seals be attached before the ceremony began, leaving as the final act merely the signing of his name by each plenipotentiary.

The matter of using seals was discussed among the chief representatives of the five great powers and the decision was reached that each plenipotentiary might use his private seal. Mr. Balfour remarked that he had never used a seal and was at a loss to know what to do. "But probably several of them will be found at home," he said, and added that he would telegraph to London to see if one used in his family could be obtained and rushed to Paris before Friday.

Mr. Clemenceau had his joke (one of many) while he and the others were in the Hall of Mirrors. The matter of having the final ceremony occur at 11 o'clock Friday morning was suggested. Mr. Clemenceau objected. The ceremony, if begun then, he said, would run over into the French déjeuner period, and that would never do. Déjeuner is a ceremonial function in France, and what the Tiger said may have been as much of a joke as his manner indicated.

There will be only one signature copy of the treaty. This will be preserved in the archives of the French Government. Each allied peace commission and German delegation will receive an authenticated printed copy, and President Wilson will carry his to Washington to be transmitted to the Senate for ratification.

The treaty will not be signed at the table on which the German and French signed that agreement that ended the France-Prussian war. In the great chamber where the peace of 1919 will be made a handsome leather-covered table has been provided for this week's historic ceremony.

Elaborate preparations have been made by the French Government to make the final act of the war an impressive function. Seventeen thousand French troops, comprising eleven regiments, five of which will be cavalry, have been ordered to assemble near the Palace on the day of the signature. It is also contemplated that all the plenipotentiaries shall return to Paris in procession instead of each group or individual group returning separately, as on the occasion of handing the peace terms to Germans at Versailles and to the Austrians at St. Germain.

BIG FIVE DISCUSS GALICIA.

PARIS, June 25.—The Chinese delegation is still in doubt as to whether it can sign the Peace Treaty. The delegates are determined not to sign without a reservation, making a protest in reference to Shantung, but they want the approval of all the great powers except Japan in making such a reservation.

Such approval is not yet assured. The Americans not only approve such a reservation, but also are urging the Chinese to sign in that way. England does not object, but France protests against any reservation whatever on the part of any signatory power.

Cardinal Also Directs Prayers for Peace Till Treaties Are Signed.

PARIS, June 25.—Cardinal Amette, Archbishop of Paris, today ordered a Te Deum to be sung on Friday in the Church of the Sacred Heart at Montmartre, and on Sunday in all churches of the diocese. The order adds:

Let prayers for peace be continued until the treaties are concluded with the powers with which France was at war.

FRENCH FOSTERING RHINELAND SPIRIT

TEACH SELF-GOVERNMENT

By WALTER DURANTY.

PARIS, June 24, (by courier from Mainz, June 22.)—French troops, from high officers to privates, find it hard to conceal their disappointment at the fading of prospects of invading Germany. If some of the Socialist Deputies who made a great outcry recently over the alleged unwillingness of the French forces to resume the campaign could spend a few days here they would be speedily and startlingly corrected.

True, occupation forces consist almost entirely of young troops whose turn for demobilization is still distant and Colonials with a long term of service before them; but their eagerness to advance is so undisguised as to be really striking. To their superior officers a forward movement would be chiefly welcome as giving France a better opportunity to free the Rhineland from Prussian influence, which they assert still overhangs all classes of the population and prevents anything like a genuine spirit of self-determination. It is an article of faith with all Frenchmen, both soldiers and civilians, with whom I have talked here that the Rhineland really desires great measures of autonomy, though not complete severance from the German Confederation.

A French professor at Bonn, who since the armistice has resumed the post he held for a long period before the war, declared recently that the great majority of his colleagues and most other people with whom he came in contact were in favor of the establishment of a sort of buffer State, perhaps benefiting by special tariff concessions from France—a factor of no small importance to an industrial community—and at the same time absolved from the obligation of German military service, which would satisfy the desire of the French for their own protection by creating a neutral zone between France and Germany.

Whether these are the true sentiments of the Rhine population or not, one cannot fail to be struck by the absence of all friction—indeed, one might almost go further and say by the friendly spirit—which prevails between the French soldiers and the inhabitants of Mainz. I watched last night a torchlight "retraite," or rally march, of Colonial infantry with a band through the streets. The khaki-clad soldiers with their smoking torches were followed by a big crowd laughing and cheering, and even singing in time to the music, with no less enthusiasm than one would see in the streets of Paris.

"It's a pity you weren't here last Saturday," said a French officer in the hotel doorway beside me. "It was much finer then, as the torches were borne by Spahis on horseback in their flowing burnouses. But now they are up in position at the outposts."

"Oh, yes," a big, scar-faced German put in, "with the Spahis it was more picturesque, but this is gay, even so; and watch how well they march to the music!"

Perhaps the speech was consummate hypocrisy, but the tone was simple and sincere. The man's whole attitude was of one making casual comment on an occurrence which aroused no feeling of humiliation or animosity.

Mangin's Work of Conciliation.

"It is not fully realized to what an extent the Rhinelanders have been a subject population. Until our arrival they were as much under Prussian domination as Alsace-Lorraine or German Poland. That fact is the key to the whole Rhineland situation," said General Mangin, who received me this morning at his residence in the grand ducal palace overlooking the Rhine.

This was in sharp contrast with the last occasion I met him at his headquarters on the edge of the forest of Villers-Cotterets, just after the beginning of his victorious counter offensive eleven months ago. Then the windows echoed to the roar of heavy artillery; today nothing breaks the silence save the peaceful chime of bells and the occasional gong of a street car crossing the bridge toward Wiesbaden. Then it was Mangin the soldier; today it is the successor of the Roman pro-consuls who knew so well how to complete as Governors the work they had begun as military commanders.

"You would hardly believe," the General continued, "how utterly the iron of Prussian rule had entered into the souls of these people. Why, at first they simply hadn't an opinion of their own. When we asked them for suggestions they would reply: 'If so-and-so would be agreeable to you we propose that; or, if you prefer such-and-such, then that is our view also.' Our aim from the beginning has been to foster their understanding that we wish them to speak for themselves and to create a spirit of free self-direction and self-administration.

"To that end I have formed German committees dealing with various subjects such as health, schools, labor, food, and so on, with whom my officers consult and whose advice they take. At first they were very diffident, but confidence has grown steadily as they saw we really wanted their opinion and acted upon it. So that their work is very valuable and an asset to the French administration.

"Similarly in commercial matters: We have founded French official departments to handle all branches of business and codify all information that may be of service either to French or local traders. Parallel to these bodies there are local German organizations, and the mutual interworking of the two groups ought to be an important factor in future commercial reconstruction."

It is perhaps in this latter respect that the greatest interest of General Mangin's work lies. With unusual far-sightedness he saw at the outset that a close commercial understanding would be the most powerful bond between France and the Rhineland and the surest means of counteracting the supine dependence on Prussia which had hitherto overhung the whole region. Like the majority of clear-sighted Frenchmen, Mangin realizes that a peaceful and virtually independent Rhineland is the surest barrier against future Prussian aggression. He does not aim at annexation, for he knows that these people are Germans. But he does believe that there exists a genuine desire for a considerable degree of autonomy, and, like the practical man that he is, has set himself to bring it out and to foster the spirit of independence of which it is to be built.

In the truest sense of the word he is educating the Rhine people toward self-government and teaching them to think, decide, and act for themselves.

DEFER REFORM BILL FOR NITTI CABINET

ROME, June 24.—The formation of the Nitti Cabinet has been a touch and go affair, many in political circles venturing so far as to predict that the Premier would not succeed in completing the Ministry.

The press favorable to Sonnino, as well as the newspapers opposing Giolitto, but even more the Nationalists headed by d'Annunzio have been carrying on a ferocious anti-Nitti campaign, trying to excite popular feeling against the new Premier.

This section of the press has revived the story of the incident when Bissolati, leader of the pre-war Socialists, resigned from the Orlando Cabinet owing to the divergence of views upon the claims of Italy at the Peace Conference, he being of the opinion that the Italian delegation should make concessions on the Adriatic question. Nitti, it is declared, concurred with Bissolati's attitude, and in fact, shortly afterward submitted his resignation also.

One point scored in Nitti's favor is his decision to remain here instead of going to Paris as a peace delegate. That arrangement was one of the weak points of the Orlando Cabinet, as during the absence of the Premier and Minister of Foreign Affairs the country's internal affairs, it is held, failed to receive proper attention.

COPENHAGEN, June 24.—When the news came from Weimar last night announcing Germany's acceptance of the peace terms without conditions many foreign men-of-war in the harbor here started a long concert with steam whistles and sirens, and flags went to the top.

Thousands gathered on shore; later a body of freign seamen carrying allied flags marched through the city and were enthusiastically received by the populace everywhere. The allied national anthems were heard on the streets and in cafés and public gardens.

The Soldiers' Monument was covered with flowers by French sailors. All night Copenhagen celebrated the event.

That the destruction of the trophies of the Franco-Prussian War, which the peace terms say particularly "must be returned to the French," was not the result of wild resentment was disclosed by employes of the Army and Navy Museum, from which they were taken. Last Saturday a man who said he was an officer asked if he could bring his men to see the flags before they were surrendered. He was told that he could do so if the Director of the museum approved.

Yesterday morning a Lieutenant, who said his name was Simon, appeared at the back door of the museum, accompanied by ten enlisted men, who had removed all the distinctive marks on their uniforms. The Lieutenant asked to see the trophies, saying he had the permission of the museum Director, J. M. Bunder, who later admitted that he had consented over the telephone to let two officers view the flags.

The museum employes said they were not suspicious until suddenly, by a prearranged plan, each man had seized a flag and pulled a bottle from his pocket. At that point they said that whoever resisted would be killed. The bottles contained gasoline and kerosene.

When the flags were drenched the soldiers bore them out through the central hall, where they were joined by twenty civilians. Then they went to Unter den Linden, where they were joined by a crowd, and the burning took place.

CLEMENCEAU FAVORS AN EARLY ELECTION

GERMAN DANGER REMAINS

He Refers to the State of Mind Shown When Foe Agreed to Sign.

PARIS, June 25.—Premier Clemenceau appeared in the lobby of the Chamber of Deputies yesterday, and members pressed the question as to the Government's intentions regarding the elections and the demobilization of the army. The Premier said that the elections would be held at the earliest possible date, possibly late in September or early in October. He said that the Government's principal concern at present was demobilization.

"Although it is desired that demobilization may be as complete and rapid as possible, the Government is obliged to take into account the circumstances at present and the state of mind of the Germans," he said. "To understand the spirit in which Germany is about to sign the treaty, it is only necessary to consider the scuttling of the German fleet in Scapa Flow and the more recent destruction of German ships at Kiel.

"Consequently, precautions are necessary, and an army of a certain importance must be kept to enforce, if necessary, strict observance of the conditions of the treaty by the Germans, particularly the one regarding the evacuation of Poland, with which the Germans seem reluctant to comply. Besides, peace with Bulgaria and Turkey will not be concluded for several months."

As the elections cannot be held without receiving the votes of soldiers, the Premier is considering a plan that will enable them to vote by mail or will permit special leaves to be granted to the men.

M. Clemenceau's statement is interpreted by a number of newspapers as meaning that the Premier will not retire soon, as had been reported.

Several newspapers give currency to rumors of a coming shake-up in the Cabinet and of specialists in social and economic questions being brought in. The Echo de Paris says that if changes are made in the Cabinet they will not occur before the ratification of the peace treaty by Parliament.

It is declared that as soon as the peace treaty is signed the Government will bring before Parliament a general amnesty bill.

It is reported in some quarters that demobilization will be carried out with all possible speed and that the classes of 1907, 1908, and 1909 will be mustered out the day after the treaty is signed.

FIRE ON HAMBURG MOBS.

Riots Over Alleged Preserving of Dogs and Cats for Food.

COPENHAGEN, June 25. — Serious rioting took place in Hamburg on Monday and Tuesday, when mobs attacked food preserving factories, it being alleged that the bodies of dogs and cats had been found in them.

The managers were dragged to the streets and roughly handled. The War Provision Department was also attacked and its office was wrecked.

The mob tried to disarm troops marching through the streets and the latter opened fire, a number of persons being killed and wounded.

ACCUSE AMERICAN OFFICER OF MURDER

COBLENZ, June 24, (Associated Press.)—Lieutenant John Beggs, 23d Infantry, of Kansas City, Mo., is under arrest facing a charge of murder in connection with a shooting affair at Seeburg, a village in the neutral zone opposite the American area of occupation. The German authorities assert that two civilians, a man and a woman, were killed.

The shooting occurred Saturday night. Officers who investigated the case said that Lieutenant Beggs contends that another American was responsible for the shooting. It developed that a number of Americans had trouble with German civilians in a café at Seeburg. When Beggs was arrested near Coblenz he had in his pocket orders to sail for home, and should have started Sunday.

The German Government has been notified of the charge filed against the Lieutenant by the army authorities. Beggs will be tried before a general court-martial.

ULTIMATUM TO HUNGARY.

Allies Give Her Until Saturday to Quit Czechoslovak Territory.

COPENHAVEN, June 25.—The allied commanders have given the Hungarians until the evening of June 28 to evacuate the part of Czechoslovakia they invaded, according to a Budapest dispatch today. Full compensation for the damage done by the Hungarian troops is demanded. When the evacuation is completed the Allies, it is stated, will request the Rumanians to evacuate Hungarian territory.

The Hungarians, the message adds, have expressed a willingness to comply with these conditions.

PARIS, June 25.—The Hungarian Communist Congress has ordered the general mobilization of all workmen, says a dispatch from Budapest.

The military situation is said to be unfavorable to Hungary and, in addition, the morale of the troops is bad.

ALFONSO HAILS PEACE.

MADRID, June 24.—"It was with ineffable joy that I received and you received, the news of the certain advent of peace," said King Alfonso in his speech from the throne at the reopening of the Cortes today. The ceremony took place in the Senate House adjoining the Palace, instead of the Chamber of Deputies, in order to spare the Queen fatigue. She is slightly indisposed because of the very hot weather.

The King began his address by affirming the unalterable concord between Spain and the Vatican and added:

"Spain's friendship for all nations is unchanged, except for the fact that the Minister at Petrograd was withdrawn in consequence of events there."

After stating that Spain had recognized the independence of Poland, Czechoslovakia, and Finland, the King said that Spain had manifested her adhesion in principle to the League of Nations and had "the honor to be included in the provisory Executive Committee of that organization."

He closed by announcing that various bills looking to national development, popular education, housing, and other matters of social welfare would be introduced before the Cortes by the Government.

COPENHAGEN, June 24.—The acceptance of the Peace Treaty has left Berlin and indeed the whole of Germany with a feeling of resentment, and in the words of the Berlin correspondent of the Berlingske Tidende "three yawns between Berlin and Paris a gulf wider than that which yawned in 1871."

Germany has accepted a peace which she was not able to reject, but it is well to recognize the spirit in which she accepted it. Perhaps the best expression of this spirit is found in Vorwärts, which says:

"This peace, being the product of force, is worthless as a real peace, because the German people will never believe in it. It is a peace which will last only so long as the balance of power remains the same as that which dictated it."

Great bitterness is felt toward Mathias Erzberger, the Deutsche Tagesseitung's leading article, for instance, being headed "Erzberger's Peace; Germany's Death."

TO KEEP ON SELLING BEER AFTER JULY 1

HOPE PRESIDENT WILL ACT

Hold That War Is Over, but Will Confine Sales to Drinks of Small Alcoholic Content.

New York City will not be "bone dry" next Tuesday, the date on which the wartime prohibition act becomes operative. Many cafés and hotel restaurants will continue to sell light wine and beer at least.

While hotel keepers, brewers, and others believe that the signing of the Peace Treaty will be followed by a proclamation by the President, declaring demobilization at an end and nullifying the wartime prohibition act, plans were made yesterday by the Society of Restaurateurs to fight the law, in case the President does not follow this course.

William H. Hirst, of 15 William Street, counsel for the society, advised the organization, which includes most of the large hotel and restaurant proprietors, not to take concerted action, as this might place them in the position of uniting to oppose the Government, but said that the wartime prohibition act was of no effect under present circumstances. He counseled them also to keep within the policy of the President's message to Congress, advising that the ban be lifted as to light wine and beer.

Many saloons will go out of business July 1 if the wartime prohibition act becomes operative on that date, but others will attempt to sell 2¾ per cent. beer and other presumably innocuous drinks, and some will continue to sell light wines until the law has been tested.

Three methods of testing the law were suggested by Mr. Hirst. The first was to seek an injunction to prevent enforcement of the act until its constitutionality has been tested. The second was by a test case by trial and appeal following an arrest for an alleged violation of the law. The third method would be by writ of habeas corpus after an arrest under the act. Mr. Hirst said the third method probably would be adopted, as it was considered rather late to start injunction proceedings.

Will Fight Enforcement.

When a test case is under way, it is likely that an effort will be made by legal process to prevent the Government from enforcing the act generally until its constitutionality has been tested.

President Wilson, according to some legal authorities representing the biggest liquor interests, lacks the power to establish by proclamation the "light wine and beer" policy which he recommended to Congress. If he declares mobilization at an end the wartime prohibition act is wiped out entirely and all classes of intoxicants can be made and sold as before the war, until the prohibition constitutional amendment becomes effective next January. The President, it was said, has no right to declare the sale of light wine and beer lawful and more intoxicating liquors unlawful, but he has the power to set the date when the act ceases to operate.

Saloon keepers and liquor dealers are faced by problems which have several speculative features. Whether or not the President acts favorably to their interests by July 1, the saloon keeper has an incentive for keeping his place open and selling 2.75 per cent. beer and soft drinks. He can afford to run at a loss on this basis for a time because of the chance of a later declaration that demobilization is at an end and may restore his right to sell all classes of liquor with the chance of big profits in the last few months before the national prohibition.

The situation will be virtually the same for the big brewing interests represented by Root & Guthrie whether the President nullifies the war measure or not. These brewers have decided, it was said, not to brew beer of greater strength than 2.75 per cent. They are represented as being extremely anxious to have this kind of beer generally accepted as nonintoxicating and as a temperance drink.

Says Wartime Act Is Inoperative.

In the opinion Mr. Hirst gave to the restaurant men he said:

"The War Prohibition Act was approved ten days after the armistice was signed and after actual fighting had ended. Among other things, it prohibits the sale of intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes after June 30, until the conclusion of the present war, and thereafter until the termination of demobilization, the date of which shall be determined and proclaimed by the President. The act declares that the purposes of the prohibition are to conserve the man power of the nation and to increase the efficiency in the production of arms, munitions, and other articles of manufacture as were needed for the army and navy.

"Immediately afterward plans were made for the demobilization of the army, and contracts for supplies of all kinds for the army and navy were rescinded. The destruction of dangerous war material, the rapid demobilization of troops, and the removal of embargoes on commerce were other indisputable evidences of the fact that the war danger no longer threatens us. There is no longer any necessity for conserving man-power or of increasing efficiency in production for the purposes of the army and navy.

WILL SELL 2.75 BEER.

Boston and St. Louis Make Plans for Prohibition Period.

BOSTON, June 25.—Boston saloonkeepers plan to sell 2.75 per cent. beer after July 1, John J. Galvin, Secretary of the Retail Liquor Dealers' Association, announced today. His statement explained the eagerness of dealers in applying for licenses recently.

"It is the plan of the liquor dealers," said Secretary Galvin, "to reopen for the sale of 2.75 per cent. beer and ale, if stronger beverages are not permitted and if enforcement legislation does not cut it off. Our general position is not to defy the law, but the law has not yet decided what strength of liquor is intoxicating."

ST. LOUIS, June 25.—Injunction proceedings brought in the United States District Court here by the St. Louis Brewing Association and the Independent Breweries Company to restrain Federal authorities from interfering with the manufacture of beer containing 2.75 per cent. alcohol, pending decision by the United States Supreme Court, whether such beer is intoxicating, will not be pressed, attorneys announced today. The breweries represented, however, have announced that they will continue the manufacture of 2.75 per cent. beer after July 1.

to each State to settle for itself, prohibiting only shipment from one State to another. A subsequent change on the part of a Southern Democrat with a corresponding change by a Northern Republican who had at first voted for the amendment was sufficient to reverse the committee's action.

After the Steele amendment had been adopted by the committee, Representative Walsh, who had voted for it, moved to reconsider. Then he moved to adjourn. That motion was lost and the vote came on the motion to reconsider. Had Representative Walsh been the only one to change his latter motion would have been lost on a tie, but Representative Whaley of South Carolina joined him in the change and the whole question was reopened. As a result the State's Rights amendment was lost by the original vote, 9 to 7.

Mrs. James Madison Bass, in charge of the famous khaki and blue dances for men in uniform given for more than a year and a half by the New York War Camp Community Service, was the guest of honor yesterday at a luncheon at the Hotel Commodore, given by the hostesses and chaperons who have assisted her from the beginning of her work as executive of the social department of the Community Service. Among the speakers were Major Warren D. Bigelow, in charge of the United States Re-employment Service Bureau, 505 Pearl Street; Mrs. J. F. McDougall, Edward Embree, of the Rockefeller Foundation, and Rowland Haynes, Director of the Community Service. Frank Hayek of the liberty sing department led the community singing.

According to a report given by Mrs. Bass at the luncheon, 935 khaki and blue dances have been given, with a total attendance of 182,907 uniformed persons. The volunteer assistants include 150 hostesses, 300 chaperons, 50 floor men, and 3,000 young women as dance partners. Through the social department 144,895 men in uniform have been entertained in private homes in the city. At Pershing House, the club for convalescents, conducted by the department in Gramercy Park, 15,828 free meals have been served to convalescent guests, and 21,870 have been entertained at parties in Pershing House and at the National Arts Club opposite. More than 4,000 wounded men, guests at Pershing House, have been entertained in private homes. The dances will continue while there are troops returning from overseas needing the hospitality of New York.

Reports from all parts of the country, reaching the Army Recruiting Service here yesterday, were that the interest of prospective recruits in the advantages offered by the army were so great that the second contingent of 50,000 men would be made up in record time. For four days of the ten since the campaign started all other peace-time records have been broken.

Acceptances on Tuesday were 515, exceeding all other peace-time marks except that of 659, set on Monday.

NEW YORK HONORS PESSOA ON ARRIVAL

RECEIVED AT CITY HALL

Dr. Epitacio Pessoa, President-elect of Brazil, was officially welcomed on his arrival in this city from Washington yesterday afternoon by a party which crossed the river to the New Jersey Central Pier in one of the city's tugs. He was the guest of honor at an official reception at the City Hall and was entertained in the evening at a dinner by the Mayor's Committee on Receptions to Distinguished Guests at the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria.

Elbert H. Gary, Charles M. Schwab and other speakers at the dinner made predictions of a marvelous growth for Brazil in the future. Dr. Pessoa, in reply, dwelt on the strong friendship between the two countries, and emphasized the fact that it had been strengthened during the war.

As Rodman Wanamaker, the toastmaster, was introducing the President-elect four policemen entered the room and carried a large American flag up to the speaker's table.

Mr. Wanamaker then finished his speech by saying:

"We wrap around you the flag of our country, the flag that we stand for—our flag."

Suiting action to the word, Mr. Wanamaker draped the American flag over the shoulders of the guest of honor, who at first appeared slightly surprised, then lifted a fold to his lips and kissed it as the audience applauded.

Mr. Schwab in his address said that he expected to see trade between the United States and other South American countries revive more quickly than between the United States and European countries. He said all his companies were investing heavily in South American business.

The official committee, which crossed the river early yesterday on the tug Patrol consisted of ex-Secretary of the Treasury William G. McAdoo, Major Gen. Thomas H. Barry, John Bassett Moore, President Frank L. Dowling of the Borough of Manhattan, Charles M. Schwab, H. B. Harris, E. V. R. Thayer, Commissioner Grover A. Whalen, Rodman Wanamaker, Louis G. Kaufman, Newcomb Carlton, Arthur S. Somers, Judge E. H. Gary, and Albert H. Wiggin.

Dr. Pessoa, with Mme. Pessoa and the Brazilian party, arrived at 3:30 o'clock at the Communipaw Station. After a formal greeting the party marched to the pier and boarded the tug. Returning to the Battery, the party traveled in automobiles to the City Hall, where they were officially greeted by Mayor Hylan in the Aldermanic Chamber. Mayor Hylan said:

"The city feels honored in having as its guest the distinguished President-elect of Brazil. It is in a spirit of the most sincere friendship that the city extends to you its welcome.

"While Emperor of Brazil, Don Pedro visited the United States, and throughout his long reign maintained the most cordial relations with this country. However, Don Pedro was unable to withstand the intense desire of the people of Brazil for a republican form of government.

"The new Government which was set up was formed on the model of the Government of the United States, comprising legislative, executive, and judicial departments. Brazil, one of the score of republics patterned after our form of government, is today a glowing example of what must be conceded to be the best form of government."

Dr. Pessoa thanked the Mayor and the city in a brief reply.

SENDS GREETING TO FLIERS.

Aero Club Wirelesses Felicitations to Returning NC Crews.

A wireless message of greeting to the crews of the NC seaplane division of the American Navy, including Lieut. Commander A. C. Read and the five men who were with him in the first airplane flight over the ocean, was sent to the party on board the Zeppelin last night by Alan R. Hawley, President of the Club. The message read:

"The Aero Club of America sends you its heartiest greetings upon your return after your magnificent flight bridging the ocean by air. We are proud of you and the American Navy for the supreme achievement in aeronautics so splendidly accomplished."

It is expected that the Zeppelin, the former German liner, now sailing under the interallied flag, will dock at Hoboken tomorrow morning. In forming its great fleet of airplanes to escort the returning aviators from Sandy Hook the Aero Club received word yesterday from five manufacturers that squadrons from their plants would join the army and navy squadrons in paying tribute to the first men over the ocean.

INDIANIANS STORM SALOONS

Special to The New York Times.

HAMMOND, Ind., June 25.—Two West Hammond policemen were badly beaten last midnight by men they had arrested. As a result appeals have been made to the Cook County (Ill.) Sheriff for deputies until July 1 to aid in subduing Hammond, Gary, and East Chicago citizens, who in large numbers have invaded the wet territory to celebrate until the country goes dry.

The West Hammond police are declared powerless to handle the situation. The saloons are stormed by mobs of men who have quit work in the Calumet district factories.

Hold Up Some Appointments.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Confirmation of Frank L. Polk, counsellor of the State Department, as Under Secretary of State; Hugh Gibson as Minister to Poland, and Boaz W. Long as Minister to Cuba was recommended today by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Opposition to the nomination of William E. Gonzales of South Carolina as the first Ambassador to Peru developed in the committee, and action was deferred. The committee also postponed action on the nomination of Norman Hapgood as Minister to Denmark and Benton McMillan, now Minister to Peru, as Minister to Guatemala.

Italian Sculptor Gets Cuban Prize.

HAVANA, June 24.—To Aldo Gamba, the Italian sculptor, was tonight awarded the first prize of $25,000 by the Governmental Commission appointed to select a model for the monument to be built to the memory of Maximo Gomez, Generalissimo of the Cuban war of independence. Huertas Cabarrocas, Spanish-Cuban, and Gutzon Borglum, American, were awarded second and third prizes, respectively. The monument will cost $200,000.

Navy Club May Continue.

A meeting to consider the establishment of a permanent navy club has been called by Herbert L. Satterlee, ex-Secretary of the Navy, for this afternoon at the Chamber of Commerce Building, 65 Liberty Street. It is proposed to form a committee of about one hundred, from which a subcommittee on plans and scope could be appointed if the general plan is indorsed.

BRITISH LABORITES FACEGRAVEDECISION

Southport Conference Is to Pass on Policy of Direct Political Action.

CONSCRIPTION IS ONE ISSUE

SOUTHPORT, England, June 25.—The main interest of the outside world in the nineteenth annual conference of the Labor Party, which opens in Southport today, lies in the question before it of using industrial action to secure political aims. An influential section of the leaders of the triple alliance of miners, railwaymen, and transport workers has long been in favor of exercising the power of the alliance to compel compliance with the demands for the abolition of conscription, the withdrawal of troops from Russia, the release of conscientious objectors, and other objects sought.

These leaders were deeply disappointed at their recent failure to induce the Parliamentary Committee of the Trade Union Congress to call a special conference of the trade unions to discuss their proposals.

The action taken by the executive body of the triple alliance last night in deciding to convene a special conference in London on July 23 to consider what action should be taken to compel the Government to comply with the three principal demands mentioned was a step independent of today's conference. The action taken by the London conference, however, will be materially affected by the attitude of the present one, at which the controversy between the advocates of industrial and constitutional methods, respectively, of achieving their aims will be discussed from every angle in the debate on the various resolutions and amendments before the body, as it is known that there is considerable divergence of opinion among the labor men on the question.

The far-reaching importance of any decision placing in the hands of the industrial unions the power to enforce political demands by means of strikes is recognized by the Executive Committee of the Labor Conference which, in a report to be presented today, expresses the view that if labor is to institute such a new precedent in British industrial history it is imperative that the trade unions which adopt the new policy and whose finances presumably would be involved in carrying it out should realize the responsibility which such a movement entails and should themselves determine the ground plan of the new campaign.

The executive body itself does not make any declaration for or against the proposal, leaving discussion unfettered.

Among other matters awaiting the attention of the conference is the organization of labor in anticipation of the next general election, which in the opinion of many observers is not far distant.

Many foreign delegates are in attendance at the conference, including Camille Huysmans of Belgium, Hjalmar Branting of Sweden, Pieter J. Troelstra of Holland, and the French Socialists Léon Jouhaux, Pierre Renaudel and M. Pedmoulin. The reason for the exclusion from England of Deputy Jean Longuet, leader of the French minority Socialists, and M. Frossard, General Secretary of the French Socialist Party, who were stopped by the authorities at Folkestone on their way to the conference, has not yet developed.

PRODUCE STRIKE REACHES CRISIS

Street, reported that the perishables that were unloaded Monday morning at the Pennsylvania Railroad Pier 28 have been reloaded on cars and shipped to other places. "Many other perishables remain on the docks, and most of them are rapidly deteriorating," it was added.

Only four truckloads of produce left Washington Market yesterday morning, two being consigned to the Harlem Market and the others to the Bronx Market. Both were under guard of mounted police.

Army supplies are still being handled with army trucks. Captain L. P. Brown, nutrition officer of the Port of Embarkation, was notified by the union that military trucks which establish their identity would not be hampered by the strikers. The Navy Department continued to use private trucks, with two armed guards on each vehicle, instead of one guard, as during the early days of the strike. Armed naval guards were on duty at the piers where the trucks were loaded.

The strikers said they would not interfere with the movement of supplies to charitable institutions and hospitals, provided proof is given that the supplies will be used only by these institutions. They continued to intimidate and threaten every one who attempted to move any fruit or vegetables. Even individuals were not allowed to take away small purchases.

Mr. Lippman and other produce men complained of inadequate police protection. He said the whole question of the normal distribution of supplies "hinges on adequate police protection. If the police will give us enough men to guard against possible injury of the drivers and wagons, we will undertake to sell products to any of the large dealers, hotels and restaurants who want to send their trucks to the market," he said. Mounted police were on patrol duty all day along Washington and West Street and the side streets, and patrolmen were stationed on every block in the vicinity of the markets.

It was learned that the commissioner had solicited the influence of the Governors of North Carolina, Virginia, Delaware, Maryland, and California. The Chief Executives of these States have been asked, as their farmers are affected, to urge Governor Smith to take a hand in the strike, with a view to forcing a settlement.

PUT OFF VOTE ON FALL MOVE

journed, Senator Hitchcock declared that he did not believe the Republican majority could effect its passage. Senator Lodge had no prophecy to make as to what would happen to it, but reiterated his approval of the measure.

BORAH RENEWS ATTACK ON LEAGUE COVENANT

Says Peace Delegates Have Failed to Provide for Armaments on Peace Basis.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Senator Borah aroused a long and lively debate in the Senate today over the League of Nations covenant, and the recently adopted resolution of which he was the author calling upon the Peace Conference to give a hearing to representatives of Ireland also came up for comment.

In renewing his attack upon the League covenant Mr. Borah asserted that President Wilson and other delegates at the Peace Conference had failed to live up to promises made before the conference met to provide for armament of nations on a peace instead of a war basis.

Mr. Borah's speech was made in urging that the recommendation of the Senate Military Committee for an army of 400,000, as provided in the Army Appropriation bill, be rejected. Senator Borah maintained that an army of 300,000, as embraced in the bill as passed by the House, was adequate, under ordinary after-peace conditions.

Only if the United States were to be "embroiled in European squabbles," to protect territorial rights, under Articles X. and XI. of the League of Nations, Mr. Borah said, would an army of more than 300,000 be required. He adverted to the statement of General March, Chief of Staff, before the Senate Military Committee, to the effect that if the United States did its part under Article X. 500,000 men would be needed.

"I don't know that 500,000 men would be enough if we are to fight the battles of all the small nations over territory," said Senator Borah.

Senator Walsh, quoting the language of Article X., in which the League Council is authorized to "advise" the action to be taken to guarantee mutual integrity, declared the nation "would be under no obligations whatever to take the Council's advice."

Obligation Would Be Moral.

"Not under a legal obligation," replied Senator Borah, "but certainly under the very highest moral obligation."

"Then why is it written 'advise' and not 'prescribe'?" asked Senator Robinson.

"Advise and prescribe here would have the same meaning," Mr. Borah replied, "so far as the moral obligation is concerned."

"Then words mean nothing," retorted Senator Walsh.

Senator Phelan called attention to the fact that the Senate might advise the President regarding negotiations of treaties, but could not prescribe his course.

Senator Lodge suggested that regardless of the action of the council the nation would be morally bound to go to the aid of any League member whose territorial integrity was threatened.

Senator Borah, resuming his speech, said:

"There was a very general and pretty well established belief, seemingly justified by reason of declarations made by practically all the Governments of the world that the close of this war would witness a real and substantial movement toward disarmament. People were attracted to the whole scheme involved in the treaty at Versailles, including the League of Nations, because of what they believed to be a fair assurance that there would be a guarantee backed by actual performance of disarmament.

"Does the Senator feel," interrupted Senator Jones of New Mexico, "that if the covenant of the League were not adopted, this movement toward disarmament would receive very much of an impetus? If the League of Nations is not entered into by the United States does the Senator then feel that we would be warranted in not going ahead with this preparedness?"

"We have before us not only a program in the form of a treaty, and of a League which gives no guarantee or assurance of disarmament," replied Senator Borah, "but we have an interpretation or a construction of the League by the nations which are responsible for it which indicates beyond question that those nations do not expect disarmament.

"I do not undertake to go into the question whether we could disarm at this time. But I do want to call attention to the construction placed upon Article 8 (the disarmament section) by advocates of the League. This is not the construction which is actually being placed upon it in the legislative assembly or parliament where the question of the amounts necessary to carry it into effect are considered in a concrete and practical way. It is having one construction in popular parlance and before the people at large. It is having an entirely different construction in the Appropriation Committees here, and in Parliaments which have to deal with the matter."

Disarmament Question Unchanged.

Senator Borah referred to the provision in the League covenant that the "Council taking account of the geographical situation and circumstances of each State shall formulate plans for such reduction for the consideration and action of the several Governments," and proceeded:

"That leaves the question of disarmament precisely where it was before. Any disarmament plans will have to be adopted by the several Governments. What is the difference between that and the situation that existed before the war as to armaments? The League covenant recognizes the principle that disarmament to the lowest point consistent with national safety is a sound principle. Every nation, I assume, would have been willing to state that principle any time within the last fifty years, and yet the same nations were compelled to build vast fighting machines.

"The program seems to show that, in no distant day, Germany is to be admitted to the League of Nations. I take it that there never will be within the lifetime of any who sits in this Chamber, any thought of disarmament to the slightest degree, if the German people are permitted after they enter the League to determine for themselves what their armament shall be. I take it that there would be not the slightest step toward disarmament if the Japanese Government, which, in my opinion, is the most pronounced representative of Prussianism now in existence, is permitted to determine for itself what its disarmament shall be."

"The establishment of the freedom of the seas and the elimination of conscription were promised to the people by the men who controlled and shaped affairs at Versailles before they went there, and both of these things were rejected out of hand. This must be satisfactory proof to any man that whatever they thought before they met they concluded that disarmament was impossible. That is what the people of the world should be told."

Senator Hitchcock observed that public opinion in Great Britain was just as pronounced for disarmament as that in the United States. "Public opinion there will force a reduction in military and naval programs," he said.

Senator Borah retorted that budgets were being prepared and passed in England without protest, and that the tax bill now pending in the House of Commons was the greatest in the history of that country.

Senator Reed joined in with the remark that British statesmen and newspapers had declared Great Britain would not materially reduce her navy because of creation of the League.

"I deny that most emphatically," said Senator Hitchcock.

"And I assert it most positively," replied Senator Reed, promising to submit statements of Winston Churchill and others.

Criticised Over Irish Resolution.

The debate on the Irish resolution was precipitated by Senator Thomas, who said he had been criticised by constituents for his attitude against the Borah resolution. He had merely contended, he explained, that the Conference could not properly give an audience to the Irish delegates because it did not represent an independent nation.

"I, myself, do not know any reason why a hearing should be granted to nationalities such as Poland and Rumania, without giving hearings to a people who have been struggling for 700 years to establish their right of self-government and independence," commented Senator Borah. "There are no possible grounds, in my view of it, by which we can distinguish between the rights of those other nations or peoples who have been heard and the right of Ireland to be heard."

Senator Thomas declared that there was a distinction between Poland and Rumania, as against Ireland, in that the two former nations had received recognition as autonomous Governments and were members of the Peace Conference.

"Go back to the proposition from which sprang the right of the Polish and Rumanian peoples to be heard," replied Senator Borah. That principle was the right of self-determination. I venture to say that the principle which was applied to the subject nationalities of Germany would have been applied to the subject nationalities the world over if the policy which the President announced had been carried out against the imperialistic designs and ambitions of the nations of Europe. I am not criticising the President for what he failed to do. I am, rather, saying that in my judgment he was prevented from doing that which he would have done by reason of the imperialistic purposes and designs of those with whom he had to contend; but there can be no doubt that the President's policy and the sentiment of America included Ireland just as much as Poland and just as much as Rumania. I believe that Ireland should have been heard. I think that Korea should have been heard. Korea is in a state of serfdom today."

Senator Walsh agreed with Mr. Borah that Ireland's cause ought to have been presented to the Peace Conference and considered in the same likht as that of Poland and Rumania. The United States had intended to be sincere in its attitude toward self-determination of peoples, he said; it ought to have invited representatives of the Philippines to be heard at Paris.

MEMBERS OF COUNCIL GOT WAR CONTRACTS

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Methods employed by the Council of National Defense in purchasing supplies for the War Department during the first eight months of the war were sharply questioned by Republican members of the House War Investigating Committee during examination today of Grosvenor Clarkson, director of the Council.

Mr. Clarkson testified that many contracts were made with companies represented by men on the Council, but that other members, not connected with the industry, passed on them before they were approved.

Replying to Representative Reavis, Republican, Nebraska, Mr. Clarkson said that, while this probably was a "direct violation in spirit" of the law, necessity demanded it.

"It was through this system," he said, "that the Government utilized the best brains of the country and saved the country many millions of dollars."

Mr. Clarkson told the committee that when the War Industries Board was established and took over the work members of the Council who had aided the Government in placing orders for supplies "dropped out because their services were no longer needed."

"But they didn't get out until members of Congress had called attention to what was going on, did they?" asked Mr. Reavis.

"No; many of the men deeply resented the implication of dishonesty which had been made against them. I want to add that not a scintilla of crookedness has ever been proved against a single one of the members."

SINN FEIN STORM SWEEPS ST. REGIS

Charles Mascord and O. C. Devin. Some of the attendants approached, and the animated discussion attracted the attention of several persons who were passing through the lobby on their way to the dining room, one of them being Vincent Astor. This discussion ended when Sir Charles left the hotel by the Fifty-fifth Street entrance. Mr. Haan vehemently denied last night that any persons not in sympathy with the cause of the Allies had made the place a rendezvous, and he declared that Sir Charles had never made any such charge to him. He added that he had heard of some criticism alleged to have been uttered by the Englishman. He declared that Sir Charles had frequently lunched and dined at the hotel since then.

"There is no reason why we should discriminate against the Irish in their campaign," said Mr. Haan. "The Serbians, the Armenians, and all the other nationalities that conducted drives for funds were allowed to solicit funds in this building, as well as in all other hotels, and the Irish can solicit here, too."

Sir Charles is a member of the firm of White, Allom & Co., architectural contractors of London, and has an office here at 49 East Fifty-second Street. He is also a partner in the Gosport Aircraft Company, and during the war was interested in contracts for explosives and munitions for the use of the British army and navy. He is a grandson of Thomas Allom and Thomas Carrick, English painters, and was knighted in 1913.

Among English sportsmen he is known best as the owner of the cutter Istria, and before the war it was reported that he would issue a challenge for the America's Cup. He denied this report, however, saying that he would not challenge so long as Sir Thomas Lipton remained challenger. He is also considered an authority on British labor problems and art. He is living now at the Ritz-Carlton.

WINNIPEG STRIKERS RESUME WORK TODAY

Sympathetic Walkout in Edmonton, Victoria, and Calgary Also Called Off.

Special to The New York Times.

WINNIPEG, June 25.—The general strike, which has lasted here for forty days, will end tomorrow at 11 A. M. The announcement was made today following an all-night session of the General Strike Committee. The strike will actually end at the hour when it would have entered its seventh week, with reinstatement of the strikers entirely in the hands of H. A. Robson, former Judge of the Kings Bench Court. Mr. Robson last night wired Premier Norris from Ottawa his acceptance of the appointment as a Commissioner to inquire into the cause and origin of and justification for the strike.

The general strikes in Edmonton, Victoria, and Calgary have also been called off and the men go back to work tomorrow.

JUDGE REPRIMANDS POLICE.

Criticises Arrest of Woman Who Wore Bathing Suit Under Skirt.

Magistrate Geismar, in the Coney Island Court, yesterday reprimanded the police for arresting an alleged violator of the park ordinance forbidding persons to walk along Ocean Parkway in other than complete street attire.

The Magistrate made his ruling in the case of Mrs. Anna Goldman of 443 Neptune Avenue, against whom an additional charge of disorderly conduct was made. Her husband, William, and Nicholas Christy, of the same address, were charged with disorderly conduct. The three were arrested by Patrolmen Simmons and Papp after the police had ordered Mrs. Goldman to return home because she had a bathing suit under a sweater and a skirt. The men remonstrated against the order. It was alleged the policemen raised the woman's skirt to see if she had on a bathing suit.

"You had no business to see if she had on a bathing suit," said the Magistrate. "If she did have a bathing suit under her sweater and skirt, she had a right to go anywhere she pleased. If she wanted to go shopping in such attire she was at liberty to do so. It is a man's privilege, if he wishes, to go to business wearing a bathing suit under a sweater and trousers. I don't see what right the police have to stop people from going bathing on Ocean Parkway."

The Magistrate dismissed the charge of violating the park ordinance against Mrs. Goldman. He found the three guilty of disorderly conduct, but suspended sentences.

Insurance After Death

The Mercantile Trust Company of New York challenges the thought of business men, by heading a recent advertisement with this announcement—"I do hereby bequeath to my heirs my business ability."

This enterprising and powerful institution is, in its advertising, "selling an idea."

It might have elected to have followed the majority of banks and remained coldly inarticulate; or it might have "carried a card," announcing a strong vault, a conservative personnel and a restrained desire for additional deposits.

All of which would have been commendable, uninteresting and without constructive force.

The profligacy, carelessness or credulity of heirs can not be curbed by any trust company, unless the idea of appointing such an executor had been previously "sold" to the testator.

In the campaign of education by this bank, a valuable and far reaching service is rendered the individual and to society, with proportionate reward to the server.

Service, like merchandise, may be sold by advertising.

RADICALISM CAUSE SOUGHT, SAYS LUSK

FIRST STAGE OF INQUIRY

Says Work So Far Has Been to Find Whether Dangerous Seditious Activity Existed in State.

Even the most extreme radicals will have their day in court before the legislative joint committee investigating seditious activities in this State, according to Senator Clayton R. Lusk of Cortland, who is its Chairman. Senator Lusk made the statement last night to counteract what he has been led to believe is a growing impression that his committee has "come to town armed with a nightstick" for the sole purpose of suppressing radical propaganda.

Senator Lusk said that the committee was now merely in the first stage of its investigation—that of determining whether there actually existed in this State a dangerous seditious activity.

"I feel that there is little doubt left in the public mind," said the Senator, "even from the small amount of information that we have given out, that there is seditious activity in the State which needs attention."

Senator Lusk had reference chiefly to the documentary matter seized in the raids under the direction of his committee on the Soviet Russian Bureau, the Rand School of Social Science, the Left Wing Socialist headquarters, and the headquarters of the Russian Branch of the I. W. W. Records taken when the committee's force of State troopers descended on the Soviet Bureau and the Rand School of Social Science will be introduced in evidence at a hearing before the committee to be held today at the City Hall.

Senator Lusk, together with Deputy Attorney General Samuel A. Berger and Archibald E. Stevenson, associate counsel of the committee, was busy yesterday at the Prince George Hotel, going over some of the letters and printed matter found in the big safe at the Rand School. Neither Senator Lusk, nor Mr. Stevenson was willing to discuss in detail for publication the character of the papers in the Rand School grist.

It was asserted, however, that the raid on the Rand School was justified and that much of the matter seized was of a clearly seditious character, as would be made apparent when it was placed in evidence.

Documents culled from the mass of material taken in last Saturday's raid on the Russian I. W. W. headquarters, 27 East Fourth Street, are reported to disclose the amazing information that the I. W. W. have a majority in the union organizations of 100 trades in this country, and that I. W. W. workers are already toasting "The Day" and awaiting the signal for a country-wide movement to attain their revolutionary aims, by force if necessary. Members of the Lusk Committee questioned regarding this report were reticent. One document boldly proclaimed that fifty-two wide awake periodicals in this State, with approximately 750,000 readers in the aggregate, were preaching and paving the way for the social revolution.

Senator Lusk Issues Statement.

Senator Lusk in outlining the purposes of his committee said that the second phase of the investigation, when reached, would deal with the causes of the radical and seditious activities which the committee had discovered.

"What our committee hopes to do is to get at the cause of so much radicalism in this country and to do what we can toward effecting a remedy. We are going to call representatives of labor and capital before the committe and ask them to give us the benefit of their suggestions and advice. We are going to invite leading Socialists, radicals and extremists before the committee and give the representatives and spokesmen of all discontented classes a chance to be heard and a chance to suggest remedies for the situation. We shall seek for practical constructive proposals as to legislation, constitutional amendments, co-operation with other States, and such other action as will help to bring about the desired results. It seems to me that constructive action taken by the great State of New York founded upon a careful investigation of the present conditions is bound to go a great way toward solving these problems throughout the entire country."

Denies Company May Face Legal Action

Darwin P. Kingsley, President of the New York Life Insurance Company, which is owner of the Madison Square Garden, said in a communication received by THE NEW YORK TIMES that there was no truth in the report emanating from the office of the Attorney General and printed in THE TIMES that a warning had been sent to the company that by renting the Garden for radical rallies the company might face legal action. Mr. Kingsley said that invariably when the use of the Garden was sought for what seemed socialistic or anarchistic movements the Federal and municipal authorities had been applied to for instructions and that in every case the answer had been that the authorities could not tell beforehand what would be said at the meeting, but would take proper measures in the event that sedition was preached.

Dr. Alessandro H. Carasso, who recently announced his resignation as translator and interpreter for the Lusk Committee, made public yesterday a letter he had sent to the Senator, protesting against a statement made by him on Tuesday to the effect that the relations between the committee and Dr. Carasso had been severed as a result of a surreptitious visit by the Doctor to the Soviet Russia Bureau prior to the raid. Dr. Carasso said he had spent the afternoon of the alleged visit with Franklyn A. Gaylord of the International Committee of the Y. M. C. A., and did not even know the location of the Soviet Bureau until Tuesday.

"I trust that you will not delay in rendering an accurate and definite statement regarding my 'discharge' and alleged visit to the Soviet Bureau," Dr. Carasso wrote the Senator.

Vigorous protests were registered yesterday by representatives of the settlement houses against the charge alleged to have been made by Charles A. Starr, publicity agent of the Evangelistic Committee of New York City, that some of the college settlements were engaged in radical and un-American teaching, and suggesting that Attorney General Charles D. Newton, counsel for the legislative committee investigating seditious propaganda, have that committee make a thorough investigation of the houses. The United Neighborhood Houses of New York, including Greenwich House, Henry Street Settlement, Hartley House, Hudson Guild, Rivington House, Union Settlement, and Madison House, met last night at their offices, 27 Barrow Street. After the meeting they issued a statement in which they declared that the houses have been engaged in fostering straight, clean-cut Americanism.

Rev. Arthur J. Smith, Secretary of the Evangelistic Committee, declared yesterday that his committeh works with the settlements rather than against them, and that not only would any remarks made by Mr. Starr be made on his own responsibility, but that he denied having made the remarks attributed to him.

After expressing resentment at the insinuations of disloyalty, the statement of the United Neighborhood Houses continues:

"The single-hearted and effective promotion of loyalty and sound citizenship among our foreign population by settlement houses has been made possible by the public confidence in these institutions. Spreading charges which are in fact utterly without grounds cannot but undermine this confidence. Such statements tend to defeat the very purpose for which the committee was created—the fostering of straight, clean-cut Americanism. The committee has succeeded in defaming settlement houses whose sole object lies in developing that patriotic spirit and whose well-earned reputation in that respect has thus far been without a blemish.

In war service, Settlement houses have proved their worth. They were among the first institutions to be asked to serve as district headquarters in the drives conducted by the American Red Cross, Food and Fuel Administrations, Liberty Loan and War Savings Committees, United War Work Service, and the community councils of the Council of National Defense.

At the head of the settlement movement in this city are such persons as Mrs. Mary Kingsbury Simkhovitch, Miss Lillian Wald, Gaylord S. White, and others, who for more than a quarter of a century have been rendering distinguished service to this community and nation. Besides the headworkers already mentioned, the settlements of this city are indorsed and supported by Henry P. Davison, Henry W. Taft, Colonel Herbert Parsons, Adolph Lewisohn, Alexander M. Bing, Professor E. R. A. Seligman, Jacob H. Schiff, V. Everit Macy, and many others of equal prominence.

In vindication of their record the United Neighborhood Houses of New York and its constituent settlements stand ready to give the Lusk Committee or any group of citizens every possible assistance for the purpose of disclosing the truth about their work. In doing so, however, they register their emphatic protest against the unfair, autocratic, and insidious methods which make this offer necessary.

MRS. SKEELS DESCRIBES DEATH OF HER PATIENT

Nurse Accused of Poisoning Miss Gay Says She Gave No Treatments Two Days Before End.

LAWRENCE, Mass., June 25.—Mrs. Bessie M. Skeels, the nurse who is on trial for murder because of the death by poisoning of Miss Florence W. Gay, today resumed her story in the witness stand. She was weak from a recent illness and was carried to her place by court attendants.

Mrs. Skeels continued the recital which she began yesterday of the circumstances connected with the illness and death of Miss Gay in December, 1917. She testified that instead of attempting to stay with the sick woman whom, it is charged, she was dosing with arsenic, she had sought relief from her duties in the Gay home several days before Miss Gay died. She told Mrs. Edith M. Luce, a relative of the Gays, she said, that she was so tired she could not stand the strain much longer, and it was at Mrs. Luce's request that she stayed on.

Mrs. Skeels asserted that she gave Miss Gay no medical attendance of any kind for two days before her death. On the day that Miss Gay died, she said, she was called into the sick room by Mrs. Luce and found the patient unconscious.

She said she raised Miss Gay's head and did all she could to make her comfortable, because she loved her. She testified that in June, 1917, when a rash broke out on her neck, after she had worn Miss Gay's raincoat, Miss Gay examined it and said that it looked like the rash she had on her own face. Miss Gay recommended that it be treated with Fowler's solution, which she said she had used. The witness said she had never heard of the solution before Miss Gay told her about it.

Mrs. Skeels declared that all the articles which it was alleged she had stolen had been given her by the Gays, but that she had told Mrs. Luce she was welcome to take any of them if she wanted to claim them. After Miss Gay died the witness found a box of jewelry and immediately informed Mrs. Luce, Mrs. Skeels also declared that some of the goods shown in court had been purchased by her at stores in Lawrence and that they had never been inside the Gay home.

The defendant denied having obtained any insurance money from the deaths of her relatives. She sobbed when she identified a coat which she said she bought for her mother. She asserted that she was given no opportunity by the police to make an explanation in regard to the goods and that it appeared as if they were trying to "railroad her."

Industrial Property Wanted for Immediate Occupancy

They are looking for a building containing about twenty thousand square feet which is ready for immediate occupancy. The building must have good light, be adaptable for light manufacturing, principally sewing machines, and must be situated in a locality which is free from soot and dirt in the atmosphere, as principally white goods are utilized. The site must be within one hundred miles from New York.

Supply of Materials

As practically all raw materials consumed are manufactured in the states of Maine, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island, shipping facilities from these points to the property must be excellent.

Power

Labor

Their industry employs about ninety per cent women and ten per cent men, therefore the site upon which the factory is to be established must be surrounded with adequate female labor.

Market for Output

As the articles manufactured have national distribution, the site must be situated on or near railroads which feed into the principal trunk lines of the country. If railroad transportation to all parts of the country is not readily available, water transportation to certain points will be considered.

It is their intention to begin operating with a force of from two to three hundred employees.

They also have in view the manufacture of various other articles so that the locality should be such as to take care of expansion in case of necessity.

The manufacturers desire to take a short term lease on the property, with the option of buying if the locality is found to be satisfactory. The outright purchase of the property, however, is not out of the question.

If interested, you are requested to furnish, in writing, complete description of the property and building, annual rental, purchase price, population in the immediate vicinity and surrounding territory, names of other industries situated in same locality.

Personal interviews will be made after written descriptions of property have been received. Address communications to H 801 Times Annex.

TO FIGHT DEMANDS OF ENGLISH MINERS

LIKELY TO REJECT REPORT

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 25.—Telegrams from South Wales say the conviction is growing in commercial and mining circles that Parliament will reject all the various reports emanating from the Coal Commission, and particularly those recommending nationalization of mines. The commission, which was presided over by Justice Sankey, consisted of thirteen members, and issued four reports—that of the Chairman pronouncing for the purchase of mining royalties and the ultimate nationalization of mines. This obtained the support of the miners' representatives on the commission.

Employers put forward a scheme which would make the State the owner of coal after it had been mined and, and one Commissioner, Sir Arthur Duckham, elaborated proposals for controlling the coal industry in the interests of the whole community. Now that there has been time for study of the various reports, the balance of opinion seems strongly in favor of Duckham and against Sankey. Sankey urges national control in consideration of its effect on the outlook and morale of the miners. Duckham prefers private enterprise on grounds of efficiency and incentive. Sankey's scheme for nationalization is pronounced the most attractive yet formulated, and there is an obvious effort to eliminate as far as possible the evils of bureaucracy and to give due representation to interests without crippling the direction and initiative.

It is admitted, however, that the opponents of nationalization make out a very strong case for private enterprise, with certain essential reforms guaranteed. Some miners' leaders talk of a great political and industrial revolution, and in some quarters it is suggested that Justice Sankey unconsciously allowed himself to be affected by the panic in which the Commission was appointed. Undoubtedly public sympathy created for miners by certain revelations extracted by the commission does not go to the length of acceptance of all demands made for the men by Smillie, Williams and other leaders.

Coal owners propose a system of profit sharing, and in view of the recent decreased output of coal, maintain that only the incentive of profit making can secure maximum production. A leading representative of the owners puts the case thus:

"The Sankey Commission was conceived in fear, and the Sankey report was born in fear. If we allow fear of the miners' leaders to rule our actions now we only postpone the evil days of reckoning. The great question is, will the miners wreck the country if we insist on sound reforms and refuse panic-stricken palliatives. I firmly believe they will not. Smillie and his fellow-extremists have their following among miners, but they do not represent the miners. Smillie's own election as leader was a hole-and-corner affair, in which the majority of the local miners took no interest. The problem is one of leadership. The miners as a class are not revolutionaries, and they can be led for good as well as for evil. If Smillie does represent the miners we may as well fight him now as later, and we can rely on the more democratic trade unions as well as the bulk of the working classes who as consumers know what the miners' policy means. If on the other hand Smillie does not represent the miners then let us not be intimidated by him into doing things we know are bad, but rather press on reforms which are sound, and rely on the good sense of the miners to support the forces of reform and order."

While the nationalization of mines, in the opinion of many good judges, seems likely to be postponed, the question of the nationalization of railways and other transport undertakings of the country which the Government raised in the hastily conceived Ministry of Ways and Communications bill, has already met with a contemptuous negative from the House of Commons. Pages of the measure as originally introduced by Sir Eric Geddes have been cut out bodily, one of them containing a clause empowering the Minister to purchase and work any railway, tramway, canal or dock. Parliament took a strong position that it would have no veiled form of nationalization or permanent Government control of transportation, and as it stands the bill aims only at co-ordination and avoidance of waste.

WAR LABOR BOARD SOON TO BE DISSOLVED

Stops Receiving Applications for Settling Disputes, but Will Finish Pending Cases.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—The National Labor Board today ended its activities preparatory to final dissolution by the President. No new cases will be heard nor new applications received, but present controveries, jointly submitted, which cannot be concluded prior to June 30, will be assigned to the joint chairmen or a section of the board for disposition.

In announcing the conclusion of its activities the board said it had recommended that, with the approval of the President, all administrative duties in connection with unfinished cases and all records and files of the board be transferred to the Department of Labor. Members of the board, pending final dissolution, will be at the call of the President.

The conclusion of the board's activities marks the passing of one of the governmental agencies created during the war to further production of war materials.

The board was organized under a Presidential proclamation with former President Taft and Frank P. Walsh of Kansas City as Joint Chairmen, and with five members representing labor, five employers' representatives, and two members acting for the public. Mr. Walsh resigned soon after the signing of the armistice and was succeeded by Basil M. Manly of Washington.

During the year which ended May 31 the board received 1,245 cases, made awards in 462 cases, dismissed 391 for various causes, referred 315 to specified agencies, and suspended one case. Fifty-three cases remained on the docket because the board could not agree, and 23 cases were pending.

Convention Indorses Movement to Compel Release of Mooney and Reds

Resolutions indorsing the proposal for a national strike to compel the release of Mooney, Haywood, Debs and Red agitators imprisoned at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., were among those adopted at the national convention of the "Left Wing" Socialists just ended. The convention began at the Manhattan Lyceum, 66 East Fourth Street, on Saturday. The closing session was held at the Hungarian Workmen's Home, 350 East 81st Street.

Another resolution, adopted by unanimous vote, pledged the "Left Wing" Socialists to determined resistance against armed intervention in Mexico. Whether this implied a general strike could not be learned last night.

An attempt made on the initiative of "Left Wing" branches in Pennsylvania to exclude all so-called "intellectuals" from membership in the national reorganization was voted down, such prominent radicals as John Reed of this city, editor of The Communist, and Louis C. Fraina of Boston, editor of the Revolutionary Age, taking the floor in opposition. One clause of the resolution provided that no person, the major part of whose income was derived from rents, interest on capital, or from property should be admitted as a member.

"Lenin and Trotzky are intellectuals, and they are not exactly paupers," said one of the opposition speakers. "And here in our midst are men who while not millionaires are well fixed financially and who are among our most valuable members, partly because they spend their money for the cause. They would be barred if this resolution was to be adopted. Are you going to apply a standard that would bar Lenin and Trotzky from our councils? Are you going to read the comrades with means, who are sitting with us today, out of the party."

The resolution was voted down. Among the resolutions adopted was one providing for establishing a "left wing" periodical, to be known as The Worker and to be controlled by the National Council of Workmen which was created at the convention with such prominent radicals as John Reed, ex-Assemblyman Benjamin Gitlow of the Bronx, and "Jim" Larkin among its members. Another resolution extended the congratulations of the convention to the "brave" Canadian strikers, another carried greetings to the workers of Russia and Hungary and expressed the hope that the workers of Scandinavian countries, Holland, Switzerland, and Ireland would refrain from work in munition factories supplying the enemies of Soviet Russia.

The convention provided for a national conference to be held in Chicago on Sept. 1 and which, it is expected, will assume the character of a "rump" convention in the event that the "Left Wing" Socialists should fall in their avowed purpose of capturing the machinery of the Socialist Party for the foreign federations whose charters have been annulled and the "Third International."

$10,000 REWARD FOR LOST JEWELS

SURE BOX WAS NOT MISLAID

Owner Says She Has "One Big Fact" to Upset That Theory, but Declines to Say More.

A reward of $10,000 was offered yesterday by the management of the Hotel Biltmore for information that would lead to the recovery of the jewels reported by Mrs. Clarence Millhiser to have disappeared from a safe deposit box in the hotel some time between May 20 and the afternoon of June 13. No list of the jewels was given out yesterday by Mrs. Millhiser, her lawyers, or by counsel for the hotel, but information from several sources was that jewels owned by Mrs. Millhiser were valued at more than $250,000. This is the announcement of the reward given out by Deacon Murphy, a member of the law firm of Edwards, Murphy & Minton, of 26 Liberty Street.

$10,000 REWARD.

$10,000 will be paid by the Hotel Biltmore for the recovery of or information leading to the recovery of the lost Millhiser jewels.

All information must be given directly to Mr. E. D. Miller at the Hotel Biltmore, and no other information than that so given will be considered.

Mrs. Millhiser came to this city yesterday to confer with counsel and to visit the offices that her husband had maintained at 50 East Forty-second Street. At the St. Regis Hotel she said she would give no further information about her report of the loss of the jewels, but she confirmed the statements attributed to her by a reporter for a news agency, who had visited her at her Summer home at 51 Jerome Avenue, Deal, N. J., earlier in the day. She said then that some of the reports of the robbery had been "wildly ridiculous," and that "absurd statements have been printed as to Mr. Millhiser's wealth." It was unfair to criticise the police, she said, because she had not reported the loss to them.

Answering a question as to the possibility that she might have misplaced some of the jewels on May 20, the day she had reported having put them into the box after her husband's death at Mount Sinai hospital, she declared that she had "one big fact that would upset that theory." She declined to give more information about the fact mentioned by her.

Deacon Murphy, the lawyer who is investigating for the hotel, said that he had no idea what the fact mentioned by Mrs. Millhiser might be. He said that no receipts were given for packages placed in the safe deposit vault and that any patron of the hotel rented a box there under the same conditions and customs observed in banks and safe deposit companies.

A confidential memorandum, said to have been sent out by the police to pawnbrokers, who might have offers of the jewels confirmed the unofficial descriptions of the jewels given out by friends earlier in the day. According to this information, the most important piece was a rope of matched pearls, valued at more than $100,000. Other pieces reported missing were diamond rings, and brooches of diamonds, and other stones.

E. D. Miller, manager of the Biltmore, who, according to the announcement given out by counsel for the hotel, would receive all information leading to the recovery of the jewels, said yesterday that he would give no information, and that facts would be made public only by counsel. None of the representatives of the hotel would say whether a claim for the value of the jewels had been made upon the proprietor, John McE. Bowman.

DARTMOUTH HONORS COBB.

Makes Author Doctor of Literature —Illness Prevents Goethals Award.

HANOVER, N. H., June 25.—Dartmouth College today conferred the honorary degree of Doctor of Literature upon Irvin S. Cobb, the author, at its commencement day exercises. Governor J. H. Bartlett and G. L. Kibbee, editor of The Manchester Union, received the honorary degree of Master of Arts. The degree of Bachelor of Arts was conferred on Major Frank W. Cavanagh, formerly coach of the Dartmouth football eleven. Other honorary awards were: W. P. Mead, dean of the Berkeley School, Middletown, Conn., Doctor of Divinity, and Professor Raymond Pearls of Johns Hopkins University, Doctor of Science.

The honorary degree of Doctor of Laws had been voted by the trustees to Major Gen. George W. Goethals, but his absence because of illness prevented the award being made. Whether it can be conferred on General Goethals later has not been determined, college officials announce.

Gifts aggregating $1,200,000 made to the college during the year were announced by President Ernest M. Hopkins.

Bay State Ratifies Suffrage.

BOSTON, June 25.—Massachusetts today completed ratification of the Suffrage amendment to the Federal Constitution, the House, by a vote of 183 to 47, declaring in favor of ratification after an unsuccessful attempt by anti-suffrage leaders to have the matter referred to the people at the next election. The Senate voted for ratification 34 to 5 a week ago.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Rehearsals of "See-Saw," a musical comedy by Earl Derr Biggers, with music by Louis A. Hirsch, began yesterday, and the piece will be produced in Boston on Aug. 2. The cast will include Charles Brown, Frank Carter, Charles Meakins, Rowland Buckstone, and Kitty Arthur. Henry W. Savage is making the production.

Margaret Lawrence will be featured in Salisbury Field's comedy, "Wedding Bells," which the Selwyns will produce next season.

Duncan Macdougall will present three plays at the Cohan and Harris Theatre on Sunday night. They will be "Crainquebille," by Anatole France; "The Tinker's Wedding," by J. M. Synge, and "The Gollywog's Control," by Mr. Macdougall.

MUSIC NOTES.

Andres de Segurola, Chairman of the Maintenance Committee of the Stadium Symphony Concerts, has arranged an invitation musicale at the home of Adolph Lewisohn, 881 Fifth Avenue, at 4 o'clock this afternoon. There will be a brief discussion of the concerts, which are to open June 30.

The New Symphony Orchestra finds that the supply of classic musical scores in the United States is practically exhausted, there having been almost no importation of such publications from Europe in the five years since the war. About 200 works are sought for performance next season by Mr. Bodansky.

CONSTANTINE IS HARD UP.

Ex-King of Greece Loses the Pension Former Kaiser Allowed Him.

PARIS, June 25.—Former King Constantine of Greece, who has been living in Switzerland, is in financial difficulties, according to advices from Geneva to Paris newspapers. Former Emperor William had been supplying him with funds, but this subsidy has been cut off.

It is added that Constantine is endeavoring to become reconciled with the present Greek Government.

When Constantine abdicated on June 12, 1917, an income of $100,000 yearly was temporarily granted. In March, 1918, the Greek Budget Commission refused to give him any further pension. Since that time he had been living on the bounty of the Hohenzollern family and on the income that his wife, a sister of former Emperor William, derived from property in Germany. Since the German revolution it is probable this income has been greatly reduced, if not wiped out altogether. While King of Greece Constantine received $400,000 yearly.

FLEET SAILS IN JULY.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—The recently created Pacific fleet, now being organized from vessels heretofore forming a part of the Atlantic forces, will sail from Hampton Roads for the West Coast between July 15 and 20, Secretary Daniels announced today. Mr. Daniels probably will be a passenger on one of the warships, making the trip to the Pacific through the Panama Canal.

The superdreadnought New Mexico will fly Admiral Hugh Rodman's flag as flagship and the Pennsylvania will remain the flagship of the Atlantic fleet. The composition of the two fleets, Secretary Daniels announced, will be made public within a few days.

"At 9:45" at Playhouse Saturday.

"At 9:45," a melodrama by Owen Davis, will be produced at the Playhouse on Saturday night of this week by William A. Brady. The cast will include Marie Gerf, Edith Shayne, Madeleine King, Elise Bartlett, Mrs. Nick Long, Edward Langford, John Cromwell, George Backus, Frank Hatch, John Harrington, Noel Travers, Walter Lewis, Robert Thorne, Frank Hilton, and Alfred Hesse.

THE ACCEPTANCE MARKET.

The development of the new acceptance market is an interesting feature in each week's issue of THE ANNALIST, a magazine of finance, commerce, and economics, published by The New York Times Company. The action of a single bank last week in purchasing $10,000,000 of bills is especially mentioned in this week's issue. 10c. on news stands, $4 a year.—Advt.

WHAT ARE THEY TRYING TO DO?

The immediate aim of the Senatorial plotters against the League covenant is plain to the view. They are trying to kill the League of Nations. The law assumes that men intend the necessary consequences of their own acts. If the action these Senators urge upon the Senate is taken, it will necessarily destroy the League. They do not even seek to conceal their purpose. They are resorting to the old parliamentary device of killing by amendment. Mr. KNOX's hostile resolution, which has gone to its death, has been abandoned for a "qualifying resolution." It is intended that the Senate shall declare in this resolution that its ratification of the Treaty of Peace, so far as it applies to the League of Nations, shall be without effect so far as the United States is concerned until the other nations signing the Treaty shall agree to certain reservations, which are to be substantially those recommended by Senator ROOT. The Washington correspondent of THE TIMES asked Senator KNOX what would happen if the allied nations decline to accept these reservations. "The United States in that event would be outside the League of Nations," Mr. KNOX replied, "with a smile." Without the United States the League would be a lame and impotent organization; in all probability it would fall to pieces.

Therefore, we may start from the postulate that Senator KNOX, Senator LODGE, Senator BORAH, Senator JOHNSON, and their associates fully intend the death of the League of Nations, and are taking measures to that end. But what is their ulterior aim? Merely to prevent the erection of safeguards against the greatest cause of human suffering cannot be the whole end and aim of their plotting. We know that they have a political purpose—to express their hatred of President WILSON, to discredit him and thereby advance the fortunes of the Republican Party. Their tactics and their utterances disclose that motive, it is charged against them by responsible leaders of their own party. But by what strange perverted process of argument have they persuaded themselves that the success of their desperate plot against the League covenant would improve the chances of the Republicans in the Presidential election next year?

The country is against them, the great sober-minded, reasonable, and patriotic mass of their own party is against them. It is practically certain that they cannot command the support of the majority of the Republican Senators in their desperate adventure. That the Republican Party at large condemns their procedure is made evident by authoritative utterances in many States of the Union. An ex-President and an ex-Attorney General of their own party have condemned them. More than a score of representative Republicans in this city united the other day in a remonstrance against the course they are pursuing. In the West newspapers of high standing and of unquestioned loyalty to the party are outspoken in denunciation of the thing they are trying to do. The St. Louis Globe-Democrat, a great and influential newspaper of unswerving fidelity to Republican principles, declares that "the League is not a party issue and cannot be made a party issue without party disaster." It avers that "a large proportion of the Republican press favors the League, and there are but few important Republican newspapers that are uncompromisingly against it." In support of this assertion it reproduces upon its editorial page in its issue of June 22 five columns of editorial expressions from Republican newspapers of prominence, all deploring the unwise and dangerous course of the Senatorial opponents of the League. Among these newspapers are The Los Angeles Times, which "refuses to believe that "the rank and file of the party of "LINCOLN, MCKINLEY, TAFT, and "ROOSEVELT will permit the petty, "personal, and political enmities of "a few leaders to array a majority of "the party membership against the "League." The Portland Oregonian, one of the great papers of the Pacific Coast, while regretting that the President has not taken the Senate more into his confidence, nevertheless says that "men who are big enough to be "Senators should be big enough to "set the good of the country above "their dignity"; they should be broad enough to see that the League of Nations is the only alternative to a big army, and "that co-operation of "the Allies, with this nation is es"sential to its success." The Des Moines Register, a representative Republican paper, declares that "the "Knox program is the program of "those who want to get ready for the "'next great war'"; that by notifying Europe that we shall not join the League "we shall gain the enmity "and the more or less open hostility "of every inch of the Old World." The Salt Lake Tribune, another sound Republican newspaper, declares that the League is doomed before its adoption if the Senate refuses to ratify the Treaty unless the covenant is separated from it in advance. The Topeka Capital reminds the statesmen who condemn the covenant that before destroying it they should offer to the world a better plan of their own for dealing with the monstrous evil of war. The Globe-Democrat quotes The New York Globe, a newspaper which has been sound and sensible in its comments upon the League controversy, as saying that "Senator KNOX "and his followers desire to separate "the covenant only in order that they "may kill it," and The Globe exposes the hollowness of the arguments against Article X and against the reservation already adopted at Paris concerning the Monroe Doctrine.

The Globe-Democrat further calls attention to the adoption of resolutions indorsing the League covenant by the representative vote of 29,750 to 420 by the American Federation of Labor; to the resolution of the Federation of Women's Clubs, representing 2,000,000 women, declaring its approval of the revised covenant of the League; it points out that in a canvass of agricultural papers published in forty-three States only one of sixty-eight opposed ratification of the Treaty with the League and sixty-four unqualifiedly favored it. The attitude of the Church in favor of the covenant has been made known from hundreds of pulpits. Says The Globe-Democrat: "Here we have labor, "agriculture, the Church, the women, "and probably business supporting "the League. From what source "would the Republican Party draw "a conquering power in opposition to "it? It is a pertinent question for "leaders of the party."

THE ADMIRAL STATE.

A staple product of Vermont is Admirals, although its statisticians give prominence in their tables to marble, granite, spruce, milk, cheese, hay, live stock, and abandoned farms. The area of Vermont is one three-hundred-and-sixteenth of the Continental United States, and in 1918 Vermont had an estimated population of 336,192, as compared with 105,253,300 for all the States; its quota of Admirals should therefore be microscopically negligible. As a matter of fact, Vermont produces Admirals as easily as it yields granite, marble, and Morgan horses; not mere Rear Admirals, who nowadays are as blackberries in August, but famous Admirals, who command fleets or make history, or do both. The University of Vermont on Tuesday proclaimed HENRY T. MAYO, commander of the Atlantic Fleet in the great war, a Doctor of Laws. There is no need to ask from which State he hails, the presumption being that he first saw the light in Vermont, for most of our great Admirals of this generation were born in the shadow of the Green Mountains. The university on the hill was honoring a Burlington man. From Battery Park you can look across the inland sea to Plattsburg Bay, where Commodore THOMAS MACDONOUGH whipped a British squadron in 1814, and the biographer of HENRY T. MAYO will account for his naval career by deriving his inspiration from that stout conflict in which 300 British and 200 Americans perished, fighting at close quarters in the old, romantic, and sanguinary style.

Admiral GEORGE DEWEY of deathless Manila Bay fame was born at Montpelier, under the State House Hill, on whose crest the cows chew the cud as they look in on the legislators at their desks. Admiral DEWEY wrote his own life, and in Chapter I. he says that during his "long stay in the "heat of Manila Bay after the battle, "certain angles of view of the irregular landscape of Luzon from the "deck of the flagship Olympia often "recalled the Green Mountains of "my boyhood days," and he adds: "Indeed, I never look across a "stretch of rolling country without "a feeling of homesickness for "Vermont." That is the way all absent Vermonters feel, and they like to say so. As DEWEY's great-grandfather WILLIAM fought at Lexington, and WILLIAM's brother SIMEON was one of ETHAN ALLEN's Green Mountain Boys at the taking of Ticonderoga. GEORGE, an adventurous scamp as a boy, (so he admits,) seem ' to be destined for the land forces. Indeed, he spent two years at the Norwich Military Academy for the sake of its discipline, which he needed, (see his wild pranks in the autobiography.) But there happened to be no vacancy for West Point from Vermont when GEORGE DEWEY was old enough to be entered. "Otherwise," he says, "I "might have gone into Manila Bay on "an army transport instead of on the "Olympia."

It was through the influence of Senator FOOTE that the Montpelier doctor's son was dispatched to Annapolis to become a famous Admiral. The University of Vermont never made him a Doctor of Laws; it was anticipated by the University of Pennsylvania. GEORGE DEWEY was always true to the Green Mountain State. Woodstock was his favorite summering place, although the records of its County Court show that at the December term in 1854 he and four other boys were solemnly tried (The State versus Lloyd E. Bowers et al.) for singing negro melodies outside a house with intent to break up the hymn singing of a devout Woodstock family. So wicked was the Admiral-to-be.

Another Vermont Admiral of note is CHARLES EDGAR CLARK, he of the Oregon's run round South America and the fight with the Dons off Santiago, in which he took such a gallant part. CLARK was born at Bradford, Vermont, the picturesque town that is mirrored in the Connecticut, very placid at that point. There is nothing in its flow through oxbow meadows and past wooded banks to send a boy to Annapolis with visions, but Vermont cannot help turning out Admirals who do things. Of all her sailor sons Vermont seems to have liked CLARK (also LL. D., Pennsylvania,) the best, for his democratic ways and his modesty. He, too, spends his Summers in Vermont, singular to say on an artificial lake high up on Mount Mansfield, where the simple life is lived at a rustic clubhouse. Vermont will go on producing Admirals as long as Camel's Hump salutes Mansfield and Killington, and historic Champlain reflects the sun at its rising and setting, but DEWEY, CLARK, and MAYO will not soon be surpassed.

SAVING THE GERMAN HONOR.

The German head is bloody but unbowed. A delegation of officers from the cavalry of the guard, gentlemen representing the best families of Prussia, the flower of German chivalry, and the guardians of German honor, on Tuesday afternoon seized the French flags captured in 1870 and in the early years of the present war. By the Treaty which the Germans have said they will sign these flags were to be restored to France; they were already packed for shipment. But the young Siegfrieds took them out to a place before the statue of FREDERICK the Great, soaked them in gasoline, and burned them while the crowd cheered wildly. It was a famous victory.

Every day the Germans are refuting the objections which have been raised by radicals to those clauses of the Peace Treaty which were designed to make the Germans keep their word. Every day they do something to vindicate severity. Nobody wants to keep an army of occupation on the Rhine for fifteen years if it can be avoided; but we begin to see why the French were so sure it could not be avoided. Germany may promise anything, but will perform nothing that she can escape; the German idea of honor is generally involved with the breaking of a promise.

There will be more of this unless it is stopped at once. The best way to head it off would be to include men who have committed such acts in avoidance of the obligations to be imposed by the Treaty—the men who burned the flags, the men who sank the fleet—in the lists of offenders against the laws of war who are to be given up for punishment. There are allied missions in Germany; the culprits can be found. The German idea of honor, particularly a German officer's idea of honor, is strangely similar to that of personal convenience. It is inconvenient to be shut up in prison. If the men who burned the French flags were sentenced to imprisonment after a French court-martial, we should have a somewhat better chance of getting the Germans to live up to the rest of the treaty.

LET THE CZECHS GO HOME.

No doubt a shipping problem of some difficulty is involved in the question of getting the sixty or seventy thousand Czechoslovak troops back from Siberia to their own country; but it is not an insoluble problem, and the honor of every one of the allied nations is involved. These men, as volunteers, risking perils that no troops of the nations recognized as at war with the Central Powers would have to encounter, joined the armies of the Allies to fight for their own liberties. Their heroic record with the Russian troops, their firmness for their own ideals, made them dangerous to the Germans so long as they were in Russia; and the Germans inspired the Bolsheviki to try to put them out of the way.

To the gallant resistance of the Czechs, to their brilliant accomplishments in the struggle which the Bolsheviki had forced upon them, we owe the rescue of Siberia as a refuge for the non-Bolshevist parties of Russia. We have the Czechs to thank for the respite which permitted the establishment of the Omsk Government; that the Bolsheviki and their German aids did not appear in Vladivostok and carry the war to the Pacific a year ago is due solely to the Czechs. And now, after four or five years of war, they want to go home—to their own country, where they are needed to help protect their own popular Government against Bolshevism next door. It is doubtless inconvenient that this splendid fighting element be removed from the Siberian front, but we cannot in decency ask the Czechs to do any more for us; particularly the United States cannot ask it, for we promised to send an army to help them and then ordered our army not to help anybody when it got there. To suggest that the Czechs might fight their way for a few thousand miles across Russia, the Ukraine, and Hungary, after which those of them who were still alive would be at home, is a gratuitous insult, disgracing anybody who proposes it. If we have no interest in the principle of the matter, we might at least send the Czechs home by way of partial repayment of what we owe them.

PROGRESSING BACKWARD.

Senator MILES POINDEXTER of Washington draws a new count in his indictment against President WILSON every day, and sometimes several. It sounds like an echo of the remote past when the Senator says that "the Administration has abandoned our citizens in Mexico to murder and robbery." Whatever exceptions might have been taken by critics to Mr. WILSON's policy in 1913 and 1914, which, notwithstanding Vera Cruz and the Chihuahua invasion, they constantly berated, it is now recognized that armed intervention in Mexico to pacify the country would have greatly embarrassed the United States during the war in Europe. Indeed, the struggle might not yet be ended if we had become involved in Mexico.

As to the present, it cannot be charged with color of veracity that the Administration is abandoning our citizens to murder and robbery; in view of the Juarez incident, still fresh in memory, it seems rather beside the mark in Senator POINDEXTER to demand that "the Republican Party should elect a President "who will fulfill the responsibilities "we have assumed in Mexico and re"assert American honor and self"respect." And the Senator can hardly be sincere when he treats with seriousness "the suggestion that is "now made in some quarters that "Great Britain should be invited to "restore order in Mexico." Of course, it is "false to our fundamental policies," as the Senator says, with an affected show of indignation. From whom did the "suggestion" emanate? Certainly not from any friend of England nor from any supporter of the President.

Mr. POINDEXTER, who boasts of being a progressive Republican, is in reality a narrow partisan who likes to set up a figure of straw and annihilate it with bombast. Mr. WILSON could do nothing that would please him. He sees the President preparing the Filipinos for independence, and wants the islands retained for "mutual ad"vantage of trade and industrial de"velopment," to the glory of the Republican Party, of course. And he sees Mr. WILSON governing Constantinople and Armenia by mandate, and denounces him for thus "abandoning "our responsibilities in the Philip"pines." Mr. POINDEXTER is progressing backward. He desires to be a bedfellow of the most retrogressive of the Old Guard Republicans.

CICERO AND THE OMELETTE.

Having views upon education, it is natural that HENRY ARTHUR JONES should present them in dramatic form. In a wartime household in which the gardener's wife was acting as cook, and engaged in the preparation of an omelette, the gardener's child came home from school with the task of writing an essay on "What You Know About CICERO." The gardener and his wife knew as little as their offspring; so the question was referred to the dramatist, who informed them that CICERO once claimed to have saved the republic by talking. But the means which was the salvation of Rome proved the fall of the omelette. When finally produced, it was "very tough and leathery." This dramatic anecdote serves as text to a very stimulating plea for reality in education, a plea which is as pertinent here, perhaps, as in England.

Mr. JONES's essay began as a letter to the press protesting against a law which prevents children from appearing on the stage. It seemed to him that the young might better be employed in an experience which has given us so many of our great artists of the theatre than in the sort of education which amazes a whole family to the detriment of omelettes—and especially as stage children are amply supplied with chaperons and tutors. But as the idea developed it was seen to be so fundamental and far-reaching that the letter outran newspaper space and became a volume of some three hundred pages. In his racy and vivid manner Mr. JONES describes the futility of so much that passes as education, its waste of the national capital and of the lives of its young victims; truly elementary education would render impossible the crude and bungling workmanship so prevalent today, and the workman's lack of pride in his craft and of allegiance to its morale.

Much the same point has been made, and with equal vigor, by H. G. WELLS, not only in "Joan and Peter," but in a series of original and stimulating letters to The Times of London. In England the intellectual leaders, at least, have learned the lesson of a thorough national preparedness. "Every child in the "kingdom shall be educated in such "a way that whatever physical and "mental powers he possesses shall be "developed to the extent and in the "direction that shall make him most "useful to the State."

Returning American soldiers without number have declared that the war has taught them one thing: the value of an education. In thoughtless comment this has been interpreted as a profession of allegiance to the kind of education that eventuates in a nice appreciation of WALTER PATER and the sonnets of MICHAEL ANGELO. That is not the thought of the soldier. The concrete fact in his mind is that only college men were received at Plattsburg, and that those who rose from the ranks were men of information and training. Whatever may have happened to the intellectual leaders, sundry millions of young Americans have learned the lesson, by no means obvious, that knowledge is power and that men who have achieved their leadership by means of knowledge deserve it.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Arkansas Mosquitos Conquered.

Presumably the Rockefeller Foundation was justified in selecting four towns in Arkansas, rather than others in the neighborhood, say, of this city, as the places where its experts should give a free demonstration of the fact that by the spending of a little money and the use of available knowledge an almost immediate end can be put to malaria and the other fevers of which mosquitos are the distributers. One reason, and a good one, for the selection made is the far greater prevalence of these diseases in Arkansas than in the vicinity of New York, and a second is that in Arkansas there are more people than here who are excusable for not knowing how easy and inexpensive it is to free any region, no matter how numerous or large its marshes, of these most dangerous little beasts.

By using what ought to be the familiar methods by which mosquitos are deprived of their breeding grounds, or rather of their breeding waters, the four towns were freed from both their pests and their pestilence. The cost was 44 cents per capita of population and the result in the one town of Hamburg was a decrease of the malaria cases from 2,312 in 1916 to 59 in 1918. Probably all of the 59 cases were those of people who had come to Hamburg from outside, already infected, or who had departed temporarily from the protected zone and returned to it with the bacilli in their veins. Even if the 59 cases were of local origin, it proves only that a few stretches of stagnant water had been overlooked and the demonstration still is a brilliant success—a lesson that should be heeded in all the many places where such lessons are still needed.

Negligence as Bad as Ignorance.

Malaria is no longer the scourge it used to be in the outlying parts of New York City and in its suburbs, but even now it is not unknown in them, as it should have been long since, and there has been of late an equally reprehensible and stupid tendency in not a few places on both sides of the Hudson to stop the precautionary measures upon which safety depends. The drainage of marshes has been neglected so that the flow of water back and forth with the tides is impeded, and new hollows have been formed where water can collect and remain long enough for mosquitos to breed.

Comparatively few of the insects thus brought into life and activity have had a chance to bite victims of malaria and so to become carriers of the disease, but even without that addition to their terrors they are sufficiently alarming and more than sufficiently troublesome. Their presence detracts appreciably from the joys and benefits that daylight saving confers on residents of the suburbs, and everywhere and always, whether in their most or their least dangerous potency, they are a disgrace to the local health authorities.

No town in this section of the country that has a single mosquito can be acquitted of guilty negligence—not even when the mosquitos are not of its own raising, but come in from across its borders.

Automobiles Kill Too Many.

Secretary HUGO has done well in calling attention to the fact that in the streets of this city, last year, more people were killed by automobiles than were drowned when the Lusitania went down. As he says, this amount of slaughter is intolerable and it should be reduced to the minimum that is, and probably always will be, an unavoidable consequence of the use of motor cars. Both drivers of automobiles and pedestrians are human, and they will never exercise the amount of care required for perfect safety, but real negligence on the part of either is quite another matter, and there can and should be far less of it than there is now.

Conditions in New York, however, are peculiar, and the Secretary of State is probably mistaken in his assumption that our chauffeurs, professional and amateur, are more reckless and homicidal than those in smaller towns and out in the country. The opportunities for accidents are here far more numerous, both relatively and absolutely, than they are anywhere else in the State. In our streets, for one thing, there are daily thousands and thousands of visitors who give less attention than when at home to guarding against traffic dangers, and they are less familiar with our street regulations and habits than they are with their own.

That many, and far too many, of our automobilists do not show the respect for pedestrian rights they should is unquestionable, but the majority of them have learned, or are learning, by painful and expensive experiences, that it is expedient to be decently careful; and it is probable that the element of "contributory negligence" enters in some degree on the part of people on foot in at least half of the accidents to which Mr. HUGO referred.

The automobile is here to stay and there must be a general adjustment to the conditions it creates. The drivers of cars, however, must be taught that blowing a horn gives them no right to run down the person who does not hear or heed it. Pedestrians, on the other hand, have their responsibilities, too, and among their obligations is that of keeping their wits about them while traveling streets necessarily crowded with rapidly moving vehicles.

Americans Are Not Prejudiced.

Major Gen. SIR FREDERICK MAURICE says that while he was over here he found residents of British birth who complained that to their surprise they had been the objects of a prevalent prejudice against the English. The General will make one of his few mistakes in judging Americans if he believes this.

There certainly is in the United States nothing approaching a general and characteristic prejudice against individual Englishmen, whether newcomers or long residents. They are judged wholly on their merits and are treated accordingly by so large a majority of their American neighbors that the exceptions, if there be any, are negligible.

On further inquiry and after closer acquaintance, the General almost certainly would have discovered that, if his complaining informants were disliked, it was not as Englishmen, but because of personal peculiarities that would have justified dislike of anybody who displayed them. He is well aware, and has emphatically said, that he encountered only friendliness while in this country. Yet he is English, unmistakably.

IF OBSTRUCTION WINS

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The round robin of the twenty-six representative Republican citizens reprinted in your editorial article, "Obstruction Reproved," in today's TIMES must have great weight in confirming public opinion in favor of the prompt adoption of the League, and this quite irrespective of party affiliations. In the correct interpretation of the conditions of the covenant, whose opinions and statements are most to be relied upon—men of the probity, standing, and long experience and training in national and international affairs like Messrs. Taft, Straus, Wickersham, Burton, &c., or reactionaries of the type represented by the active politicians of the Borah, Sherman, Reed, and Poindexter class, with Senators Knox and Lodge following in their wake, so to speak? Political exigencies just prior to a Presidential campaign, combined with an overmastering dislike of the President, do indeed make strange political bedfellows, as in the present instance.

And what is the answer or remedy proposed in the event of their succeeding in defeating the covenant in the Senate? How is this scheme to hasten peace with Germany or make for conditions other than confusion worse confounded? Will Mr. Knox or Mr. Lodge or any of the other leaders in their persistent efforts to discredit the President rise in the Senate and explain to an eager and expectant world what result will follow in case they succeed, either in unscrambling the treaty and the League with the more than seventy interlockings of the two in the one covenant, or by attaching the Root qualifying amendment, with a possible effect of rejecting the treaty; or succeed in the attempt of "Silver Dollar" Borah to defeat the ratification of the League outright? What then? When is any kind of European peace and the restoration of economic conditions in suffering and starving Europe to be established by any league of the allied nations, as they say they favor, to become established? Instead of hastening the dawn of peace and industrial progress, as are at least intended and the opportunity provided in the League peace covenant, when do these obstructionists propose their methods will or can do other than indefinitely postpone, and the chaotic conditions of all European peoples continue accordingly? In this process of pulling down, the public has looked in vain for one single redeeming feature of any suggestion whatsoever for building up.

What is the inevitable sequence with any political party or national leaders in public office adopting in time of crisis, as in this instance, a negatively destructive policy?

Apropos of the excellent editorial article in yesterday's (Sunday's) TIMES in reference to the present opponents of the League of Nations will later be found "in the most comprehensive dictionaries of American biography, nothing more than an arid record of the facts that they once existed and held office," we have only to go back to the civil war. The reactionary Democrats under the leadership of the rank "copperheads," like the present reactionaries in the Senate, assumed the most aggressive attitude against President Lincoln, resorted to every device known to the then successful politicians, encouraged the South by repeatedly declaring the war a failure—as the obstructionists in the Senate are now encouraging Germany and heaping undeserved abuse upon President Wilson—and finally culminating in open invective and scandalous charges against Lincoln on the floor of Congress which resounded in the (at that time) reactionary newspapers from one end of the country to the other.

Where are the memory and the records of those "statesmen" today? Echo answers, Where? And history shows that they soon slunk back into oblivion, where they properly belong.

Tanner Indictment Dismissed.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of June 16 you published an item, apparently from Pleasant Valley, N. Y., to the effect I was to be brought to trial at Monticello, N. Y., this week; that immediately after my indictment I had left my Bridgeville charge and gone to Walton, and that I had left Walton and was now located at Ramapo. Your correspondent was misinformed. I did not immediately leave Bridgeville, but remained there in the confidence and friendship of my congregation till the Methodist Conference in April, when I received a call from a church in Walton, where I have been ever since. * * * When my case came up for trial my attorney, John D. Lyons of Monticello, moved to dismiss the indictment because it did not state any facts amounting to a crime, and the Sullivan County Judge granted the motion and signed and entered an order dismissing the indictment, discharging me, and exonerating my bondsmen.

EFFICIENCY.

We heard a knocking, loud enough
To wake the whole community!
But Mother said: "Don't be alarmed,
It may be 'Opportunity.'"

We children ran to greet the guest,
But quick ran back once more.
"O Mother dear," we cried in fear,
"The wolf is at the door!"

She fetched a gun, for she could meet
All troubles with impunity,
And where we only saw the wolf,
She still saw "Opportunity."

All honor to our Mother dear,
And blessings pour on her
Into a Summer Fur!

FEARS BIG LABOR MACHINE.

E. P. Le Prohon Opposes Permanent Federal Employment Service.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—In opposing the establishment of a permanent Federal employment service, E. P. Le Prohon of Salt Lake City told the joint Senate and House Labor Committee today that such a service would become an instrumentality of politics and that if he were at the head of it he could elect a President of the United States. During the war Mr. Le Prohon was in charge of furnishing labor for the Atlantic Loading Company in New Jersey.

The committee decided not to undertake a general investigation of the employment service, members holding that they did not have authority to do so.

An investigation of charges of wastefulness in the expenditure of funds made in the House recently by Representative Blanton, Democrat, of Texas against Director General John H. Desmore will begin tomorrow. At the hearing today Mr. Blanton called witnesses in an effort to show that a person had to be a member of a labor union in order to obtain work in Government bureaus. The witnesses were Miss Mary Cunningham of Plainview, Texas, and J. Raynes Lylstone of Indianapolis.

FRENCH BRIDES ON THE WAY

American Embassy in Paris Kept Busy by Soldiers' Wives.

PARIS, June 25, (correspondence of Associated Press.)—Passport officers at the American Embassy are working day and night providing papers for the French brides of American soldiers who are about to leave for the United States.

Many of the brides are accompanied by the khaki-clad husbands; some bring their mothers with them, and many are alone. In the daily queue at the Embassy are French girls from nearly all the provinces. There are large girls and small girls, beautiful girls and plain girls, simple country girls, unaspiringly gowned, and girls in the rakish hats and short skirts of the Paris boulevards.

Nearly all the brides speak some English, far more English, usually, than the French their husbands have acquired.

One young Sergeant from Wheeling, W. Va., who certainly was not more than 21, forced his way to the passport desk a few days ago with an extremely attractive young girl holding tightly to his arm.

"I've only got two hours' leave and I've simply got to have my wife's passports fixed up because my transport's sailing in three days," he explained.

The passport officer listened patiently to the story which came out in sections as the young couple answered questions.

"You see, my wife's under age," the Sergeant explained, "and her mother changed her mind three times before she let us get married. We got married last week all right, but that old lady is so changeable I'm afraid to start home until I've seen this girl on a transport. That mother-in-law of mine isn't very keen about having her daughter go to America."

MAYOR HYLAN DEFENDS DAY.

Says Profiteers Are Trying to Drive Him Out of Office.

Replying to a letter from ex-State Senator William M. Bennett, wherein charges were made against Jonathan C. Day, Commissioner of Public Markets, Mayor Hyland yesterday wrote that he had ordered Commissioner of Accounts Hirshfield to investigate the matter. In his letter, the Mayor took occasion to praise the efficient work of Commissioner Day, and suggested that food, coal and ice profiteers were trying to drive him out of office. The letter follows:

15 William St., New York City.

Dear Sir: Your letter of June 21st is received. The same has been referred to the Commissioner of Accounts for investigation, and the report that he made in regard to the Plaza Community Club has been referred back in order to give Commissioner Day an opportunity to be heard. A copy has also been forwarded to the Corporation Counsel asking that he aid in the investigation.

If Commissioner Day or any other Commissioner has not conducted his office honestly and to the best interests of the people I shall take action. Since Commissioner of Markets Day has been in office he has made war on the profiteers in foodstuffs and has endeavored to break up the coal, ice, and food combinations that are exploiting the people and charging high prices, and has incurred the enmity of these profiteers, and they are endeavoring to drive him out of public office. If the food, ice, and coal profiteers and traction interests cannot corral and use public officials for their own interests, then their policy is to discredit and drive them out of office.

Full and ample opportunity will be afforded to you and the organization that you represent to present all the facts and proofs that they may have in their possession to the Commissioner of Accounts. Due notice will be given to you of the date set by the Commissioner of Accounts for such hearing.

Very truly yours,
JOHN F. HYLAN, Mayor.

Mr. Bennett, who wrote as counsel of the West Side Taxpayers' Association, said that he hoped the hearing promised by the Mayor would be open to the public. He added that if Mayor Hylan was not inclined to remove Commissioner Day, the latter, as Vice Chairman of the State Council of Farms and Markets, was subject to the jurisdiction of the Governor.

HYLAN APPOINTS KELLY.

Captain Kelly received his commission at the First Plattsburg training camp, served with the 27th Division, and later with the 83d National Army Division. At the time of the signing of the armistice he was an instructor at the machine gun training centre, Camp Hancock, Georgia. When he entered the Federal service he was chief auditor of the liquidation bureau of the State Banking Department.

DE VALERA'S CAMPAIGN.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Now that de Valera really is here, it may be well to consider how careless the community is in the midst of its busy life to the main causes of its troubles.

The allied countries have been suffering from poison propaganda fostered by Germany for the purpose of retarding the progress of the Allies. Since the traitor Sir Roger Casement was landed in Ireland from a German submarine it has been obvious that Ireland's Sinn Fein movement was revived by Germany.

And here is de Valera openly advocating a revolution in a country allied to Britain, supported by a number of the Roman Catholic priests. It seems a disaster that so wonderful an institution and organization as the Church of Rome should allow that portion of its body having influence in Ireland to devote itself to creating a rebellion.

Only a few weeks ago I was in Ireland and never before saw such obvious signs of prosperity. Cottages, farms, and houses in excellent repair and mostly newly painted. A young Irish ex-guardsman next to whom I sat stated that though a Roman Catholic, he regretted that the great neighboring college for the training of Roman Catholic priests was devoting half its time to teaching sedition.

To support the Irish revolutionary movement is to support the object for which Germany worked, part of the scheme that brought trouble with Mexico, in Egypt, India, and produced Bolshevism, bomb throwing and assassin nations of Armenians, and worse, the deliberate killing of all boys between certain ages in Serbia that she might die as a race. Its minor acts include the destruction of the machinery by which Belgium could recover her prosperity after the war.

Every dollar given to this Irish agitation is retarding the peace of the community and is disloyal to the splendid race who have given their lives to retain law, order, and the security of the world.

ALLIED LEADERS HONORED BY OXFORD

Doctor of Civil Law Degree Conferred on Pershing and Hoover.

CHEERS FOR THE AMERICANS

Italian, French, and British Statesmen and Warriors Also Receive Plaudits of Public.

OXFORD, England, June 25, (Associated Press.)—General Pershing and Herbert C. Hoover represented the United States today in a distinguished company of noted men from the allied countries, who were honored today by Oxford University with the degree of Doctor of Civil Law. The ceremony was held in the Sheldonian Theatre. It was the culminating feature of the annual Encaenia, or commemoration exercises.

The event was rich in the ceremonial pomp fostered by the traditions of this famous institution. None of the spectators who crowded the theatre followed the proceedings with keener interest than a handful of American Army students who have been studying here. Among those who witnessed the ceremony was Mrs. Hoover.

Earl Curzon, Chancellor of the University, presided, and, according to custom, solemnly went through the prescribed formula of proposing the degree to the House. After the House had as solemnly granted the degree, the recipients were summoned in turn by the public orator.

Those upon whom the degree was conferred included General Pershing, Mr. Hoover, Baron Makino, head of the Japanese Peace Conference delegation; Marshal Joffre of France, Vice Admiral Sir David Beatty, Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig, Major Gen. Sir Henry Hughes Wilson, Chief of the British Imperial Staff, and Vice Admiral Sir Rosslyn Wemyss, First Sea Lord. Former Premier Orlando of Italy, and Premier Ignace Paderewski of Poland received the degree by proxy.

Each recipient, as he received the degree, bowed his thanks and took his seat. No speeches were made, and the ceremony was ended quickly.

General Pershing and most of the other notable persons present came down from London by automobile this morning. All the invited persons gathered at 11:30 o'clock at Trinity College, where they were received by the Chancellor, Earl Curzon, the Vice Chancellor, and other officials of the university. The procession then formed and marched along the street a few hundred yards to the entrance of the yard leading to the theatre, where the ceremony was held. The general public, unable to gain admission to the building, was packed along both sides of the line of march, keen for a sight of the celebrities. The crowd cheered those they recognized.

Both General Pershing and Mr. Hoover were greeted heartily when the group filed into the theatre. Every seat in the building was occupied. The great audience rose as the distinguished visitors entered and proceeded to their places on the rostrum. The organ played "God Save the King."

After the degrees were conferred the recipients settled back in their seats to hear a young Oriel College student, winner of the Newdegate prize for English verse, recite a composition eulogizing France. The Chancellor then dissolved the convocation and the procession moved out of the building to the music of a stirring march.

American students at Oxford abandoned their plan for an informal reception in General Pershing's honor because of the uncertainty of his ability to leave army headquarters and come to Oxford for the ceremony. Most of the American students left here yesterday for Liverpool and Brest on their way to their homes in the United States. Only thirty of them remained here to take part in a big victory pageant to be given by the university beginning tomorrow.

After leaving the theatre the party proceeded to All Soul's College to attend a luncheon given by officials of the university. Besides those sharing in the degree ceremonies the guests included Major Gen. John Biddle and Col. Lloyd C. Griscom, General Pershing's aids. The luncheon was informal and there were no speeches.

DR. WOOLSEY OVERWORKED.

Efforts While in Army Overseas Led to Suicide, Says Physician.

Close friends of Dr. William C. Woolsey, who committed suicide in his apartments at the Hotel Mohawk on Tuesday, declared that the doctor's act was caused by melancholia, brought on by overwork in France where the physician served as a Major in the Medical Corps, U. S. A.

It has been learned that the young woman who called the doctor when she found Dr. Woolsey's body Tuesday, was the physician's second wife, Mrs. Margaret McElvoy Woolsey, formerly a Red Cross nurse, whom he met abroad. His first wife committed suicide by shooting, while the doctor was in France.

The body of Dr. Woolsey arrived shortly before 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the home of his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Woolsey, 23 Emory Street, Jersey City. The Man Without Protection Loses

Last week it was announced that a firm in New York was robbed of $50,000 when its safe was "blown" by thieves. This burglary could not have been committed if Holmes Protection had guarded the safe.

Last Sunday thieves tried to enter two stores protected by the Holmes System. In each instance the attempted robbery was detected by our alarm and as usual our subscribers sustained no loss. On the same night fires broke out on floors above two Holmes Protected premises. Water used in extinguishing the flames did not damage our subscribers' goods because we were on guard, moving the stock to a place of safety.

GIANTS SPEND BAD DAY IN BROOKLYN

DODGERS BATTING BETTER

Homelike Flatbush Conducive to More Scientific Wielding of Ash by Robbie's Men.

The Giants have discovered that they can't spot the Dodgers six runs and beat them. They tried it over at Ebbets Field yesterday and it didn't work. They only succeeded in sending about four thousand Brooklyn fans home happy in the thought that the league leaders had been soundly trounced by a score of 9 to 4.

It was a bad, bad day for the Giants. They couldn't hit or field or get any reliable pitching until it was too late, for when they finally did settle back into their stride they were so badly out of the running that their cause was hopeless. The Dodgers made six runs in the first inning and it upset the whole club. It so disgusted John McGraw that he sought seclusion in the dugout and remained there for the rest of the day, leaving the field strategy to Matty.

Cecil Causey, the most reliable performer on the New York hurling staff and the author of eight victories this season, was the young man who got the Giants off on the wrong foot. Cecil drew the assignment to pitch against the Dodgers, but most have taken a Cincinnati warmup, which is a couple of tosses of the ball. At least, when he got to the mound he quickly discovered that he had left his box of tricks on the bench.

Brooklyn Bangs Cecil.

Cecil did not remain in the game long enough to get credit for an inning. Three hits rang out in succession off his deliveries and two runs trickled over the plate with nary a man out. McGraw saw Cecil was not fit for the fray and pulled him right out of the game. The pitching burden fell to Ferdie Schupp and he was but a slight improvement. He managed to stay four innings, but it was necessary for the Giants to use four pitchers before they closed up for the day.

Meantime, Larry Cheney was in fine fettle and pitched with skill for seven innings. Better pitching for the Giants might have made the game more interesting, but it is doubtful if the Giants would have scored as many runs as they did had Cheney been pressed to do his best all the way. By the time the eighth inning came around he was breezing along with a seven run lead and he could afford to be lenient.

In the final accounting the Giants made ten hits off Cheney, but up to the eighth they had made but five and these had been scattered over that many innings. They put on a spurt in the eighth and made four more and added another in the ninth. However, their hitting was pretty much wasted after the fatal first inning.

Two victories in a row from the Giants is a lot for the Dodgers this year and it may bring out some of the home folks today. But there was a heavy falling off in attendance yesterday. Those who attended, however, had a pleasant time grilling the Giants. A lot of Brooklyn fans missed a great opportunity that may not come again for a while. Jimmy Fletcher was singled out for special attention and enjoyed some caustic comments.

Robins Have the Range.

The Dodgers are hitting much better since they got back to Flatbush, where they have the range of the fences and a better line on the lights and shadows that are supposed to affect the batting average. When they got started yesterday none of the Giants pitchers could halt them. Tom Griffith and Zack Wheat each getting three blows among the numerous others.

Raymond Schupp, who has been slowly coming back into form, had a flash of his old speed at times yesterday, but he lacked control and when he found himself in trouble he had to put the ball over the plate, with fatal results. However, he did well enough, despite the number of hits made off him, to show that he is rounding into form, and he may have a better day soon.

Oscar Dugan, Causey's successor, when the Dodgers first came to bat, lined a single to left. Causey was not in the least disturbed. But Johnston hit the next delivery smack up against the low wall of the left field bleachers. Burns hurried for the ball but the ball bounded into the intricate draining system that skirts the field and shot along in the ditch until it finally reached the fence and Johnston made the circuit on the blow, Olson scoring ahead of him. Tom Griffith planted the next one against the right field fence for two bases, and Causey was through for the afternoon.

Run Follows Run.

Zack Wheat greeted Schupp with a hot single to centre that scored Griffith, and Myers beat a hit to Doyle when the latter tried for a play at second. Konetchy walked, filling the bases, and Schupp fanned Fitzsimmons. Miller scored Wheat with a long sacrifice fly which Kauff took with one hand, making a pretty running catch. Cheney dropped one just over Chase's head for a single, putting Koney on third, and a passed ball let the big first baseman score a moment later. Olson finally came up for the second time in the frame and put an end to the inning with a pop fly to Chase.

The Giants didn't make a hit until the third inning, when Burns tripled with two out. Young failed to get him home, hitting a high fly to the outfield. In the fourth Doyle angled with one down, but Kauff hit into a double play.

In their half of the fourth the Dodgers made two more. Olson beat a hit to Fletcher, which the latter gathered up back of third base; Johnston filed out, but Griffith, who had already made two hits, cashed a third one, a single to right, which sent Olson to third. Griffith attempted to steal and Fletcher made a wild throw, which let Olson score, and put Griffith on third, from where he tallied on a single by Wheat. Myers forced Wheat and stole second, but Schupp got the side out when Koney came up.

Giants Do a Bit Better.

The Giants swung into their stride in the eighth. Burns, the only Giant to do any real hitting, making a total of three for the day, opened this inning with a double to right. Young singled, and Fletcher hit to Fitzsimmons, who leaped over the ball, and Burns counted. Doyle filed out, but Kauff beat a hit to short, and Young scored. After Barnes, batting for Ragan, had fanned, Chase singled to centre, scoring Fletcher.

The Dodgers were blanked during the time Pat Ragan was in the box, but after Barnes hit for him in the eighth Winters went to the hill and was touched for the final run. Wheat hit one on a line that bounded over Burns's head and went to the fence for a home run. Young got around to third in the ninth on a hunt and a couple of errors, but there were two out when he started, and Fletcher left him there with a long fly to right.

WILD THROW COMES TO AID OF YANKS

Dugan's Error in Ninth Enables Hannah to Score Run That Defeats Athletics, 4 to 3.

For a very long time up at the Polo Grounds yesterday it appeared that Connie Mack's remnants were about to win a baseball game, and from the Yankees, too. Scott Perry, the Quaker pitching ace, was holding the Yankees spellbound, much to the displeasure of the biggest part of 4,000 fans, while Pete Schneider, formerly of Cincinnati and the National League, who was doing the pitching for Miller Huggins, was getting the peppering of his gay young life.

It was thus for eight innings, at which stage of the fracas the Mackmen were in the van by 3 to 1. Then the Yankee bats fell heavily on Mr. Perry and punched home a brace of runs, tying the score. This upset Perry and his cohorts. Where before the entire Philadelphia array had been chock-a-block with fighting spirit, they closed up in the face of the tied score.

Where they left off on Perry in the eighth, the Yankees continued in the ninth, and, with the aid of Joe Dugan, the young Quaker shortstop, won the game. The count was 4 to 3. Dugan's part in the Yankee triumph was a bad one save to Burns for what should have been the third Yankee out in the ninth. The low throw enabled Truck Hannah to dash across the rubber with the winning run.

Peter Schneider was making his American League debut and he got a real christening. Pete was minus a lot of the stuff popularly supposed to be in possession of most pitchers. He was pasted when hits were most harmful to the Yankee cause, and didn't feel at all sure of himself. This was shown in the first when a wild throw by Pete paved the way for the Quakers' initial tally.

This was a bad start for the former Redleg twirler and he never seemed to fully recover. Every inning thereafter Pete had the home rooters' hearts a-flutter. They didn't know at what moment another Quaker run was to be chalked up and it got so that a lot of them didn't care much. Pete was effective after the third inning, however, and gave way to Finch-hitter Al Wickland in the eighth. Al, it might be mentioned, failed to pinch-hit. He skied out to Walker.

Nobody seemed to worry much about Wickland's failure as a hitter. Al has demonstrated before that as a pinch-hitter he's a good outfielder. Samuel Vick started the Yankees on the path to victory by beating out a hit to Shannon. Peckinpaugh rapped one down the middle to right, sending Vick to second. Both runners moved up a peg while Baker was being disposed of at first, and then Duffy Lewis pumped a single to left, scoring Vick, and when Shannon mandled the horsehide Peckinpaugh scored with the tying run. Lewis got as far as second but was marooned when Pipp skied out to Roth.

Dan Boone stilled the Quakers in their half of the ninth, and disposed of the team without any threatening situation arising. After Perry fanned, Witt sent a single to left, but got no farther than first, as Russell fanned Thomas while Pratt threw out Roth.

Perry loomed threateningly on the hill for the Yankees in the ninth. He started by fanning Pratt. Bodie was next thrown out by Dugan. Everything promised for extra innings when Truck ripped a double to left. The ball bounced dangerously close to the foul line at third base and the Mackmen claimed it was fair. The umpires were in a majority, however, so nobody paid particular attention to the shouts which filled the atmosphere. Russell then spilled a grounder at Dugan and reached first safely on the Quaker shortstop's low throw to Hannah. Truck, his time in view of what looked like a sure putout, rounded third slowly. When the ball caromed off the chest of Burns, however, Truck picked up speed again and raced for the plate. He slid into the plate safe with the winning run.

The start of the game wasn't encouraging to the Yankees' admirers. Before Schneider had a chance to get accustomed to his uniform Witt rapped a single to right. Thomas rolled a bunt at Schneider who threw wild to first, Witt taking third. Bodie muffed Roth's sacrifice fly and Witt scored, Thomas making third. Walker then drew a base on balls, and when Thomas attempted to score Pratt quickly whipped the ball to Hannah in time to nip the Quaker third baseman. Burns ended the inning with a pop to Pipp.

Schneider hadn't found the range of the plate in the second inning, so another Philadelphia run was recorded. Shannon fouled out to Hannah and Dugan drew a pass. Then Perkins grounded out to Pipp, Dugan going to second. He raced home from this station on Perry's double to right, but Perry was left stranded when Peckinpaugh threw out Witt.

Schneider got himself into a lot of trouble in the sixth, but snappy fielding saved him. Burns drew a pass and took second on a passed ball and Shannon was also given a ticket to first. The runners advanced on Dugan's sacrifice and when Perkins rapped a grounder at Baker, Burns tried to score. He was retired by Baker and Hannah after a run up and down the base line. Shannon reaching third and Perkins second on the play. The inning ended when Pratt threw out Perry.

The Yankees made the lead of the Athletics just so much easier to hurdle by jamming a run home in the sixth. Vick opened this frame with a single over second to center and took second on Peckinpaugh's hit to left. Baker hit into what looked like a force play on Peckinpaugh, but Umpire Dineen disallowed the play, declaring that he had called time before Baker hit the ball. Baker was subsequently thrown out by Shannon, Vick and Peck moving up a base each. While Dugan was throwing out Lewis, Vick raced home with the Yankees' first tally. Beck took third but remained there while Pipp skied to Witt.

NEWARK GETS TWO FROM MAPLE LEAFS

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, N. J., June 25.—Newark took both parts of a double-header from George Gibson's Toronto Maple Leafs here today, winning the first game, 3 to 2, and the second, 8 to 2. Ed Rommel pitched Newark to a victory in the opening encounter and Dick McCabe was the winning pitcher in the nightcap affair. Newark won the first game in the ninth inning when Letter led off with a triple and scored the winning tally on Cather's timely single to left.

Newark beat John Paul Jones, one of the best pitchers in the league, when they took the second game, hitting him safely fourteen times. Walsh and McCabe each hit safely three times, while Letter and Sargeant got a brace of wallops apiece.

Pound Schacht in Sixth and Win by 4 to 2.

JERSEY CITY, June 25.—After holding the Binghamton players to a pair of scoreless hits in five rounds, Al Schacht's puzzling assortment of curves was solved by Frank Schulte's athletes in the sixth for a collection of five hits, which earned them four tallies and the victory over Bill Donovan's Skeeters by a score of 4 to 2.

Jersey City found Pitcher Martin for two safe hits, but failure to put them where they were most needed resulted in the stranding of eight men on the bases.

TO NAME REFEREE FOR FIGHT FRIDAY

Boxers Agree to Three-Man System—Welch, Brown, and Pecord Are Considered.

TOLEDO, Ohio, June 25.—Selection of officials to decide the heavyweight championship contest between Jack Dempsey and Jess Willard here July 4 will not be announced until Friday.

Postponement in making announcement of the selection, scheduled for tomorrow, was caused tonight by the failure of Adam Empie, Secretary of the Army, Navy, and Civilian Board of Boxing Control, and W. A. Gavin, a member of the Executive Committee, to leave for New York on the train they intended.

Empie and Gavin left at 11 o'clock tonight, but because they will not arrive in New York until 5:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, it will be impossible, they said, to hold a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Boxing Control Board until Friday. The selection of the officials will be formally agreed upon at a meeting and after being ratified by Major A. J. Drexel Biddle, President of the organization, Tex Rickard, promoter of the contest, will be authorized to announce the decision.

A distinct surprise was caused today when it was definitely announced that there would be three officials, two Judges and a referee, to decide the contest. Both Willard and Jack Kearns, manager of Dempsey, had declared they were opposed to the three-man system. Willard's consent was obtained this morning, while Kearns agreed to the proposal at a conference held this afternoon.

While no official announcement has been made, it was learned that the officials likely to be chosen are Jack Welch, veteran referee of San Francisco; Bill Brown of New York, and Ollie Pecord, official referee of the Toledo Boxing Commission, under whose license the Willard-Dempsey match will be staged. Pecord is being considered in the capacity of referee, it was said, while Brown and Welch are expected to be chosen the judges.

The announcement that Willard had agreed to accept the proposal to have three officials decide the contest was a distinct surprise. The champion had previously declared that he was opposed to the three-man system, preferring to trust his chances to the hands of one referee.

"I was open to reason," the champion explained, "and after Mr. Empie and Mr. Gavin had pointed out the advantages of the new system I came to the conclusion they were right. I had feared, before my conference with them, that two judges, sitting outside the ring, would not be in position to see the blows landed and countered."

Empie's formal statement follows:

"I much regret my inability in arriving at a decision in naming the officials for the Dempsey-Willard exhibition. The situation has been found unexpectedly difficult. I am pleased to be able to state, however, that the Toledo Boxing factory to all concerned will almost certainly be reached tonight and Major Biddle will then, on behalf of the board, advise Mr. Rickard by wire in the morning."

Boxing experts were agreed today that Dempsey, in his workout yesterday, showed vast improvement. Perhaps it was because he was celebrating his twenty-fifth birthday, however, the challenger's work was fast and furious throughout. He boxed six rounds and gave Sergeant Bill Tate and the Jamaica kid, negro sparring partners, a severe jolting.

Willard's workout was not impressive. He boxed ten tame rounds and did not extend himself at any time.

Dempsey, who knocked out Sergeant Bill Tate, his giant negro sparring partner, Sunday, all but knocked him out again today. Tate boxed the first of six rounds that the challenger stepped in rotation with the Jamaica Kid, Jack Malone, and himself. He escaped damage in the first round, but in the second his turn to face Dempsey in the third the challenger stepped into a clinch and snapped over a left hook to the chin that dropped Tate to the canvas. Trainer De Forest picked him up and Referee Kelly called time when Dempsey started to put him down for the second time.

Willard boxed eight rounds with his four sparring partners, but did not extend himself except in the two sessions with Walter Monahan, who was severely shaken up with right and left handers to the chin. The champion said he was entirely satisfied with his condition and that he did not care to unnecessarily punish his sparring partners.

TWO PLAYERS REACH SEMI-FINALS IN LONG ISLAND TENNIS TOURNEY

SCORE IN STRAIGHT SETS

Chambers and the Andersons Also Victors in Singles—Contest for Doubles Honors Begins.

S. Howard Voshell and Harold Taylor occupy two of the semi-final brackets of the Long Island tennis championship tournament as the result of their victories at the Kings County Club yesterday afternoon. Both of these stars won their fifth round matches without great effort, the national junior champion allowing S. D. Ward only three games in two sets, while Voshell's score against Jay Anderson was recorded at 6—4, 6—4. The Brooklyn southpaw had already advanced one round through the default of Alex Iler, who found it impossible to replay the match of the previous day, in which he had almost upset the metropolitan title holder. Charles Chambers and the Anderson brothers were the other winners of the day in the singles, and the doubles event was begun, with victories for J. H. Steinkampf and H. H. Bassford, R. J. Gatcomb and E. W. Davenport, and Colwell and W. H. Rosa.

The defeat of Paul Martin by Chambers was a highly creditable performance for the ex-Y. M. C. A. secretary, who has had no chance to get into real form, having entered the tournament immediately on his arrival from abroad. The University Heights man was not quite so steady as usual, but his drives carried plenty of sting, and he kept them consistently close to the side lines. Martin was just able to squeeze out the opening set at 7—5, the high wind interfering with many of his shots, and making accuracy exceedingly difficult. Chambers, however, came back with all the old-time stubbornness of his defense, making some remarkable gets with his short-gripped racquet, and eventually squaring the match with a set score of 6—3.

Fight it Out on Even Terms.

The rubber was an absolutely even battle almost all the way, both players winning on service up to 4—all. Then Martin made his strongest bid for the match by breaking through his opponent's delivery for a love-game, ending with a lightning drive to the middle of the base-line. Leading at 30—0 on his own service, he had a splendid chance to close out the argument, but made a mess of three easy volleys, which, with an error on the back-hand, tied up the set again at 5—all. Chambers served a love-game, Martin overdriving the lines in his anxiety to score. The match game then went to Chambers on errors, with the deciding set record at 7—5.

Frank T. Anderson, the younger of the brothers and last year's winner of the Long Island title, performed well yesterday in his straight-set victory over A. V. Duncan, the hard-hitting Californian, who found it difficult to control his brilliant shots at the start, and was facing a lead of 4—2 before he got well under way. There was a stubborn battle before the youngster succeeded in rolling up an even game, and the match was still deadlocked at 5—all. Here Duncan had an opportunity for a winning break, putting Anderson's service in the hole at 0—40, when the young champion missed three successive golleys as he charged for the net. But Anderson was undismayed at these reverses, and continued his forcing tactics until Duncan in turn fell into errors and lost the crucial game. After the points had twice gone to deuce His narrow escape from disaster put fresh confidence into the junior. He rushed forward for the set at 7—5, and without letting up in his brilliant game for an instant, proceeded to put the second to his credit also, a 6—3 session deciding the match.

Long One Has Easier Match.

The elder and taller of the talented brothers, Fred, Jr., had a far easier time, advancing to the fifth round with a one-sided victory over H. P. Burroughs, who succeeded in capturing only one game in two sets.

The doubles opened with a well contested three-set match, in which the new team of Colwell and W. H. Rosa nosed out the veteran, T. C. Trask, and his partner, R. T. Shearer. The latter combination seemed the stronger, and acquired the opening set without great difficulty at 6—3. But after letting several chances slip, they found the match squared with a hard-fought deuce set. The rubber ran twice to deuce, with all four players exhausted by the time Colwell and Rosa were able to claim the long end of an 8—6 score for the match. Steinkampf and Henry Bassford found little opposition in Ogilvie and Lake of the local club, and the new West Side champions, Gatcomb and Davenport, were going at such speed that they never allowed the strong combination of J. W. Anderson and Kynaston a chance, dropping only one game in each set. Gatcomb was spectacular overhead, with his reverse twist service working well, and Davenport played his usual steady game. The summaries:

BEEKMAN WINS HARD TILT.

Defeats Throckmorton in Middle States Tennis Tourney.

Seichire Kashio became a semi-finalist in the Middle States championship tournament at the Orange Lawn Tennis Club yesterday afternoon when he defeated the club champion, R. P. Bennett, in straight sets, 6—3, 6—2. Dr. William Rosenbaum, E. H. Hendrickson, and Leonard Beekman all entered the fifth round of the singles, the last named scoring a sensational victory over Harold Throckmorton, a former challenger for the title, at 6—4, 9—7. In the doubles Ichiya Kumagae made his first appearance, with Throckmorton as a partner, the new team winning in easy fashion at 6—1, 6—3 over Pitman and Whalen. A start was also made in the ladies' singles.

Beekman's meeting with Throckmorton was the big match of the day, as the latter had been generally picked to come through for another try at the title, which he once nearly wrested from Karl Behr. In the old days, when both of these stars were juniors as well as doubles partners, the Princetonian exercised a species of hypnotic spell over Throckmorton, who at that time was trying to break in as a freshman in the New Jersey university, and, though their matches were fast and furious, Beekman was regularly returned the winner. There was a trace of the old Indian sign yesterday, for Throckmorton this season has more spectacular tennis at his disposal than the Princeton captain, if he can only make consistent use of it. Beekman, however, is master of a better rounded game and also uses his head to greater advantage than does the fiery youth from Elizabeth. He brought all his court experience into play yesterday, with always the extra confidence which was rightly his by virtue of his victories of the past.

He played Throckmorton carefully, knowing his weak spots, and allowing him to make his habitual errors instead of trying to outdo him in the actual earning of points. Throckmorton would have won against a weaker defense, but his terrific bombardment of drives, volleys, and service eventually crumbled before the absolute steadiness and almost equal speed of Beekman. The set scores were 6—4, 9—7.

Dr. Rosenbaum for the second time this season took the measure of Edward Oelsner, the brilliant Chicagoan, winning in straight sets at 6—3, 6—1. Oelsner had previously eliminated Hoffman Nickerson in a hard three-set match, 4—6, 6—4, 6—3, and after holding Rosenbaum off for a long-drawn deuce set, his endurance failed him and he succumbed quickly to the winner's hard and accurate hitting. Hendrickson's advance to the fifth round was made at the expense of Auguste Roche, Jr., whom he defeated in straight sets, 6—3, 9—7.

Bobby Jones Makes Niblick Shot Out of an Old Shoe

NEW ORLEANS, June 25.—Bobby Jones, Jr., of Atlanta, Ga., Southern golf champion, executed what was regarded as perhaps the most peculiar shot in golfing history after he teed off with T. C. Lyons of New Orleans in the first round of match play in the Southern Golf Association tournament here today. Jones's ball landed in a shoe which had been left in a wheelbarrow by a workman, forcing the champion to use a niblick to hole out and halve the hole in four. Jones eliminated Lyons from the tournament, 3 up.

HARMON CAPTURES JUNIOR MET. TITLE

Scottish-American Golfer Defeats Bomann, 4 Up and 3 to Play.

Upsetting the usual tradition that a golfer who wins the qualifying medal seldom comes through in the final round, Peter Harmon, the Scottish-American representative, captured chief honors in the junior championship tournament of the Metropolitan Golf Association over the Siwanoy links yesterday. Harmon, who led the field with a 78 on the first day, defeated George A. Bomann, Jr., of Plainfield, in the final round by 4 up and 3 to play.

An idea of the quality of the golf in the decisive tilt may be gathered by the fact that Harmon reached the half-way point in 38, one over par. There he stood 5 up, his opponent winning only one hole, the fourth on the outward journey. Harmon was getting a long ball, and on more than one occasion drove 300 yards. At the second hole he won in 4, and, despite a sliced tee shot at the 167-yard third, he got a half when his opponent missed a short putt. After that Harmon won the fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, and ninth.

He became 6 up at the tenth, which he won in 4. The eleventh was halved after both players drove the green, but Bomann won the next when Harmon's tee shot landed in the rough. The Plainfield lad also won the fourteenth, when his opponent was short on his second shot, but a half in 6 at the fifteenth, after both got into trouble, settled matters. The card:

Harmon, out	4	4	4	5	5	2	4	5	4—38
Bomann, out	4	5	5	7	6	3	5	4	5—48
Harmon, in	4	3	5	4	5	6
Bomann, in	5	3	4	4	4	6

Both Bomann and Harmon won by comfortable margins in the semi-final round, the champion beating Tobin, of the New York Golf Club, 6 up and 5 to play, while Bomann disposed of J. Berien of Upper Montclair.

The summary follows:

Championship Eight.—Semi-Final Round—George A. Bohannan, Jr., Plainfield, beat James Berrian, Upper Montclair, 4 up and 3 to play; Peter Harmon, Scottish-American, beat T. Tobin, New York Golf, 6 up and 5 to play.

Second Eight.—Semi-Final Round—P. Kountze, Bedford, beat Charles Pierson, Essex Fells, 3 up and 1 to play; H. G. Bell, Scottish-American, beat F. Taussig, St. Andrews, 7 up and 6 to play.

Final Round—Bell beat Taussig, 1 up.

Third Eight.—Semi-Final Round—Charles Sonmer, New York Golf, beat W. Farrell, Scottish-American, 5 up and 4 to play; J. J. Trippe, Apawamis, beat W. Howe, Bedford, 2 up and 1 to play.

Final Round—Trippe beat Sonmer, 4 up and 3 to play.

Fourth Eight.—Semi-Final Round—H. Solomons, Scottish-American, beat R. L. Grimler, New York Newspaper, 1 up; H. F. Furlong, St. Andrews, beat F. Mitchell, Siwanoy, 3 up and 2 to play.

Final Round—Furlong beat Solomons, 3 up and 2 to play.

VALOR WINS HANDICAP.

Beats Good Field in the Hanover at Aqueduct.

Prince Aage of Denmark was the guest of Andrew Miller of the Jockey Club at the Aqueduct race course yesterday, and with many thousands of the untitled enjoyed a typical American day of sport. The feature race, the Hanover Handicap, was won with something in reserve by William Martin's Valor, a chestnut son of Ballot, which with not too much weight to act as a brake turned off the distance on this occasion in the good time of 1:37 3-5.

The full brother to the Futurity winner, Campfire, R. T. Wilson's Thunderstorm, and Valor were the public favorites in the early betting, but at the close Valor was the favorite at 6 to 5. With Callahan up, Valor was the first to show at the barrier, and left it running on his toes, going easier the further he went, so that his backers were never for a moment disturbed. African Arrow led the group next in line, but when he challenged Thunderstorm Ensor, who had been waiting behind the pace, had no trouble in supplanting African Arrow and moved up to second place.

No fewer than fifteen faced the starter for the first race, a sprint of six furlongs. Although he bled the last time out, the Kentucky Stable's Right Angle was most in demand and he did not prove disloyal to his supporters. Getting off rather slowly, Alvord set the early pace, but getting through next the rail under masterly handling by Pator Right Angle darted to the front and won without being ridden out.

Fencing and running as nicely as when he won on the first day of the recent United Hunts meeting, Mrs. Payne Whitney's Syosset won the steeplechase in a manner to justify his position of a 1 to 2 odds-on favorite. Nicely placed by Powers, Syosset moved up when asked and won by a length and a half, eased up, from Skibbereen, which made his run just before the last jump, but took the obstacle in a slovenly manner. Castoff from that stable, Neddam, which is Madden with a reverse English, had a fine group of supporters, and after racing with Ral Parr's Anzac and Mr. Laddie in the stretch he won handily. Anzac gained the place as easily from My Laddie. Troxler, who rode the latter, lodged a complaint against Neddam for being crossed shortly after the start, but it was not allowed.

Tenons Bon was the warmest sort of a fancy for the fifth race and probably carried as many wagers as the actual favorite, Ting-a-Ling. Ballast, owned by J. E. Griffith, who owns that champion steeplechaser, The Brook, was off in front and was the easiest of winners. Tenons Bon chased Ballast with a rush, but the long pursuit was fruitless. When Tenons Bon quit Ting-a-Ling made his run, but could never get up, while Ivry finished strong in third place. H. T. Oxnard's The Young Cavalier, with Schuttinger up, sent the throng away smiling, for he justified public opinion by winning as a favorite should. Rating along in third place until the three-quarters, The Young Cavalier then came through and fought it out in a drive with the early pacemaker, Leading Star, a 12 to 1 shot. Leading Star's lead of two lengths was quickly cut down by The Young Cavalier, who gained an advantage of half a length at the seven-furlong post and won handily by a head.

PRINCETON GOLFERS WIN COLLEGE TITLE

Take Intercollegiate Championship Easily, with Harvard and Yale Following.

PHILADELPHIA, June 25.—Princeton won the championship of the Intercollegiate Golf Association today by the comfortable margin of thirty-one strokes. The Tiger Quartet had a team total of 1,335 strokes for their four rounds of the Merion Cricket Club's championship course.

The Orange and Black linksmen were so far ahead at the end of the third round that it was obvious they could not be headed, barring a complete collapse by the entire team. Because of this interest shifted to the keen battle for second place between Yale and Harvard, this turning out to a single stroke. Sidney Scott, the youthful Eli, who made such a fine showing at the Wilmington tournament last week, chucked the Blues' chance for victory away by taking a seven on the sixteenth hole. A five, the usual figure for the sixteenth, would have given second place to the New Haven aggregation by one stroke.

Harvard had a total of 1,336, while Yale's was 1,367. Pennsylvania was fourth, with 1,410; Columbia, fifth, with 1,489, while Williams was a bad sixth, with 1,513.

Individual honors went to A. L. Walker, Jr., the Columbia Captain, who averaged eighty for a grand total of 320 for his four rounds. T. B. Davis, the Yale skipper, was a close second, with 323 for his seventy-two-hole grind. R. W. Woolworth of Princeton was third, with a total of 328. None of the others broke 350.

J. S. Dean, the Princeton Captain, who won the qualifying round medals at the recent Lynnewood Hall and Wilmington links matches, fell by the wayside, and took 337, being beaten by five strokes by Sidney Scott, who had a card of 332.

The scores ran high today, the young contenders playing as if they had become stale. The best card of the day was a 78 in the afternoon by C. W. (Sonny) Baker of Harvard. He had a total of 180 for the first two rounds, but came back yesterday with an 80 in the morning, and a 78 in the afternoon. His remarkable work made it possible for the Cambridge clan to beat out the Bulldogs.

Out	4	4	5	5	5	3	3	5	3—37
In	5	4	4	4	6	5	4	5	4—41—78

Walker, the Columbia star, who is a former metropolitan interscholastic champion, displayed a very consistent brand of golf throughout the seventy-two holes. Starting today with a total of 158 for the first day's play, he reeled off an 80 in the morning and an 82 in the afternoon session. A 7 on the eleventh and a 6 on the sixteenth prevented him from breaking 80 in the afternoon.

His card of today follows:

MORNING ROUND.

Out	5	6	6	5	4	4	2	4	5—40
In	5	4	5	2	4	5	5	3	4—40—80

AFTERNOON ROUND.

Out	5	5	5	6	4	5	3	3	4—40
In	5	7	5	5	4	6	5	4	5—42—82

The qualifying round for the individual championship of the association will be run off tomorrow morning, and the first round of match play will be staged in the afternoon. The second and semi-final rounds will be fought Friday, and the thirty-six hole final will be decided Saturday.

Sixteen players will qualify for the championship flight, while there will also be a second sixteen to keep the also-rans busy while the big event is being decided.

The summary of the team championship:

CHAMPION CUP GOES TO ROYAL DIAMOND

"American mounts for American polo players" was the motto back of the first American show of polo ponies, held with great success yesterday at the Meadow Brook Hunt Club. Over 300 animals, all bred and fit for the game, including stallions, mares, weanlings, yearlings, two-year-olds, three-year-olds and novice and "made" polo mounts were evidence that America has the foundation stock, and that the motto is to be worked out with business efficiency was shown by the organization of the National Polo Pony Society during the luncheon hour which is to print a stud book and encourage the newest line of American livestock industry.

Every prominent polo or hunting man on Long Island and the women of their families were present except August Belmont and H. P. Whitney, but the latter furnished two of the winners, which were ridden by his son, Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, so it is evident the affair had fashionable support. The setting was a delightful one, the ring being placed between the big field used in the international matches of 1909, 1911, 1913 and 1914, and the new Westerly Field, the gift of Alex. Smith Cochran, and just opened for play. A bank of turf shaded by trees made a natural grandstand for the women and casual onlookers, while the officials of the show were in under a canopy, among them H. L. Herbert, William A. Hazard and James C. Cooley. Major Robert E. Strawbridge was the sole judge of the breeding classes in the morning, but he requested Lieut. Col. Jack Giffard of the British Army to be his coworker in the afternoon for the riding classes. Harry H. Holmes was ring manager.

The value of the American polo stock was revealed by the breeding of the different classes shown under saddle. The class mounts likely to produce polo ponies was won by the thoroughbred, Angel Face, a 4-year old, exhibited in the name of Mrs. Edward H. Carle, daughter of Oakleigh Thorne, M. F. H. of the Millbrook Hunt, but she sold the nag before the judging to Thomas Le Boutillier, who will play the filly when more mature. He paid a price close to $1,000 and was being congratulated as "some picker," by his friends, for after the victory Angel Face at least doubled in value. Eugene S. Reynal had the mount.

The middle weight polo pony class, also a large and cosmopolitan one, went to H. F. Whitney's English mare, Royal Diamond, Mr. Whitney's son riding, with the California mare, Selina, owned and ridden by Stoddard, 2d. Royal Diamond was an unbeaten winner in England and said to have been the best of her time when Whitney bought her for $10,000 from the Duke of Westminster in 1916. War had spoiled Royal Diamond's usefulness at home and the Duke needed the cash for his Red Cross work, it was reported at the time.

The Champion Cup was won by Royal Diamond, with Selina in reserve. All the first and second ponies in the riding classes took part.

After luncheon H. L. Herbert, as temporary President, called the meeting to organize the National Polo Pony Society to order. The details of incorporation and organization were left to a committee of nine, as follows: F. S. von Stade, Chairman; J. W. Webb, Q. A. Shaw, Robert E. Strawbridge, L. E. Stoddard, H. T. Peters, J. C. Cooley, Secretary; D. S. Ingalls, and Horace Havemeyer. The awards follow:

A DISCOVERY THAT BENEFITS MANKIND

Two discoveries have added greatly to human welfare.

In 1835 Newton originated the vacuum process for condensing milk with cane sugar to a semi-liquid form.

In 1883 Horlick at Racine, Wis., discovered how to reduce milk to a dry powder form with extract of malted grains, without cane sugar.

This product HORLICK named Malted Milk. (Name since copied by others.) Its nutritive value, digestibility and ease of preparation (by simply stirring in water) and the fact that it keeps in any climate has proved of much value to mankind as an ideal food-drink from infancy to old age.

ARMY MONEY BILL PASSED BY SENATE

NOW GOES TO CONFERENCE

WASHINGTON, June 25.—The Army Appropriation bill, carrying $888,000,000 and providing for an average army of 400,000 men next year—an increase over the House bill of $171,000,000 in funds and 100,000 in personnel—was passed late today by the Senate without a roll call and sent to conference.

Before passage of the bill, Senator Fall, Republican, of New Mexico, withdrew his amendment to declare the war with Germany and Austria at an end, explaining that he expected action within a day or two on his joint resolution to the same effect as regards Germany now before the Foreign Relations Committee.

The Senate, following disposal of the army measure, began consideration of the annual Naval Appropriation bill, carrying $646,272,000, an increase of $45,000,000 over the House bill. Passage of the naval bill tomorrow is desired, and leaders, in their effort to enact all appropriation bills needed by July 1, plan then to rush through the $500,000,000 sundry civil budget.

Final vote on the army bill was delayed temporarily by protracted discussion of the Peace Treaty and League of Nations. In this connection Senator Borah, Republican, of Idaho, opposed the increase of the army for 1920 from 300,000 to 400,000 men, but without a record vote the Senate approved the 400,000 provision, which is estimated to give pay and subsistence for 322,000 men in the army after next September.

As passed by the Senate, the principal items of the army bill are $215,885,000 for army pay, $523,991,000 for subsistence and transportation, $54,400,000 for aviation, an increase of about $30,000,000 over the House appropriation; $12,215,000 for the National Guard, $19,000,000 for ordnance, and $45,000,000 for storage and shipping facilities.

The Senate reduced from $3,280,000 to $2,660,000 the appropriation for purchase of the Dayton Wright Aviation Field at Dayton, Ohio, under an amendment by Senator Lenroot, Republican, Wisconsin, which also stipulates that not more than $1,000,000 shall be spent in acquiring 1,500 additional acres of land adjoining the Wright field, after appraisement and recommendation by an army board.

Another amendment adopted and reapproved would limit the salary of C. W. Hare, in charge of disposal of surplus war supplies, to $12,000 a year, a reduction of $13,000 from Mr. Hare's present salary.

A proposal by Senator McKellar, Democrat, Tennessee, to strike out a provision for bonuses in Government arsenals was defeated without a roll call.

The proposal to make permanent the rank of General conferred upon General Pershing early in the war failed on a point of order.

Look for Conference Fight.

House conferees on the Army bill will fight obstinately three definite changes made by the Senate, according to Julius Kahn, chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee. Mr. Kahn said he was positive the House would support objection by its conferees to the proposals made by the Senate to increase the strength of the army, to increase the aviation appropriation and to permit the War Department to buy camp sites already contracted for.

There will undoubtedly be compromises. For one thing, Mr. Kahn indicated that the House conferees might accept an appropriation of from $25,000,000 to $35,000,000 for army aviation, the Senate having set a figure of $35,000,000, as contrasted with the House appropriation of $15,000,000. Ever since the House made this small appropriation for the army air service members have been flooded with letters of reproach.

ATTERBURY APPEALS FOR A STRONG ARMY

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., June 25.—An appeal for a strong army to be established immediately as a barrier against future aggression and to carry warfare into an enemy country, if need be, was made tonight by Brig. Gen. W. W. Atterbury, in an address at the Union League, where he was a guest of honor.

It was General Atterbury's first public speech since his recent return from France. He did not hesitate to criticise what he called past neglect, declaring "there is nothing we had done prior to our entry into the war for which we have any reason to be proud." He said the nation should be proud of what was done by but one man, Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, in his advocacy of preparedness.

He said the attitude of the country toward preparedness before America entered the war was "a shameful exhibition of the lack of ordinary precautions to safeguard the country, which in counterpart, if permitted in ordinary business, would spell ruin."

The Nation cannot be re-made along the same lines that existed before the war, he said. A new picture must be drawn, and in the remaking force must be used, "and, no matter how great the sympathy or honesty of purpose of those now engaged in its reconstruction, the new composite will be one of which time alone can fill in the interstices."

The aftermath of the war will be a train of bitterness, he said, which will be greater than the bitterness engendered between France and Germany over Alsace and Lorraine. There has been forced on the United States, General Atterbury said, a position which has drawn this country into the maelstrom of international politics, and the situation must be met in such a way as to protect the best interests of the United States.

Mr. Atterbury suggested the establishment of a national defense board, paid high tribute to the National Guard, opposed the use of militia in labor controversies, and paid a glowing tribute to Gen. Pershing, "upon whose broad shoulders were thrown the responsibility and burden of our army abroad—a responsibility such as was borne by no other commander in chief—a personal responsibility so great that even with the lapse of time the wonder still is with me that he could carry it all."

General Atterbury also paid tribute to General Harbord, who, "having made a gallant record in the field, later and equally successfully served as commanding general entirely responsible for the procurement, distribution and maintenance of supplies."

The two generals, he said, were largely responsible for the success of the American expeditionary force.

DECLARES IRELAND OPPOSES TREATY

SENDS MESSAGE TO MEXICO

TELLS OF WIDE CAMPAIGN

Canada and Australia Are to be Asked to Support the Proposed Loan.

The treaty of peace, just about to be signed, will not have the sanction or the moral support of the recently organized Sinn Fein Republic of Ireland, according to Eamonn de Valera, President of the Sinn Fein Government. The Germans may take their pens in hand and settle for all time the late German Empire after much protesting, but the Sinn Fein Republic, having registered its protest to Clemenceau a month ago, will not be bound by the treaty. The reason the treaty cannot have any particular significance for Irish people, as explained yesterday by Professor de Valera at his headquarters in the Waldorf-Astoria, is that Lloyd George and the rest of the British delegation had no authority to sign anything for Ireland.

The position of Professor de Valera's "Government" with respect to the treaty was disclosed in a letter to Premier Clemenceau, a letter which M. Clemenceau has failed up to the present to acknowledge or answer. This is the letter which Dr. de Valera gave out yesterday:

Mansion House,

To M. Clemenceau, President de la Conference de Paris:

Sir—The treaties now under discussion by the Conference or Paris will, presumably, be signed by the British plenipotentiaries claiming to act on behalf of Ireland as well as Great Britain. Therefore we ask you to call the immediate attention of the Peace Conference to the warning which it is our duty to communicate, that the people of Ireland, through all its organic means of communication, has repudiated and does now repudiate the claim of the British Government to speak or act on behalf of Ireland, and consequently no treaty or agreement entered into by that Government in virtue of that claim is or can be binding on the people of Ireland.

The Irish people will scrupulously observe any treaty obligation to which they are legitimately committed but the British delegates cannot commit Ireland. The only signatures by which the Irish nation will be bound are those of its own delegates deliberately chosen.

We request you to notify the Peace Conference that we, the undersigned, have been appointed and authorized by the duly elected Government of Ireland to act on behalf of Ireland in the proceedings of the Conference and to enter into agreements and sign treaties on behalf of Ireland.

GEORGE NOBLE

Professor de Valera, before handing out copies of the letter, read it over and remarked that he thought it was particularly timely, as the treaty was just about to be signed.

Sends Message to Mexicans.

Another touch of the international cropped out during the day, when Dr. de Valera, complying with the request of a representative of El Heraldo de Mexico, a Mexico City daily, gave out a "message for the people of Mexico." The communication was as follows:

"I sincerely hope that the people of Mexico will finally compose their domestic differences and as children of the same mother" (presumably a reference to the Catholic Church) "combine to exalt that mother. Having established a government of the people by the people, let them give it due obedience. That is a necessary condition of progress and ordered peace."

Professor de Valera began to work on his heaped-up correspondence yesterday morning just as soon as there was light enough to guide his pen to the inkstand. Incidentally, Dr. de Valera asked that his sincere thanks be extended to the thousands who had written him wishing success to him and to his adherents.

Later in the morning, when the sun was higher and the pile of correspondence lower, Dr. de Valera was accessible for interviews. One of the first things he made known was the fact that the campaign for a liberated Ireland was to be conducted in Canada and in Australia as well as here. As Dr. de Valera said: "We have sympathizers just as strong in those places as we have in the United States and we can float a portion of our loan in those two countries."

It appeared as if the stress which had been placed on the Irish loan annoyed Dr. de Valera, because he made it evident that his main mission here was to get official recognition for Ireland. "And if I cannot get it from the American Government," he said, "I hope to get it from the American people."

"This is the most suitable time to get a proper League of Nations started," he remarked, turning to that topic, "and I wish it understood that I am not against a League of Nations, but in favor of a real league, a proper league, and I believe that the present covenant should be amended, particularly Article 10. As an amendment to that article there should be substituted an obligation on the part of the league members that it hold no nation in its dominion against the will of the people, hold no people in bondage. If England had freed Ireland at the outset of the war, the world would have been assured of England's sincerity that it was fighting for the freedom of small nations."

By the time the night talking period came around the news was out that the Waldorf in a short time would have three Presidents under its roof. On the eleventh floor, of course, would be Dr. de Valera, down on the third are the rooms of Dr. Epitacio Pessoa, President-elect of Brazil, and reservation has been made for President Wilson on the fifth floor, it was reported. Dr. de Valera was asked if he expected to meet Dr. Pessoa and President Wilson, and he said he would be "glad to discuss Ireland's cause with any one."

While there seemed to be some doubt whether the three Presidents would get together, one thing was settled—the Sinn Fein chieftain is going to call on Mayor Hylan, and he may go down today. The Mayor is now considering a suggestion that July 5 be observed as a holiday in recognition of the Sinn Fein republic and also giving thought to a suggestion that the Sinn Fein green, yellow, and white be flown over the City Hall on that day.

Speaking of the action of the Board of Aldermen in granting him the freedom of the city, Professor de Valera recalled that Limerick did the same thing, but he had not availed himself of the privilege, because he thought "the people might make a demonstration, and this would be seized upon by the British soldiers." He laughed when he was reminded that the chances of agents-provocateurs being in City Hall Park were slim.

Dr. de Valera also said that he intended to leave on Saturday for Boston, where on the following day he will address a mass meeting called to discuss Irish freedom. A group of Bostonians telegraphed the invitation yesterday. On the way, in obedience to a request, he will speak at Providence from the rear coach of his train. Another journey of the near future would be to Indianapolis, he said.

Dr. de Valera last night distributed the diplomas awarded to the young graduates of the Carmelite School, 338 East Twenty-ninth Street. The rector of the Carmelite parish, the Rev. Peter A. Magennis, is President of the Friends of Irish Freedom. The hall was packed and there was a big crowd outside to welcome Dr. de Valera. Dr. de Valera made a short speech and was cheered heartily.

Just before departing with Dr. de Valera for the graduation exercises, Harry J. Boland, Sinn Fein Member of Parliament for South Roscommon, acting as Dr. de Valera's secretary at present, referred to the presence of Dr. Pessoa in the same hotel with Dr. de Valera and said it reminded him of the old traditions handed down in the Emerald Isle. Some people, he said, called them superstitions, but this was wrong, because they were really traditions.

At any rate, superstition or tradition, it seems that ages ago, presumably just after the Druids and just before the fairies inhabited Ireland, there was current a legend having to do with "Hy Brasil"—that is hte English spelling of the Gaelic word—which meant a paradise or a heaven westward over the then unsailed seas. The legend ran that in that land, Hy Brasil, there would develop a movement that meant the freedom of Ireland.

Mr. Boland marked it as a curious coincidence that the President-elect of Brazil should be in the hotel and that the Sinn Fein flag and the colors of Brazil should both run strongly to orange and green. Another tradition that has been told and retold through the generations was that Ireland would be free when "the east wind blew off Bantry." And only recently, said Mr. Boland, the wind had blown on Bantry from that direction.

"It is the telling of such traditions," he added, coming down through time, and the full belief the common people give them, that gives the Irish their invincible spirit and will keep them so until they have finally achieved their independence."

O'Ceallaigh and Duffy Present to Peace Conference Further Claims for Recognition.

PARIS, June 25.—A supplementary memorandum regarding Ireland's claim to recognition by the Peace Conference was presented today to Premier Clemenceau, along with a letter from Edward de Valera, Arthur Griffith, and Count Plunkett.

In forwarding the memorandum, Sean O'Ceallaigh and George Cavan Duffy, the Irish delegates here, suggested that they, being now in Paris, were ready to act as Ireland's representatives if the Peace Conference were unable to grant safe conduct to the delegation previously named.

50 FLIERS TO GREET READ.

Officers at all the army and navy aviation fields within airplane radius of this port had completed their plans last night for the great air squadron of at least fifty planes that is to fly to sea to greet Lieut. Commander A. C. Read of the crew of the NC-4 and the other members of the NC seaplane expedition under Commander J. H. Towers when they return on the steamship Zeppelin tomorrow afternoon. It is expected that the vessel will dock at Army Pier 2, Hoboken, about 8 o'clock in the afternoon.

Although the army planes may not go so far out, all the navy seaplanes and the dirigibles will fly at least 150 to 200 miles out to sea to greet the men who were first to fly over the Atlantic Ocean. Lieutenant David Mount, aid in command of aviation in the Third Naval District, said yesterday he expected at least eight seaplanes would be in the squadron.

The C-4, the scouring dirigible at the naval air station at Rockaway Beach, will go out, accompanied by the smaller dirigible at the station. Dirigibles at Montauk Point will sail as far as Nantucket Light, and in returning they will form a squadron with the other dirigibles and probably fly in formation over the city after the Zeppelin has reached her pier.

As many as twenty army airplanes may go from the army aviation fields on Long Island. At least six planes will leave the Hazelhurst, or Roosevelt, Field at Mineola, and as many more from Mitchel Field, under command of Colonel Archie Miller. A bombing plane, piloted by Lieutenant Melville Stanley, will accompany them.

The Aero Club of America had reported yesterday that at least fifteen airplanes owned by manufacturers or by sportsmen would go out to meet the ship. One of the fliers will be Lieutenant Kenneth M. Murray, who flew 140 miles from Atlantic City to Farmingdale, L. I., on Tuesday.

The book will be non-technical so that laymen can readily understand it.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Postmaster General Burleson was called upon, through a resolution introduced in the House today, to give information concerning the loss of mail when a postal airplane was destroyed by fire between Cleveland and Chicago on or about May 24. The resolution originated through complaints made by the Harriman National Bank of New York, which believes that some of its mail, containing checks and drafts worth $63,000, was lost at the time.

Representative Steenerson of Minnesota, Chairman of the Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads, who introduced the resolution, asserts that it has become the practice of the Postmaster General to forward mail by airplane without the desire, knowledge, or consent of the sender. J. W. Harriman, President of the bank in question, describes himself in correspondence as being "hot under the collar" that the Post Office Department should "hazard bank mail in experiments." In a telegram to Senator Wadsworth of New York Mr. Harriman asked:

"Why was this loss mysteriously covered up from the banks, not even being reported to the press, so that the banks could protect themselves, with their customers, against possible loss and inconvenience?"

The correspondence in the case, as made public by Mr. Steenerson, apparently begins with a telegram sent June 12 by Mr. Harriman to Postmaster General Burleson, reading:

"On May 24 our mail to Chicago, containing 210 cash collection items aggregating $63,000 odd, was not received by our corresponding banks, and has presumably been lost or destroyed in the mail. Inasmuch as we are credibly informed that the mail of several large New York banks was destroyed in an airplane accident en route from New York to Chicago on or about the same time, please advise if any New York City mail was carried by the said wrecked airplane. A prompt answer will oblige."

"A High-Headed Outrage."

Letters from postal authorities at New York were sent to the bank, asserting that search was being made. On June 13 Mr. Harriman telegraphed again to the Postmaster General as follows:

"By what authority has the Post Office Department the right to hazard bank mail in experiments? I consider it a high-handed outrage. In any event, why was not the loss reported as the banks could have an opportunity to protect themselves? Please answer, as this is to be reported to the press."

A telegram to the Harriman Bank from Otto Praeger, Second Assistant Postmaster General, sent under date of June 13, reads:

Mr. Harriman sent a telegram to Senator Wadsworth, June 14, in part as follows:

"This seems to be a new Burleson game, and I ask that you investigate, so that a repetition of the offense may not be in order."

A letter sent to the Harriman Bank on June 19 by John C. Koons, First Assistant Postmaster General, said the Post Office Department was "earnestly striving to eradicate any existing evil in the service and to render all of the postal service that is necessary and of such a character as the business interests may require. With this object in view, meritorious criticisms and legitimate complaints are invited as a means of disclosing irregularities which should be eliminated."

"I do not believe that any further comment is necessary just at this time, but I can assure you that if I cannot get satisfaction I will go further.

"I am very hot under the collar over this matter, and I cannot yet understand why the Government lends itself to experiments with valuable mail and when accidents occur, endeavors to hide the performance and give misleading accounts of losses.

"We have suffered to a considerable extent, due to this experiment, which ended so disastrously, and I cannot even get the assistance of those in your Department who are responsible for the loss."

At the same time Mr. Harriman enlisted the services of Representative Steenerson and sent copies of the correspondence to Senator Townsend, Chairman of the Post Office Committee.

According to Mr. Steenerson, postal plates have been carrying mail without special stamps for some time. This is done in place of carrying ballast, he stated, whenever the amount of special mail is below the plane's capacity.

Text of the Resolution.

The resolution offered by Mr. Steenerson follows:

"Resolved, That the Postmaster General be, and he is hereby, requested, to furnish to the House the following information, to wit:

"First, whether, on or about May 24, 1919, according to the reports and information in possession of the Department, letters mailed by the Harriman National Bank of New York to the Federal Reserve Bank, Chicago, Ill., the Illinois Trust and Savings Bank, Chicago, Ill., and the Union Trust Company, Chicago, Ill., alleged to contain drafts and checks and papers to the amount of $63,000, were, after having been mailed in New York without the consent of the sender, placed in an airplane for transportation to Chicago, which airplane, together with said mail, was destroyed by fire on the way to its destination.

"Second—What, if any, statutory or other authority exists or is claimed to exist for transporting or attempting to transport mail by airplane, without airplane stamps affixed.

"Third—To what extent and under what circumstances the practice prevails for transporting mail by airplane, without special stamps.

"Fourth—By what authority has mail matter, without special stamps or extra postage, been placed in airplanes for transportation.

"Fifth—Whether, after the discovery of the loss of said mail, referred to in Paragraph 1 above, by the bursting of the airplane containing the same, the department refused or neglected to inform the said Harriman National Bank of New York of the facts in regard thereto.

"Sixth—Whether the practice of transporting mail by airplane, without the consent of the sender, expressed by the presence of special aero mail stamps affixed, is the established policy of the department.

"Seventh—Under the rules of the department, what precaution can the sender of mail take to prevent the same being exposed to the hazards of aero mail transportation?"

OSSINING, N. Y., June 25.—John McGlynn, a newly-arrived convict at Sing Sing prison, was mortally wounded today, when Albert Gerguilo, a "lifer," stabbed him in the back and neck, severing his spinal cord. The attack was the sequel to a feud between the men when they lived on the west side of Manhattan along Tenth Avenue, according to prison officials.

The attack took place on the second floor of one of the inner prison buildings, used by the outside construction honor men as a sort of rest room. McGlynn, who had arrived a few hours before, was invited by some of his fellow-prisoners to go with them to this room. In some unknown way Gerguilo got into the building just behind his old enemy. As McGlynn was mounting the last few steps of the stairway leading to the second floor, Gerguilo began slashing him in the back and neck.

McGlynn fell to the floor and Gerguilo was overpowered by other prisoners and turned over to the guards, who, attracted by McGlynn's screams, hurried to the wounded man. McGlynn was taken to the prison hospital, where he was treated by Dr. Amos O. Squire, the surgeon. Warden Brophy sent for Assistant District Attorney Walter Ferris and Coroner Robert P. Jones, who took the wounded man's statement. Gerguilo was placed in close confinement.

The prison authorities are uncertain what kind of instrument Gerguilo used, as he threw it away before he was overpowered. It is believed he used a table knife, which he had obtained in the dining room at meal time.

Warden Brophy's action in summoning outside officials caused considerable comment, as it was a distinct departure from the policy of previous regimes. As a rule, other wardens ignored outside public authorities.

CAPTAIN TURNS ON MRS. HUMISTON

NO LICENSE FOR DANCE HALL

Woman Lawyer Says License Commissioner Told Her She Didn't Need One for Her Club.

Mrs. Grace Humiston, whose investigations in connection with the Cruger case two years ago led to the arrest of Alfredo Cocchi, the girl's alleged slayer, was arraigned yesterday in Washington Heights Court on a charge of violating Section 1490 of the Penal Code, which prohibits operating a dance hall without a license. After Mrs. Humiston, her lawyer, Miss Rothenberg, and three witnesses had been heard, Magistrate William Sampson reserved decision until next Wednesday, when briefs will be presented by the defendant.

The charge was made by Police Captain Patrick Gargan of the 123th Street Precinct, in which is situated the bicycle shop of Alfredo Cocchi, in whose cellar Mrs. Humiston found Ruth Cruger's body after the police had reported that it was not there. Captain Gargan also stated in court yesterday that there were present at this "dance hall" at 70 Manhattan Street "vicious loafers" whom he had often seen congregating on street corners and who on the night of his sudden entrance into the hall were seen dancing with girls, some of whom were not more than 15 years of age.

Mrs. Humiston said that the hall had been hired by her, there to house the Be Kind Club, which she said she formed for the purpose of educating and entertaining the young folks of that district. There were to be lectures, classes in athletics, dancing, and the maintenance of a "nursery home" during the day to relieve the mothers of caring for their children when necessary.

The "club" was opened on June 17. It was said, at which a lecture was followed by a dance. A charge of 5 cents was charged each participant in the dancing to help defray the cost of rent, lighting, &c. It was also thought advisable to run another dance for last Monday night, but before doing so a license was sought by the lawyer. She asserted that, after explaining the nature of the dances to Commissioner Seabecker of the Bureau of Licenses, he told her that he did not believe a dance license was necessary, and that the police would not molest them if the dance were to take place that night. With that assurance, she said, the dance was held. A large sign announcing it had been placed at the doorway on Saturday afternoon, she added, and it had remained there until Monday night.

While the dance was in progress, she said, Captain Gargan entered and after being told that she had no license ordered that the dancing be stopped. This was done, the people filed out quietly, and a little later the Captain arrived with two policemen and also a summons for Mrs. Humiston.

After examination by Miss Rothenberg in court yesterday, Captain Gargan admitted that perhaps the young men were not vicious, but he remembered seeing them on street corners. Mrs. P. H. Halland, one of the witnesses, testified that Gargan was very insulting to Mrs. Humiston and acted in a way not fitting a member of the Police Department. She tendered her resignation as Sergeant of the Police Reserves that night, which he accepted.

SENDS LETTER TO MAYOR

Says Victims Were Lured Into Cafe, Accosted and Were Later Taken to Jail.

Ex-Assemblyman Louis A. Cuvillier gave out yesterday a copy of a letter which he said he had sent on Tuesday to Mayor Hylan protesting against the methods of police vice squads in making arrests of unescorted women on the streets on charges of vagrancy or disorderly conduct. Cuvillier asserts that policemen wearing naval uniforms arrested two innocent girls, whose names he is ready to give, together with all facts in the case. In his letter to the Mayor he wrote:

"I desire to call to your attention the action of the vice squad of the Police Department in arresting innocent working girls in the City of New York, under the disguise of being members of the army and navy and wearing army and navy uniforms. I can well appreciate the good work of the Police Department in preventing vice in the streets of the City of New York, but I think the time has come that the Police Department should be more cautious in making arrests of innocent women on the streets of this city, and especially using the subterfuge of the army and navy uniform for this purpose."

Mr. Cuvillier told the Mayor that the two girls, aged 19 and 20, employed in a Harlem shirtwaist factory, went on June 18 to a Harlem dressmaker and were returning to their homes, when accosted by two policemen garbed in the uniform of the navy. When the girls in a spirit of patriotism replied to the supposed sailors and accepted their invitation to "soft drinks," says Cuvillier, the policemen took them to the rear room of a café, afterward made improper proposals, offered them money, and when this offer was refused the girls were placed under arrest and charged with vagrancy.

According to Mr. Cuvillier, his client, the mother of one of the girls, got them out of the cell that night by putting up $500. On the following morning in court, he says, the girls being unable to get counsel, pleaded guilty and were remanded for sentence, pending which a medical test was made of their blood. They were finally freed on a suspended sentence.

No comment on this complaint could be obtained from Police Commissioner Enright. A police official said the vice squads performed their work under the direction of the different commanders of the inspection districts. Detectives and policemen engaged in this work had not been authorized to wear military or naval uniforms so far as known at Police Headquarters, it was said.

HANDLEY-PAGE STILL WAITS.

HARBOR GRACE, Newfoundland, June 25.—Clouds and rain all the way across the Atlantic today caused another postponement of the start of the Handley-Page biplane on the Newfoundland-England flight. Major Gran, the navigator, again expressed himself as hopeful of "tomorrow."

It was explained today that the military leave granted to Gran and Major H. G. Brackley, the principal pilot of the expedition, is on the eve of expiring and this adds to their desire to get away.

Discussing the continued urging from the United States that the plane fly there, Admiral Kerr said today that he thought a trip there, possibly with the idea in mind of returning to Newfoundland in order to set out upon the ocean voyage originally planned, would be inadvisable because there are no spare parts available in the United States for the machine, and the shipment of such parts from Newfoundland to some point in the United States and then back here again when the plane returned would mean many weeks of delay.

Gran and Brackley today were the stars of the Handley-Page football team, which opened the local season in a match with the Harbor Grace team.

Ocean Grove Hotel Men Urge That His Speech Be Canceled.

OCEAN GROVE, N. J., June 25.—United States Senator Robert M. La Follette is not the type of American the people of this place care to hear talk, according to a resolution presented to the Ocean Grove Camp Meeting Association today. The resolution, which was drafted at a meeting of the Ocean Grove Hotel Association, reads:

"That, in view of the announced intention of the use of the Auditorium platform for an address by Senator La Follette, this association respectfully requests the Ocean Grove Camp Meeting Association to take immediate steps to use its influence to compel the cancelation of the engagement of the speaker named."

It was said that despite this resolution the Camp Meeting Association has refused to have the engagement of the Senator canceled. The speech is scheduled for July 5.

Lewisohn Estate Executors Ask for Judicial Settlement.

Walter and Frederick Lewisohn, executors under the will of their father, Leonard Lewisohn, who died in 1902, filed an application in the Supreme Court yesterday for judicial settlement of the affairs of the estate, to determine the sum payable to Edna May Lewisohn, actress, as sole heir to the estate of her husband, Jesse Lewisohn. The latter left virtually nothing for his wife except part of the property he inherited from his father.

The petition said Jesse Lewisohn received one-ninth interest in the estate of his father, one-fourth of it outright when he became 25 years old, and another fourth at 30, the total received amounting to $1,011,011. He was permitted to dispose of half the remainder by his will. This half, now valued at $630,458, is the amount the former actress will receive.

JURY TO SEE HOME OF WILKINS TODAY

MAY GIVE VERDICT TONIGHT

MINEOLA, L. I., June 25.—The taking of testimony in the case of Dr. Walter Keene Wilkins, on trial for the murder of his wife, Julia, at their Long Beach home on Feb. 27, was ended today, and tomorrow morning the jurors will visit the Wilkins home. They will then return to the Court House, listen to the summing up of the case, and, after Justice Manning charges them late in the afternoon, they will retire to decide whether he should be acquitted or convicted.

At the trial today Dr. Wilkins showed more signs of nervousness than he had before. The accused physician crossed and recrossed his legs and hesitated often while question after question was put to him in rapid succession by District Attorney Weeks. He still maintained, however, that his wife had met her death at the hands of burglars, who had come to his Summer home for the purpose of robbery.

A crowd of persons, larger than had witnessed any preceding session of the trial, was present today, and many came to the court, only to find that entrance into it was impossible.

After the examination of Dr. Wilkins a number of witnesses were called to the stand who testified that the relations between the man and his wife were very cordial and loving. Two chauffeurs declared that the hammer which was supposed to have been used for the murder was not of the sort that auto mechanics use, it being twice as heavy and its handle twice as long.

One of the questions put to the defendant by District Attorney Weeks was whether Dr. Wilkins had examined the hammer when he found it lying alongside his wife's body.

"Did you see any paper wrapped around the handle?"

"It was so smeared with blood I could not tell."

"When the burglars were holding you down in the vestibule, did you see a hammer or lead pipe in their hands?"

Dr. Wilkins also said he did not know if he was hit with a pipe or a man's fist. He said, however, that it was a large man that delivered the blow.

"It has been testified that you did not go to the hospital until nearly an hour and three-quarters after your wife was taken there," continued the prosecutor.

"Well, I did not take time on it. I was so disturbed that I forgot all about the time," replied the doctor.

"What were you doing then?"

"I took the dogs out for a run. They had not been out all day, so I thought I would give them a little exercise that would only take a moment."

"Isn't it right that you did not get to the hospital until after your wife was dead?"

"I believe that is right. If the timekeeper said so, it must be.

"You were much concerned about the condition of your dogs, were you not?"

Although Dr. Wilkins admitted that he had practically full control of his wife's property, he said that he did not know much about her financial affairs, adding that he had collected between $300 and $400 in rents since her death.

"Doctor, when did you first find out that witnesses to a will were necessary?" inquired District Attorney Weeks.

"Why didn't you want to go to the District Attorney with the will that was made in 1915?"

"That will was not attested, so I didn't think it was of any use."

"Why did you look at that will? Did your curiosity get the better of you?"

"Yes, I wanted to see what was in it."

"When you called Mr. Freese up on the telephone on March 16 from the Flatbush Avenue station in Brooklyn, did you not tell him that you would be arrested if you came to Port Washington with the will?"

March 16 was a Sunday, and the District was in his home at Port Washington on that day. The witness hesitated, then replied:

"Why—now—well, I telephoned to Mr. Freese and he asked me where I was. I told him. He asked me to meet him in Lynbrook to go with him to the District Attorney in Port Washington. I asked him if there was any likelihood of my being arrested. He said he wouldn't wonder."

After a few more questions regarding Dr. Wilkins's trip to Baltimore, witnesses appeared who testified that the physician and his wife were apparently loving and cordial in their home life.

When asked if Mrs. Wilkins had said anything before she died, Major Robert E. Grant, who had assisted in the attempt to save her life, said that she had begged him, "Please don't kill me."

Justice Manning ordered the jurors to meet at the Court House at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning, when they will motor to the scene of the tragedy. When the jury returns in the afternoon, counsel will commence summing up, after which the jury is expected to be charged.

Superintendents and financial agents of all Protestant hospitals in the United States have been invited to attend the National Conference on Denominational and Missionary Hospitals in Columbus, Ohio, July 1 and 2 to organize an association aiming at co-operation and general welfare. The meeting was announced in this city yesterday by the Executive Committee of the Interchurch World Movement of the United States, under whose direction it will be held. Delegates representing seventy-six denominations are expected to participate.

Hunter College Gave 212 Degrees.

Through an error in THE NEW YORK TIMES last Friday it was stated that 312 young women received their degree of bachelor of arts from Hunter College, Park Avenue and Sixty-eighth Street, the number was 212. It has also been learned that nineteen received diplomas from the Hunter College Kindergarten Department.

MEETING ENDS IN RIOT.

Rival Union Factions in Fist Fight at Manhattan Lyceum.

A hand to hand battle between union members of the cloak and suit makers' trades and radicals of the same industry broke up a meeting in Manhattan Lyceum, 66 East Fourth Street, called for the purpose of establishing a separate union of workers along the lines of the Russian Soviets. By the time the police had cleared out the hall and had driven the quarreling factions into the streets, the hall was completely wrecked. Bits of clothing strewn about the floor gave testimony to the intensity of the encounters, which provided the police with an exciting half hour. There were 800 persons at the meeting.

The police arrested Harry Rosenbaum of 2,946 Thirty-fifth Street, Coney Island, on complaint of Herman Levine of 296 South First Street, Brooklyn, who charged that Rosenbaum struck him over the head with a chair. Samuel Schiffer of 59 East Third Street, Manhattan, was placed under arrest by Patrolman William Manning charged with disorderly conduct. The police were followed to the police station by a crowd estimated at more than a thousand.

Nearly $3,000,000,000 Saved by War Contract Liquidations

WASHINGTON, June 25.—"Purchase and storage" contracts outstanding June 1 aggregated $107,000,000 against more than $1,000,000,000 when hostilities ceased, according to a War Department report issued today.

Of the 17,000 contracts which have been liquidated, more than half were settled without cost to the Government, suspension having caused the contractors no loss.

It is estimated that liquidation of war contracts has saved more than $1,000,000,000, and contracts still to be liquidated will result in additional savings of more than $1,500,000,000.

FORD TRIAL WITNESS FAINTS IN COURT

CONSPIRACY ISSUE RAISED

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich., June 25.—Counsel for Henry Ford, who is suing The Chicago Daily Tribune for $1,000,000 on a charge of libel, today continued efforts to show that the editorial of June 23, 1916, headed "Ford is an Anarchist," was the culmination of an organized and malicious conspiracy within The Tribune office.

Perley Boone, city editor of the newspaper, who in 1916 was acting city editor, was a witness. His cross-examination failed to elicit anything but that news items about Mr. Ford found their way into the paper in a routine manner and not in fulfillment of instructions from the publishers.

The cross-examination of Mrs. Ernest Frail by Alfred J. Murphy, of Ford counsel, which culminated in her fainting, left the spectators with mixed feelings. The witness, a frail little woman, and the mother of three children, testified yesterday that in the six weeks which elapsed between the departure of her husband for Texas and the time that the Ford Company came to her relief she was ill and in dire need. Her secret was hinted at on Mr. Murphy's first question.

"When were you married?" asked the lawyer.

"I didn't come here to talk about my family affairs," replied the witness. She finally admitted that she was married December 26, 1910.

"Isn't it a fact that you were married a year ago at the intercession of a Ford investigator?"

"It's none of your business," cried the woman. "I was married in 1910; it was a private marriage."

Murphy continued his questioning until the witness left the stand sobbing. Her husband was called and had begun to testify when the courtroom was aroused by renewed cries from Mrs. Frail. She rushed toward the doorway, where she fell across the threshold in a faint. The hearing was suspended for fifteen minutes.

Mrs. Stella Champney, a Detroit Journal reporter, testified that she talked with Mr. Ford on June 19, 1916, the day after the National Guard was called out and quoted the manufacturer as saying:

"All this talk about preparedness both political parties are making, is simply political play. Both Democrats and Republicans are talking preparedness for that purpose."

TRIAL OF COCCHI IS INTERRUPTED

BOLOGNA, June 25.—The trial of Alfred Cocchi, charged with the murder of Ruth Cruger in New York in 1917, has been interrupted for an indefinite period to enable the court to examine the American court records with reference to testimony given in the Cocchi case regarding Cocchi's wife.

There was a spirited exchange between Signor Bagnoli, President of the court, and Cocchi yesterday over the latter's change of attitude toward the crime, in which the court spoke vehemently in citing incidents narrated in the confession made by Cocchi and the findings of American tribunals.

Cocchi told of having sawed the body of Miss Cruger so that he might hide it. Then he broke down, crying in a broken voice:

"I took the body and tried to conceal it in the cellar, but the door was not large enough and I sawed the body in two. The girl was dead when this was done."

Then followed a discussion between Signor Bagnoli as to whether the girl was dead or not before her body was dismembered. The whole courtroom was aghast at the prisoner's narration, but Cocchi proceeded with his story rapidly, being apparently very nervous.

Cocchi continued his morning's narrative in the afternoon. When he concluded, the court went into secret session to consider the defendant's charges against his wife and their relation to his own case. After a session of more than an hour the court announced that the trial had been postponed.

Signor Venturini, attorney for Cocchi, said he had received a letter from J. J. Lynch, Municipal Building, New York, containing sensational allegations concerning the death of Miss Cruger. The attorney said he would present the letter in evidence.

Judge Bagnoli, the President of the court, gave this explanation of the postponement to The Associated Press:

"We were afraid the story related by Cocchi and his charges against his wife had influenced the jury, who appeared to us to be somewhat affected by this development. We will await a transcript of the evidence in the wife's case. We expect to continue the trial before October at the latest."

Podeyns' Divorce Suits Dismissed.

The suit for absolute divorce brought by Lieutenant Emil M. Podeyn of Freeport, L. I., attached to the 24 Field Artillery, against Mrs. Edna Rose Podeyn, and the countersuit of Mrs. Podeyn against her husband, were thrown out of court today when a jury before Justice Clark in the Brooklyn Supreme Court returned a verdict finding that both the husband and his wife had been guilty of misconduct as charged by each other.

TO STOP SENDING SOLDIERS ABROAD

NO MORE OFFICERS GOING

Only the Latest Graduates of West Point Will Be Sent as Originally Planned.

FORCES STAY EAST OF RHINE

Three Divisions Will Remain on Other Side of Bridgehead Until Peace is Signed.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Offer of service in Europe to recruits obtained under volunteer enlistment will be withdrawn under orders prepared by the War Department. The policy of sending regular officers overseas to relieve those in the American Expeditionary Forces also will be abandoned.

This action was said today to have resulted from the improved situation in Europe growing out of the imminent signing of the Peace Treaty. In the orders officers here foresaw an early return of all troops now abroad, excepting the comparatively small American contribution to the Army of Occupation.

"Troops are now being returned to the United States at such a rate," said an official announcement, "that at the request of General Pershing, no more officers will be sent overseas, except the class of student officers composed of recent graduates of the United States Military Academy, scheduled to leave about July 11."

At the same time notice was given of the withdrawal of permission for wives and children of officers and enlisted men to go abroad. This was necessitated, the Department said, by the fact that it will be impossible to say which individual soldiers will be kept overseas until the composition of the Army of Occupation is determined.

Secretary Baker said today he had not been advised from Paris as to the size of the American army which is to be maintained for the time being in Germany. The fact that the 4th and 5th Divisions of regulars were definitely slated for return in June, until the crisis of last week caused the cancellation of these plans is cited here as evidence that the American forces will not be larger than three divisions, or about 120,000.

It is estimated that the 1st, 2d, and 3d Divisions would require around 40,000 replacements to take the place of men in those organizations who are eligible for discharge. Voluntary enlistments totalling more than 70,000 men already have been reported, thus forcing the department to cancel its offer of European service to volunteers.

COBLENZ, June 24. (Associated Press.)—The three American divisions which were concentrated east of the Rhine in the American bridgehead area will remain there until the peace treaty is actually signed, according to an announcement made here today.

As soon as peace is signed the Americans will begin to return to the areas they occupied before the concentration of a week ago which was ordered by Marshal Foch in preparation for an advance into Germany if the Germans rejected the peace conditions. It is expected the troops will remain in these quarters until orders come to start for home.

The Third Army consists of five divisions and the auxiliary units of the Third Corps, approximately 160,000 men. Transportation officers said today that the divisions and the various units could be out of Germany by Aug. 1 if General Headquarters gave orders to that effect. The First and Second Divisions, which hold the east bank of the Rhine, will be the last to depart in the event that no complete American division is to remain in Germany as part of the permanent army of occupation.

CAMP DIX, N. J., June 25.—Lauded as "the second bravest man" in the American Army, First Class Private Frank Gaffney of New York, formerly a member of Company G, 106th Infantry, was decorated by Major Gen. Hale at a special ceremony on the parade grounds here this morning with the Congressional medal of honor, the highest award given an enlisted man in the American Army.

Gaffney is cited "for conspicuous gallantry" at Ranssos, France, on Sept. 29 last, when single-handed and wounded he captured a machine gun nest and with the aid of the captured weapon and a supply of hand grenades brought in 80 prisoners. His Lieutenant and Sergeant killed, Gaffney found himself in command of a shattered platoon and when he led it to the attack he was the only survivor to reach the objective.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

A decreased volume of trade and an irregular price movement characterized yesterday's stock market. The day's business was on the smallest scale for a full five-hour session of any seen since the middle of April and marked the ending of the longest sequence of "million-share days" the Stock Exchange has ever seen; forty-six such days have been recorded since April 17, against the sequence of forty-four in 1901. As for the price movement, it was irregular throughout most of the day. In the afternoon it turned weak, but just before the close there was a rally, none too vigorous but sufficient to lift prices from their extreme low levels and close them with only slightly more net losses than net gains.

Taken by itself, the stock market disclosed little that was significant. The action might mean any one of a number of things. It might, for instance, indicate that the market has worked into one of those interludes which frequently occur in bull markets when development has been too rapid and the market needs time to regain its breath. Or it may be that the upward movement is definitely ended, for the time being, and that it will not be resumed until fairly drastic readjustment, within the market and without, is accomplished. Last night there were experienced observers who argued both ways.

The call money market again performed in a way which, to put it mildly, was not reassuring to the bulls. Opening and renewing at 7 to 7½ per cent., it held around those figures until shortly after midday, when it rose to 8 per cent. for mixed collateral and to 10 per cent. for all industrial loans. After 2 o'clock the real activity started, and then, by very rapid changes, the rates for both kinds of accommodation moved up until each stood at 15 per cent. On the advance, no uniform relation between the two classes was maintained at one time all industrial loans being quoted more favorably than the mixed collateral loans. Just before 3 o'clock the rate broke to 6 and 6¾ per cent., respectively.

This action of the money market was disconcerting. It may be true that the sudden advance in rates will not definitely check a bull market. But when the advance to high figures becomes a regular performance, the influence is apt to be cumulative, and carried on over any considerable period, it is likely to act as a most positive brake, which, while it may not bring trading to a sudden halt, is designed to slow it down a good deal. To some this influence was plainly evident yesterday both in the action of prices and in the diminished volume of business.

The trade reviews of the iron and steel industry were again favorable, but if one cared to interpret unfavorably some of the passages it was not difficult to do so. The comment on the quickening of the business abroad, may not please some of the stock market enthusiasts who have been counting heavily upon foreign demand to sustain the domestic industry. In the weekly weather bulletin wheat and corn are reported to be enjoying almost ideal conditions, but cotton is not quite so well.

The movement against London was the chief feature of the foreign exchange market. The rate for sterling checks fell to within a fraction of the year's low record. No satisfactory explanation for this was forthcoming, unless it was to be found in the final removal of all restrictions on foreign exchange dealings. Spanish bills sold at the lowest in several years, within about 40 points of parity.

CALL MONEY AGAIN GOES TO 15 PER CENT.

Cause of Advance Due, It Is Said, to Calling of Deposits by the Government.

BACK TO 6% AT THE CLOSE

Call money again rose to 15 per cent. yesterday, when that rate was bid on the Stock Exchange for accommodation on both good mixed collateral and all industrial collateral. Time money, it was reported by money brokers, was practically non-existent, with the legal maximum of 6 per cent. bid for all maturities, but with none offered. The volume of business done in call money on the Exchange was not unusually large, but in the late afternoon, when the flurry occurred, there was very little to be had until just before the close of the stock market, when liberal offerings broke the rate to 6 per cent.

The immediate cause of yesterday's advance was said to be the calling of deposits by the Government. It was reported unofficially that the Government was taking 10 per cent. of its deposits, which, on Saturday last, amounted to $354,967,000 in the New York Clearing House banks and are estimated to have been approximately $600,000,000 in the New York Federal Reserve district. This would mean that something like $35,000,000 was wanted from local institutions and about $25,000,000 from the other banks in the district.

It was also reported that interior banks were calling for funds from their New York correspondents. It is a little early for interior banks to be withdrawing metropolitan balances for crop moving purposes, but, as has been explained, the interior demand this year has been somewhat quickened by the demands for financing over the tax date and other rather large needs.

An interesting sidelight on the money market developed yesterday when the exchange rate on London fell to within a small fraction of the lowest for the year. It was suggested by one banker that London might be sending funds here to lend at our high levels. Money in London is commanding only about 3 to 3½ per cent., as against the 12 and 15 per cent. rates which have been seen here recently, and with virtually all restrictions now removed from foreign exchange transactions it was said to be possible for this movement to be taking place. Bankers who might be expected to know definitely whether or not such is the case refused to comment on it yesterday. In normal times such a movement would be perfectly natural, but just now, with sterling at a discount of about 6 per cent., the chief hazard would be a possible speedy recovery in exchange, in which case most, if not all, of the money lending profits would be wiped out.

MONEY IS SOLD AT AUCTION.

Six 500-Lire Italian Pieces Bring $395 at Police Sale.

For the first time in the history of auction sales at Police Headquarters money was auctioned off yesterday at the 200th auction sale of unclaimed and condemned property, consisting of articles of every size and character which had been found by the police and had remained unclaimed after having been held by them for six months. The money consisted of six 500-lire Italian pieces, which were offered in one lot, and brought $395.

None of the articles offered were guaranteed, and the auctioneer, Jacques Cohen, repeatedly admonished the bidders to be careful in their valuation of the articles on which they were bidding. A lot of pink pajamas brought $8, four baby carriages, offered as one lot, $16, and a lot of U. S. Thrift Stamps, the face value of which was not disclosed by the auctioneer, brought $10. Automatics were sold on bids ranging up to $30 each. Three gallons of olive oil brought a total of $12.50, while two kegs of ordinary mixed nails brought $4.25. A keg, one of the most peculiar lots offered, was composed of a quantity of braces and bits, such as are used in ripping open safes. It sold for $31.

MAY START WORK SOON ON HUDSON TUNNEL

Bill Passed by Both Houses Will Be Ready for President When He Returns.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Construction of a traffic tunnel under the Hudson, between Manhattan and Jersey City, may begin as soon as the President signs the bill granting authority for the project.

The House today passed the Edge bill, recently adopted by the Senate. Practically the only alteration made was a reservation to "alter, amend, or repeal" the act at any future time. Senator Edge of New Jersey, author of the bill, said this amendment was entirely satisfactory to him. Any conference will be purely perfunctory and the bill will be ready for the President's signature when he returns to Washington.

Assurance was made to the House by Representative Siegel of New York that New York and New Jersey wish to commence work as soon as possible on the great traffic artery. Already an agreement has been reached between the two States for the construction, operation, repair, and maintenance of the tunnel. The permission of the War Department for the construction also has been obtained.

AIR EXPRESS LINE OPENS.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 25.—James S. Clark, Assistant Secretary of the Land Title and Trust Company of Philadelphia, was the first passenger arriving here today on the new Philadelphia-Atlantic City Air Express. Clark chose the aerial route for the shore to attend the convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Frank Mills, head of the flying school field at Essington, piloted the craft. The pair left Essington at 9:20 this morning, manoeuvered over the Land Title Building in Philadelphia and then went to Atlantic City by way of Cape May, flying against a direct head wind. They arrived at the Curtiss flying field here at 11:20 A. M.

Mills and Clark traveled 140 miles in the air in 130 minutes, making better than a mile a minute in the face of difficult conditions. This was considered a remarkable record.

Today's flight was the first of a regular schedule for airplane service between Philadelphia and Atlantic City. The fare charged is $1 a minute. The trip takes from ninety minutes to two hours, depending upon the weather. Curtiss flying boats are used.

B. & O. ISSUES $35,000,000 BONDS

PLAN APPROVED BY HINES

Directors Suspend Dividends on Common Stock in Adopting New Policy.

A syndicate composed of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Speyer & Co., and the National City Company, has purchased from the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company $35,000,000 ten-year 6 per cent. secured gold bonds. The issue will be offered before long for public subscription at 96½ and accrued interest, to yield investors approximately 6½ per cent. If the bonds are held until they mature, on July 1, 1929. The bonds are secured by the deposit and pledge of $6,000,000 par value Reading Company first preferred stock, $14,000,000 par value Reading Company second preferred, and $9,200,000 common stock, as well as $15,000,000 Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company refunding and general mortgage 6 per cent. bonds, series B, due Dec. 1, 1995.

These securities have an estimated market value of $45,000,000, and it is understood that a 25 per cent. margin is to be maintained. The bonds were sold by the company to enable it to meet all its maturing obligations, and will not materially increase the railroad's annual fixed charges.

The maturing obligations which will be taken up are $22,500,000 notes and bank loans which were extended from February, 1918, to July 1, 1919. These include $4,000,000 bank loans, $10,500,000 6 per cent. notes, issued in June, 1918, for retiring $7,500,000 one-year 5 per cent. notes, $3,000,000 bank loans, extended for four months from Sept. 30, 1918, and $8,000,000 notes issued in January, 1918, which were due last July but were extended.

Following a meeting of the Baltimore & Ohio directors yesterday, President Daniel Willard said the company had reached an agreement with the Government on the question of compensation for the lease of the carrier's properties during the period of Federal control, and that a contract had been executed calling for the payment each year by the Government of $30,031,009. He also said the company's other income each year amounts to about $3,300,000 making the approximate annual income $33,331,009. This after the deduction of $22,063,000 fixed charges and corporate expenses, would leave a balance of $11,268,009 available for Federal income taxes, reserves, dividends, and so forth.

At yesterday's meeting, the directors determined to set aside part of the income to be devoted to capital expenditures so that the company's credit would not have to be extended further under present conditions. Because of the adoption of this policy, it was decided temporarily to suspend dividend payments on the common stock. The usual semi-annual dividend of 2 per cent. was declared on the preferred stock to holders of record July 19. This payment will be made Sept. 2, provided the company receives funds from the Government by that time.

In his letter to the purchasing syndicate, Mr. Willard said the issuance of the $35,000,000 bonds had been approved by the Director General of Railroads.

STALLED IN BUENOS AIRES.

BUENOS AIRES, June 24.—Hundreds of American businessmen who are in this city are unable to leave for home because of the lack of shipping and the interruption of the trans-Andine railway. Heavy snows this week again stopped the mule train which has been the connecting link between the points where the line is either blocked or swept away and which has provided the only means of egress from Buenos Aires to the United States.

More than a hundred men and women recently slept on the floor of a station at the end of the Argentine railway on the Bolivian frontier because they were unable to get transportation across the gap to the point where the Bolivian section of the Pan-American railway commences. This has discouraged efforts of people here to leave Buenos Aires by way of La Paz and Lima. The halting of the trans-Andine mule train has also left many who are part way up the Andes without means of going forward.

Among well-known Americans searching for means to leave Buenos Aires are Franklin Adams of the Pan-American Union; D. C. Collier, President of the San Diego Exposition, and J. D. Woodside, the South Carolina cotton operator.

American Steel Issues Bonds.

Richardson, Hill & Co. of Boston, the Chase Securities Corporation, and John Burnham & Co. of Chicago, have purchased $5,000,000 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock of American Steel Foundries, and are forming a distributing syndicate to handle the issue. The stock is being issued to provide funds for the purchase of the Griffin Wheel Company, which was recently taken over by American Steel Foundries.

Purpose of issue — This issue will be used to purchase control of the Griffin Wheel Company, an old established business.

Business — Steel Foundries, operating nine plants, is the largest producer of steel castings in America. Its principal customers are railroads, steamship companies and machinery manufacturers. Griffin Wheel Company, operating eight plants, is the largest American producer of iron car wheels for steam railroad and street cars.

Earnings — Average earnings applicable to this issue, assuming purchase of all Griffin Wheel Company Common Stock, based on Steel Foundries operations for last thirteen years, and Griffin Wheel Company for last six years, after taxes and depreciation charges, are $2,574,596, or more than four times the dividend requirement of this issue. On the same basis, average earnings for the last three years are $5,236,799, or more than eight times the dividend requirements.

Protection — No mortgage or lien may be placed upon the property of the company, nor can the stock owned by the company in any corporation of which a majority of the capital stock is owned by the company be voted in favor of the creation of any mortgage or lien upon the property of such corporation, nor can the authorized amount of preferred stock be increased, nor the rights of its holders be diminished, by the issue of stock of prior or equal rights or otherwise except by vote or consent of the holders of two-thirds in amount of the preferred stock. The Company will have no Funded Debt

From a letter of George M. Wright, Chairman of the Board of Directors, we summarize as follows:

The Clinton-Wright Wire Company, incorporated under the laws of Massachusetts, has acquired all the assets and business of the Clinton Wire Cloth Company, founded 1856; The Morgan Spring Company, founded 1881, and the Wright Wire Company, founded 1883. The Company is one of the largest manufacturers of wire and wire products. Its six plants in Worcester, Clinton and Palmer, Massachusetts, have an aggregate floor space of about 36 acres and employ over 2,500 hands. The gross sales for the latest fiscal years aggregate over $12,000,000.

The First Preferred Stock, 7% Cumulative, is protected by conservative restrictions, and has preference as to both assets and earnings. A cumulative sinking fund commencing July 1, 1920, is estimated to redeem the entire issue within twenty years, by call or by purchase at not exceeding 110 and accrued dividends.

The fixed assets have been appraised by Messrs. Ford, Bacon & Davis at a sound value of $8,225,000, or $235 for each share of First Preferred Stock. The net quick assets, according to an approximate consolidated balance sheet prepared by Messrs. Marwick, Mitchell, Peat & Company, are in excess of $4,200,000, or $120 for each share of First Preferred Stock. The net assets are thus over 3½ times this issue.

The average net earnings of the constituent companies for the past three years have aggregated over $1,000,000, or over 4 times the annual dividend requirements of the First Preferred Stock. The demand for the products of the Company is national in its scope and increasing rapidly.

STEADY ADVANCE IN COTTON MARKET

SLIGHT REACTION AT CLOSE

Further rains over most of the belt, and predictions of still more to come today, more than offset any possible influence the unsettlement at Liverpool and the flurry in money on the Stock Exchange might have had on yesterday's cotton market, and after a brief hesitation at the outset prices rose steadily. By the middle of the afternoon they were up about 60 points on the average, July selling at 33 cents, while October and January of the new crop months solds at 32.03 and 32.70, respectively, the highest prices recorded thus far this season.

The continued rains, it is now feared, have lasted long enough to definitely interfere with the ultimate yield of the crop. Until recently, it was felt that replanting could be done on a sufficiently large scale to offset the early damage, with the chief harm the setting back of the crop, with, of course, attendant dangers at picking time. But now there is a growing belief that the final crop will be affected adversely, and some observers are predicting a final showing of something less than 12,000,000 bales.

If the final crop is no larger than that there is very likely to be a shortage, as the final carry-over at the end of the season is not apt to be in excess of 4,500,000 bales, which, with a new crop of 12,000,000 or less, would give a visible supply of not more than 16,500,000 bales, whereas cotton experts are now figuring on an aggregate foreign and domestic demand of upward of 17,500,000 bales.

The July condition report, to be issued next Tuesday, as of June 25, was yesterday estimated at around 75, as against 75.6 a month ago, 86.8 on June 25 last year, and a ten-year average of 80.3. June is usually a month of improvement. In the last twenty-five years this has been the case on seventeen occasions, and in the last eight years the June improvement has been regular. This year, with the exceedingly wet weather in March and April and most of May, the trade had counted on a clear and warm June. This has not been realized.

At the close yesterday there was a slight reaction from the high prices, but the market closed well, with net gains of 40 to 43 points for the new crop months and of 55 points for July.

Judge Says Cowards Took Wives to Avoid Military Service.

While hearing evidence in the divorce suit of Mrs. Yetta Forman, of 37 Morgan Avenue, against Morris Forman, of 415 Bushwick Avenue, in which the husband is charged with misconduct, Justice Aspinall in the Brooklyn Supreme Court took occasion to flay marriages of young people during the marriage rushes after the draft law was enacted, declaring that he believed most of them were contracted to evade military duty.

"I believe every one of the marriages of these young men and women," he said, "or nearly every one, was made to avoid military service. Ninety per cent of these men are cowards. After the fight they come here to get a divorce. It is easy to plant such evidence. That young lady, (pointing to the plaintiff) is as unconcerned over what is going on here as though she was sitting at a movie."

Then the Justice asked if the defendant was in the room, and when Forman responded, the Judge asked him:

"Did you get married to escape military service?"

"No," Forman replied.

The Justice told him to leave the courtroom, and not to be seen there again. He reserved decision in the case.

NEW WHEAT RULES FOR FOREIGN TRADE

SUPERSEDES TRADE BOARD

Few Modifications Are Noted in the Regulations as Already Established.

Julius Barnes, United States Wheat Director, announced yesterday that President Wilson had signed a proclamation covering the importation and exportation of wheat and wheat flour. The proclamation is effective July 1, 1919, and provides that no wheat or wheat flour shall be imported into or exported from the United States except at such time or times and under such regulations or orders as may be prescribed by the Wheat Director. Mr. Barnes also announced regulations covering exportation and importation of wheat and wheat flour for the present. These regulations will be changed from time to time.

Whereas, Congress has enacted and the President has on the 4th day of March, 1919, approved "An act to enable the President to carry out the price guarantees made to producers of wheat of the crops of 1918 and 1919, and to protect the United States against undue enhancement of its liabilities thereunder," which act contains the following provisions:

"That whenever the President shall find it essential in carrying out the guarantees aforesaid, or to protect the United States against undue enhancement of its liabilities thereunder, and shall make proclamation thereof, it shall be unlawful to import into the United States from any country named in such proclamation, or to export from or ship from or take out of the United States to any country named in such proclamation, wheat, semolina, or wheat flour, except at such time or times, and under such regulations or orders, and subject to such limitations and exceptions as the President shall prescribe, until otherwise ordered by the President or by Congress, provided that no preference shall be given to the ports of one State over those of another."

Now, therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States of America, by virtue of the powers conferred upon me by the aforesaid act of Congress, as well as by virtue of the powers conferred upon me by any and all other acts of Congress conferring authority upon me in the premises, hereby find and proclaim to all whom it may concern that it is essential in carrying out the guarantees aforesaid and to protect the United States against undue enhancement of its liabilities thereunder that wheat and wheat flour, on and after July 1, 1919, shall not be imported into the United States from, and shall not be exported from or shipped from, or taken out of the United States to Abyssinia, Afghanistan, Albania, Argentina, Austria, Belgium, her colonies, possessions, and protectorates; Bolivia, Brazil, Bulgaria, China, Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, her colonies, possessions, and protectorates; the Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, Finland, France, her colonies, possessions, and protectorates; Germany, Great Britain, her colonies, possessions, and protectorates; Greece, Guatemala, Haiti, Hedjas, Honduras, Hungary, Italy, her colonies, possessions, and protectorates; Japan, her colonies, possessions, and protectorates; Liechtenstein, Liberia, Luxemburg, Mexico, Monaco, Montenegro, Morocco, Nepal, the Netherlands, her colonies, possessions, and protectorates; Nicaragua, Norway, Oman, Panama, Paraguay, Persia, Peru, Poland, Portugal, her colonies, possessions, and protectorates; Rumania, Russia, Salvador, San Magino, Serbs, Croats, and Slovenes; Siam; Spain, her colonies, possessions, and protectorates; Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey, Uruguay, Venezuela, or any other foreign country, except as such time or times and under such regulations or orders, and subject to such limitations and exceptions as shall be prescribed, until otherwise ordered by the President or by Congress.

The regulations, orders, limitations, and exceptions will be prescribed and administered by and under the authority of Julius Barnes, United States Wheat Director, from whom such licenses, in conformity with said regulations, orders, limitations, and exceptions, will issue.

The powers and authority heretofore vested in the War Trade Board, by any proclamation or executive order heretofore issued by me in respect to the prohibition or regulation of imports or exports of wheat or wheat flour, are hereby transferred to and vested in the United States Wheat Manager as of July 1, 1919.

Mr. Barnes announced that he would establish regulations under this proclamation from time to time. Present regulations covering the exportation of wheat and wheat flour are as follows:

1. Wheat: Licenses for the export of wheat will be issued only to the United States Grain Corporation or its nominees.

2. Wheat Flour: Licenses will be issued for the export of wheat flour to all destinations in the Western Hemisphere; the East Coast of Asia; British, French, and Portuguese West Africa; Liberia and the Belgian Congo. For the exportation of wheat flour to other destinations licenses will be issued only to the United States Grain Corporation or its nominees.

Mr. Barnes announced regulations covering the importation of wheat and wheat flour to be:

The United States Wheat Director announced the regulations covering the importation of wheat and wheat flour to be:

2. Wheat Flour: Licenses for the importation of wheat flour will be issued only to the United States Grain Corporation or its nominees.

Applications for licenses to export wheat flour to the Western Hemisphere, the East Coast of Asia, and the West Coast of Africa, and applications for licenses to import wheat or wheat flour should be filed with the United States Wheat Director, 42 Broadway, New York.

It was said that the foregoing rules do not constitute any material modifications of the regulations heretofore existing as established by the War Trade Board.

OHIO CLAIMS 47 CENTS.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—The Federal Government and the State of Ohio are at loggerheads as to which shall pay 47 cents incurred in establishing offices of the Fuel Administration in Columbus.

The Ohio State Purchasing Agent advanced $523.23 for furniture, freight, and drayage, and obtained reimbursement of $522.76 from the Federal Government. Appealing from the settlement with a claim for the additional amount, the Ohio authorities were informed today by Controller of the Treasury Warwick that the original check was correct, so far as Washington is concerned, the eliminated 47 cents being 6 cents freight overcharge and 41 cents Federal freight tax erroneously assessed against a Government shipment.

TRANSFER AGENTS: Old Colony Trust Company, Boston; Mercantile Trust Company, New York

We summarize from letter of George M. Wright, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the new Company:

EARNINGS—"For the past three years net earnings after taxes and liberal allowance for depreciation have averaged over $1,100,000, or after allowing for full 7% dividends and sinking funds on both the First Preferred and Voting Preferred Stocks, the equivalent of 8% or $4.00 a share on the Common Stock outstanding. The demand for the products of the Company has never been greater than at present, and I estimate that the net earnings of the Company applicable to dividends on the Common Stock for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1920, will be in excess of 13% on the amount of Common Stock outstanding, or equivalent to $6.65 a share.

TRADE POSITION—"The Company will occupy a dominant position in the wire industry and be in a position to increase its business substantially and to make a considerable reduction in its unit costs. Among the advantages of consolidated operations I may mention that the output of wire will be increased about 10,000 tons by reason of the fact that the Clinton Plant has heretofore purchased elsewhere its supply of wire which will now be manufactured in the Worcester and Palmer Plants of the Company."

PROPERTIES—The Clinton-Wright Wire Company, incorporated June 23, 1919, under the laws of Massachusetts, has acquired the assets and business of the Clinton Wire Cloth Company, founded in 1856, the Morgan Spring Company, founded in 1881, and the Wright Wire Company, founded in 1883.

ASSETS—The land, buildings, machinery, equipment and other fixed assets of the Company have been appraised by Messrs. Ford, Bacon & Davis, with due allowance for physical condition and fair costs, at a sound value of $8,225,000. The net quick assets of the Company, according to an approximate consolidated balance sheet prepared by Messrs. Marwick, Mitchell, Peat & Co., are in excess of $4,200,000. Physical property and net quick assets of the Company therefore aggregate $12,425,000 or $100 for each share of First Preferred and Voting Preferred Stock outstanding and $49.50 for each share of Common Stock now outstanding.

Application will be made in due course to list this stock on the New York and Boston Stock Exchanges.

HINES DEFENDS PLAN OF RATE CONTROL

FEARS CONFLICTING ACTION

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Opposition to the bill to give the Interstate Commerce Commission, instead of President Wilson, authority to initiate rates, was voiced today by Director General Hines when he appeared before the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee.

"It is neither logical nor significant to deprive the President at this time of his power to initiate rates," Mr. Hines said. "The railroads will not remain under Federal control for any considerable time. The conclusion of peace is near, and presumably the operation of the railroads in a short time will be restored to the private owners."

Mr. Hines also asked that nothing be included in the proposed bill to interfere with the power of the President to issue orders. He said on this point:

"My suggestion is that if there is any fear of the power of the President, it can be removed by inserting an express provision that the President's orders must be consistent with the Federal control act. The President has the power only to make orders in line with the purposes of the act. Beyond that point his orders are unlawful."

In asking that the rate-making power over both intrastate and interstate rates be left as it now exists, the Director General said:

"This should be true, for one thing, because the United States Government for the time has assumed responsibility for all the railroad situation. It must find the necessary funds to pay expenses. There is a single and individual question of national policy in regard to the revenues of railroads.

"If the Government remains responsible for the whole situation, and is nevertheless dependent upon a wholly independent study of this subject in any State as to intrastate rates, we have a division of authority in a matter in which the responsibility of the Government is single."

In reference to the section in the Senate bill making the United States responsible for the payment of judgments which originated before the period of Federal control, Mr. Hines said:

"Any such debt is the debt of the railroad and not the debt of the Government, and to make the Government liable for such payment is unjust to the Government and to the people, and is not necessary for the protection of the reasonable interests of judgment creditors."

PAN HANDLE STOCK.

When asked to comment yesterday on the report that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company would acquire the minority holdings of the Pan Handle (Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad Company) stock, President Samuel Rea of the Pennsylvania company stated that neither the Directors of that company nor the board of the Pennsylvania Railroad had given the matter any attention. He also said that the present does not seem a propitious time, considering the financial condition and uncertainty as to the future railroad policy of the country for the adoption of plans looking to the acquisition of stocks of subsidiary companies.

GIVES COURSES IN CHINESE.

Columbia School to Teach Composition and the Spoken Language.

For the first time in the history of the Columbia Summer School, Chinese will be taught this year. Following compliance with the request of the Peking Government that Professor John Dewey should receive further leave to aid in the educational reconstruction of China, James C. Egbert, Director, announced yesterday that two courses in spoken Chinese would be given. A first course in Chinese consists of easy conversational lessons in Mandarin, with the use of Romanized Chinese, and the principles of the construction of essential Chinese characters. Chinese composition and oral practice will include conversation and composition on topics relating to commercial and everyday life, with the object of increasing idiomatic expression and of imparting fluency in the speaking of the Chinese language.

Mayor's Advisory Committee to Quit

In a letter to Mayor Hylan yesterday Hubert Cillis, Chairman of the Mayor's Citizens' Advisory Committee, appointed by the late Mayor Mitchel and continued by his successor, for the purpose of dealing with the situation created by the presence in New York of thousands of alien enemies during the war, asked the Mayor for permission to dissolve the committee. Mr. Cillis said that the time has now come when conditions in the City of New York no longer require such a committee.

HOLLAND'S CHIEF NEED IS RAW MATERIALS

THE HAGUE, June 24.—"The only American business men who have gone half-way satisfied from Holland were those selling raw materials, especially coal, cotton, and copper," said a representative of one of the largest American import houses in Holland to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent.

"Coal appears to be the essence of the whole business world here. Without coal they can do nothing. They are now getting a certain quantity of coal from America, but they also need raw materials in order to start the plants going. The Dutch, however, cannot export; they can only supply the home and Dutch Indies markets. The Indies furnished their main business before the war, but this is another market where Japan has stepped in during the war, and Dutch manufacturers are up in arms. While the war lasted they were unable to trade with their colonies, and Japan is now supplying colonial needs and has started a steamship line to the Indies. The Dutch fear that they cannot compete with Japan in the future if high freights continue.

"It may be possible for Americans to do business with Holland in certain manufactured textiles until such time as the Dutch industrial plants are able to get their own material and supply their own market, but after that there will be little chance. The American Allied Textile Corporation, a large cotton combination, has extensive offices in Amsterdam.

"The Dutch are still waiting to buy, hoping that prices will fall, but this is impossible for another year at least, owing to high freights and the scarcity of goods. They are also afraid to sell much to Germany, as they are uncertain about payments there.

"A small crowd of American business men is waiting for peace to be signed to go to Germany and see what has happened to their business and property there, but they do not expect to do much business. One importer of chemicals told me he was returning to the United States without doing any business, because prices were so high in Germany that by the time the goods had been shipped and the duty paid there was no profit."

COXEY PREDICTS REVOLT.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Jacob S. Coxey of Massillon, Ohio, who in 1894 led his famous "Army of Unemployed" to the Capitol, appeared before the House Banking and Currency Committee today to advocate legislation which he said would end unemployment, but after he had distributed copies of a pamphlet to members the committee adjourned suddenly.

Coxey told the committee "revolution" in the generally accepted sense was not meant, but he refused to explain just what he did mean.

Year's Surplus $1,107,382.

The Federal Sugar Refining Company, for the year ended May 31, 1919, reports a surplus, after charges and taxes, of $1,107,382. After allowing for preferred dividends, this is the equivalent of $13.52 a share on the common stock. In the preceding year the amount available for the common stock was $11.15 a share.

A Record For Safety

When a corporation has always paid the interest and principal on its obligations, and in addition has an earning capacity which has permitted it to pay substantial stock dividends regularly for years, there is reason to believe in the safety of the bonds and notes issued by that corporation.

We recommend at current quotations the note of a corporation which has the above record. The yield at present is over 7.35%.

Investment vs. Speculation

Investment bonds and notes are issues which are regarded safe as to payment of interest and principal. There are, of course, several degrees of safety, and the strong issues, as a rule, command a higher price. The speculative issues are those in which there is a question as to permanency of interest payments or receipt of principal at maturity.

We have an Investment Department for handling problems of this character, which you may consult freely, without obligation or cost to you.

Excerpts from Report on Bacon Multiplying Machine

Findings:

*"Mechanically the device is new in its plan of construction"— * * *
"Commercial investigation discloses that no successful multiplying machine has been built or placed on the market, and there is a demand for a small and large listing machine of this type."*

The Slocum, Avram and Slocum Laboratories made the above report to Mr. George M. Bacon, of Salt Lake City, Utah. The full report contained recommendations for change of methods in construction, and a review of the patent situation.

As a result of our investigation we were assigned to commercially develop the machine so that as soon as possible it might be put on a sound business basis. Consistent with our service to our clients we believe this machine, as developed by us, will prove a mechanical and commercial success, and we anticipate our client will place quantity manufacture with us in view of our preliminary service.

Our mechanical laboratories and factory are especially organized for the work of industrial investigation, development and production. Many manufacturers not having need of our facilities for investigation and report could, through placing production in our hands, achieve better results and greater profits by devoting their entire effort to sales.

We will be pleased to place one of our experts at your disposal to discuss with you any phase of our service.

POSTAL TO RESTORE OLD TELEGRAM RATE

Deegan Says the 20 Per Cent. Increase Will Be Dropped on Return of Land Lines.

EXPECT NO CHANGE ON W. U.

Carlton Asserts Company Does Not Intend to Set Aside Charges Fixed by Burleson.

Commenting on the agreement reached between Senate and House committees for the return of the land wires to private control on August 1 next, William J. Deegan, Secretary of the Mackay Companies, the holding corporation of the Postal Telegraph-Commercial Cable Company, said yesterday that the Postal would immediately put in force the old telegraph rates just as soon as the wire return had been completed.

Postmaster General Burleson, asserting that cost of materials and increased wages made the step imperative, advanced telegraph rates 20 per cent. on April 1 last. This step, it was estimated by telegraph officials, added $16,000,000 to the cost of business communication, and the Postal Company vigorously protested against the increase, declaring that it was wholly unnecessary.

"Yes," replied Mr. Deegan, "the Postal company will adhere to its promise to reduce the present cost of telegraph service by 20 per cent. Mr. Mackay has always maintained that there was no excuse for this added burden on the public, and just as soon as the wires are returned, which apparently will be on Aug. 1, we shall go back to the old rates."

When Newcomb Carlton, President of the Western Union Company, was asked if his corporation would follow the lead of the Postal, he replied:

"I've nothing to say about the return of the wires, or the reported plan to return them. No, we do not contemplate setting aside Postmaster General Burleson's instructions to increase the rates by 20 per cent."

As for the strike of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union against the wire companies, it was said for the men yesterday that everything depended upon the outcome of a conference between Mr. Burleson and a committee appointed at the American Federation of Labor meeting at Atlantic City. The committee will meet the Postmaster General armed with authority to demand that the telegraphers be accorded the right to bargain collectively.

The usual force of pickets were patrolling the Western Union offices at 24 Walker Street and the Postal's headquarters at 253 Broadway yesterday. The pickets, principally girls, contented themselves with marching up and down. Leaders among the strikers said that there had been no let-up in the efforts to induce allied workers to cast their lot in with the strikers.

The members of the Eastern Brokers' Division of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union were scheduled yesterday to meet the Board of Governors of the New York Stock Exchange for further light on steps to end the strike. The financial wiremen, it was said, had no intention of giving more than financial support to the commercial keymen. It was impossible to ascertain at the broker men's headquarters, 44 Broad Street, the outcome of their negotiations.

GERMANY IS MAKING STEEL.

Germany has begun taking some steel business in neutral markets, according to the Iron Age, at prices which English manufacturers cannot consider. Belgian producers also are reported to be offering bars, plates and shapes at Antwerp at prices below British competitors. The amounts in either case are not large. Within two months, it is asserted, Luxemburg will have its blast furnaces in full operation, with the marketing channel through Antwerp. Italy is said to be looking forward to getting large quantities of scrap from France, Germany and Austria, and also seeks Westphalian coke. The American product is not apparently regarded even as favorably as English coke. For the present, American manufacturers are able to sell pig iron at $8.45 a ton below the British product.

Attention is called to the course of prices in England. Rails, it is said, are quoted at $73.60 a ton, as compared with $45 in this country. Wages have been increased 12½ per cent., and the mill operatives are demanding the six-hour day.

In regard to domestic conditions, the publication says:

"Production is now at about 60 per cent. of ingot capacity, and June's output will probably be fully 10 per cent. more than May's. The greater activity in pipe, wire, and sheets is offset by the still relatively small demand for bars, plates, and shapes. Orders are coming in faster than the shipment rate, and some accumulation of bookings is the tangible evidence of the continued improvement.

"The old law of supply and demand is receiving some recognition. Buying of wire and wire products and of iron and steel pipe remains sufficiently vigorous, so that talk persists of an early advance. It happens, however, that the strong hands among producers are opposed to a price change, at least for several months, but one mill demands $2 more a ton on wire and 25 cents more a keg on nails for export.

"Structural steel lettings continue to grow, and the East is beginning to get the pace of the Central West. The June total will exceed the figures for May, which at 88,000 tons were double the business taken in April.

"Pig iron activity is mainly in foundry and malleable grades. Sales of 7,000 and 8,000 ton lots are reported from Cleveland. Inquiry which is not considered has come for contracts for the first half of next year.

"A manufacturer in the Chicago district was unable to consider an inquiry for 2,000,000 bolts from an automobile builder because prompt delivery could not be made.

"Unless shipbuilding and locomotive and car building soon show considerable expansion there will undoubtedly be idle plate capacity. Cuba has bought 500 and Chile is in the market for 600 cars.

"Large sales of coke for last-half delivery have been made in the Pittsburgh district, and prices are stiffer, with foundry coke 25 cents higher."

WARNS AUSTRALIAN LABOR.

Acting Premier Says Disputes Must Be Settled Peaceably.

MELBOURNE, Australia, June 25.—Outlining the political and industrial situation of the Commonwealth, Acting Prime Minister Watt in a public address declared that the Government will stand for the settlement of labor disputes by law and order under all circumstances, rather than by the use of brute force," adding: "The people have expressed their will by the laws of the country and they will not allow any force, however arrogant or powerful, to usurp the functions of the Government or to challenge the forces of the Government."

After reviewing the break which occurred in the Labor Party over the first conscription issue and the resulting union of the forces of the National Labor Party, led by William M. Hughes, the present Premier, and the more numerous Liberal Party, Mr. Watt said:

"The only safety for the country rests in the reaffirmation of this union, so that the two may be a national party, in fact, as well as in name."

$18,000,000 Serial 6 Per Cent. Issue Is Taken by Four Banks.

The Union Trust Company and the Mellon National Bank, both of Pittsburgh, and the Guaranty Trust Company and the Bankers Trust Company of New York have purchased an issue of $18,000,000 serial 6 per cent. gold notes of the Gulf Oil Corporation. It is believed that a public offering will be made shortly.

The Gulf Oil Corporation was organized twelve years ago and is engaged in producing, refining, transporting, and distributing petroleum and its products. The new notes, it is said, constitute the only indebtedness of the company and its subsidiaries. Its properties are valued by the company at more than $150,000,000, and its earnings for the last three years have averaged $12,000,000, while they have not been below $8,000,000 for any single year in the last eight, after all charges, depreciation, and taxes have been deducted.

FINANCIAL NOTICES.

We are advised by cable that, subject to the approval by the shareholders of the Royal Dutch Company, at a general meeting to be held in Holland on June 30, 1919, the holders of outstanding Ordinary Shares are offered the right to subscribe at par, plus stamp tax in Holland, to one share of new Ordinary Stock for each four shares of stock held. The new stock to be subscribed for will be entitled to the dividends for the fiscal year of 1919 (payable in 1920). We are further advised that the final dividend for 1918 has been fixed at 25% and that the date for the payment of this dividend (on the old stock) will be the same as the date for the payment of the subscription in Holland on the new stock offered. This date will probably be July 16, 1919.

In view of the fact that subscription applications must be filed in Holland between June 16 and July 4, 1919, and in order to protect the rights of holders of "New York Shares" and of "American Shares" we have taken steps to file application to subscribe to the new stock to which all of the stock deposited with us under the Agreements of September 10, 1918, (covering "New York Shares,") and December 22, 1916, (covering "American Shares,") is entitled.

Transferable warrants will be issued to the holders of "New York Shares" of record July 7, 1919, as soon thereafter as practicable, entitling them to subscribe to new "New York Shares" at the rate of one "New York Share" for each four "New York Shares" held on the record date.

Subscription payments must be made at the office of the undersigned at 37 Wall Street, New York City, on or before the close of business July 22, 1919.

The amount per share to be paid will be fixed at the time of issuing the subscription warrants. This payment will include the subscription price plus taxes and expenses and will be approximately the same as the amount to be paid by the subscribers to "New York Shares," but will not include any charges which may subsequently be made by our correspondents for delivery of the Subshares upon the surrender of the Order in Holland.

This dividend will be paid to holders of "New York Shares" and of "American Shares" of record July 7, 1919, as soon after July 22, 1919, as practicable. The amount of this dividend will be announced after its payment in Holland. Dividend checks will be mailed only when income tax ownership certificates properly filled out have been filed with the undersigned.

Special Attention Is Called to the Following:

2. No "New York Shares" in exchange for new Ordinary Dutch Stock will be issued and no Orders on Holland for Sub-shares will be issued until we are advised that the Royal Assent has been obtained to the alteration of the statutes in connection with the proposed stock increase and the Royal Dutch Company reserves the right to return subscription payments in case of failure to obtain Royal Assent. In this event, upon surrender of subscription warrants, we will return to the subscriber the amount paid less the proportionate amount of our expenses actually incurred in this matter.
3. Fractional scrip certificates will be issued for all fractional interests.

THE EQUITABLE TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK,

HENRY

PREDICTS BREAKUP OF SURFACE LINES

Judge Mayer Says Roads Must Go Back to Owners if Rentals Are Defaulted.

BURR FILES A PROTEST

The first definite indication that the system of surface roads operated by the New York Railways Company would be broken up came yesterday, when Federal Judge Mayer announced, after a long discussion by lawyers representing various interests, that if the company could not pay its rentals for the Eighth and Ninth Avenue lines, they would be returned to their owners. That the company cannot pay the rentals and interest on bonds due July 1, and have capital enough left to carry on the business, was announced by Job E. Hedges, the receiver, in an application asking the court for instructions.

Morgan J. O'Brien, representing the Eighth and Ninth Avenue lines, complained of the default in rental payments, and asked that the lines be turned back. The owners, he said, would accept the rentals if they were offered, but as the amount grows larger each day, with the prospects of payment remaining stationary, he thought the owners should have their properties. An effort should be made to operate them at a profit.

Under the lease to the Railways Company a rental of $215,000 a year was to be paid for the Eighth Avenue line. This, with other costs, would bring the annual payments up to $265,675.37, or, according to the estimate of Corporation Counsel Burr, the payments were to be equivalent to 26½ per cent. on a capitalization of $1,000,000. The rental of the Ninth Avenue line is $64,000 a year, which, with costs, totals $98,670.35, or, according to Mr. Burr, enough to pay a dividend of 12.33 per cent. on a capitalization of $800,000. Rent on the lines is due for the first quarter of the year.

To Take Up Transfer Charges.

Mr. Burr objected strongly to the severance of the lines. He said the system should be retained, that the public might receive the benefit of transfers. Mr. O'Brien insisted that the receiver be directed to pay the rent or return the lines. Mr. Burr said there were franchise obligations to be observed and that the Public Service Commission controls the property. He was sure there could be no severance of the system and no abrogation of the existing method of universal transfers without the consent of the commission. He thought the receiver should have at least six months in which to try to bring order and profit out of the situation.

During the discussion reference was made to a letter dated June 16, received by Mr. Hedges from Public Service Commissioner Lewis Nixon, in which Mr. Nixon referred to the application of the Railways Company for authority to charge for transfers. The letter said the application was heard while war was in progress, and that now, if the company desired it, hearings would be held and speedy action taken. A reply to this letter, it was announced, would be sent to Mr. Nixon today.

It was said that if Mr. Nixon exercised his power and gave the company the right to charge 2 or 3 cents for transfers at about 80 of the 113 transfer points, the revenues of the company would increase from $700,000 to $900,000 a year.

Mr. Burr argued that it was the duty of the receiver to keep the lines together, and it was pointed out that if they were separated the charge for each ride would be 5 cents. It was also indicated by those opposed to the separation that a unified system could be operated more cheaply because the overhead charges would be much less.

In reply to a question by Judge Mayer, Mr. O'Brien said he thought there would not be much difficulty in arranging for transfers between the Eighth and Ninth Avenue lines and several crosstown lines. Judge Mayer told him that if he would submit a plan by July 8 showing that the interests of the public would be safeguarded he would instruct the receiver to turn over the lines.

No Right to Run Property at Loss.

"The time has come," Judge Mayer said, "when we must have more action and less talk. The Court wishes to keep the system intact, but it has no right to destroy property. The New York Railways Company is running at a deficit every day. There is no doubt about that. Public Service Commissioner Nixon has indicated that he will take up the matter of transfers, and I presume he will give an answer at an early date. I believe the solution of the transfer problem will mean the solving of the problems we have been considering.

"As for the Eighth and Ninth Avenue lines, we know we cannot pay the rentals, and we have no right to keep the property running at a loss. The owners promise to run the cars in a way that will serve the public if we return them. The responsibility of breaking up the property cannot be charged to the Court, which is not going to take money out of the pockets of the owners of the lines. If Judge O'Brien will present to me by noon on July 8 a satisfactory plan of operation I will instruct the receiver to return the lines."

Receiver Hedges also asked for instructions as to what action he should take regarding the payment of interest due July 1 on the first real estate and refunding mortgage 4 per cent. bonds, which amounts to $361,225.80, and the interest on the 5 per cent. underlying bonds, as well as those of the leased lines. He said the system had been operating cars over the Williamsburg Bridge since Sept. 1, 1915, on temporary permits, and that during the six months ended March 31 last it had fallen short $1,210,611.74 of earning the interest on its bonds.

Mr. Hedges said that by discontinuing the operation of cars over the bridge and sending them only to the bridge entrance a saving, including rentals, &c., of $144,504 a year would be effected. Bronson Winthrop, counsel for the receiver, estimated the saving at $259,000 a year.

Burr Makes Protest.

Mr. Burr vigorously objected to stopping car traffic over the bridge. He said 37,000 persons a day cross the bridge in the cars, and that the application to cut off the service had been made without the receiver trying to make any arrangement with the city. He asked for a delay of two weeks before any definite action is taken. Godfrey Goldmark, chief counsel for the Public Service Commission, also objected to stopping the cars. This subject was also adjourned until July 8.

Mr. Whithrop, by aid of a table of expenditures, showed that the Railways company was running at a loss, and that if the interest on the 4 per cent. bonds was paid there would be a deficit for the nine months ended March 31 last of $1,352,078.63.

Joseph Cotton, in behalf of a committee of the first mortgage bondholders, who have $18,000,000 of the bonds, said he represented 1,600 bondholders, each owning less than $10,000 of bonds. Their holdings, he said, represented their chief source of income. He said that a default in payment of interest would make it necessary to begin foreclosure proceedings. Asked by Judge Mayer if he would foreclose if the interest was paid, he replied that if offered the payment it would be accepted and marked "on account." Judge Mayer said:

"It seems inadvisable to instruct the receiver to pay this interest under the circumstances since nothing will be gained. There is no course left to the Court but to instruct the receiver not to pay it."

MRS. CARHART'S ESTATE.

$1,272,007 Goes to Son of Testatrix —$10,000 to an Employe.

TUXEDO, June 25.—An appraisal of the estate of Mrs. Marion B. Carhart of New York City and Tuxedo, just completed by Transfer Tax Appraiser Joseph M. Wilkin of Orange County and made public today, places its gross value at $3,160,071.06. The estate must pay an inheritance tax of $101,993.73 to the State of New York.

Mrs. Carhart died Oct. 1, 1917, and the will was filed with Surrogate J. B. Swezey. It leaves $1,272,007 to the testatrix's son, A. S. Carhart, and a like amount to her daughter, Marion H. Carhart. The sum of $100,000 is left to Mrs. Marion Brookman, mother of the testatrix; $10,000 to William T. Reynolds, a faithful employe of the Carhart estate, and $5,000 to her nephew, John Van Neck.

Besides the transfer tax in this State, Mrs. Carhart's estate must pay taxes in other States on the transfer of securities there, and an inheritance tax to the Federal Government. Mrs. Marion P. Brookman, mother of Mrs. Carhart, is executrix of the estate.

Mrs. Carhart's real estate, located in New York City and Tuxedo, has been appraised at $467,763. The personal estate is valued at $2,692,807. While the gross estate is appraised at $3,160,071.06, deductions for funeral and testamentary expenses and debts allowed by the appraiser total $501,056, leaving the value of the net estate $2,659,014.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Despite the 15 per cent. call money rate, which prevailed late in the day and caused a considerable final hour liquidation on the Consolidated Stock Exchange yesterday, numerous of the copper, steel, and marine issues ended the session with prices well above those of Tuesday night. International Mercantile Marine common was in demand throughout the day, gaining 4⅝, to 51⅞, and closing near the top, while Marine preferred netted an advance of 1¾, to 117⅜, and American International Corporation 1⅝ from its early low to 107⅞. The steel properties held steady, United States Steel common moving up 1⅛ from the early low. International Nickel advanced 2 points to a new high level, while United States Rubber, after selling at 128, fell back to 125⅞, and finished at 127.

TRY FOR JUNIOR ACCOUNTANCY
AND FOR SENIOR ACCOUNTANT,
OCTOBER, 1920.

October 15 to November 15 is the period during which one-fourth of the year's business changes, readjustments, and building up of staffs are made.

If you have a faculty for figures and the crude stuff for the making of an accountant, there is just about time between now and October 15th this year for you, thru suitable intensive training—during your spare hours at home—to qualify for a Junior Accountancy position that will pay at least $35 a week.

And ample time to qualify before October, 1920, for position of Senior Accountant, Auditor, or Income Tax Expert, at a salary of at least $75 a week—with possibilities of more than twice that amount.

It is only a question of raw ability and industry, a resolute purpose to devote five spare home hours a week to intensive training in accordance with the most successful business-training system ever devised, under the tutelage of a corps of eminent Certified Public Accountants who are renowned as practical teachers.

We have given hundreds of ambitious, earnest men and women the start that has put them over the top, and have their records to point to with just pride. We can do as much for you if you are made of the right stuff. It is worth your while to investigate.

Arriving at Historic Quebec

Every hour of this wonderful all-water journey has its revelation of beauty and historic interest—Niagara, the Sublime, Toronto—"The Queen City of Canada," the Venetian-like Thousand Islands, the thrilling descent of the marvelous rapids, the Canadian Metropolis Montreal, the miracle-working shrine of St. Anne de Beaupré—an hour from Quebec, the stupendous Capes "Trinity" and "Eternity"—higher than Gibraltar—are all on this route.

PREVENT HOLDUP OF THEODORE ROBINSON

BREAKS JEWELRY WINDOW

The daily chronicle of crime in this city contained yesterday two bold attempts at robbery. One was a hold-up that had for its intended victim former State Senator Theodore Douglas Robinson, a real estate broker, and nephew of the late Colonel Roosevelt. In the other attempt, one or more men, in daylight, smashed the plate glass window of the jewelry store of Casperfield & Cleveland, in the Casino Building, at Broadway and Thirty-ninth Street. In the window were jewels said to have been worth $20,000, which were not taken. After the attempt one man was arrested. He gave his name as Andrew Leary, a laborer, of 517 Eighth Avenue. The police say he confessed breaking the window, but said he had done it to be arrested, and not to rob. Domestic differences, he is alleged to have said, were responsible for his yearning for a cell. One of the proprietors of the store was hit by glass, and Leary was also charged with felonious assault.

The attempt to rob Mr. Robinson was made Tuesday night, but it did not become known publicly until Mr. Robinson appeared yesterday in the Yorkville Court against three young men accused of attempted robbery. The prisoners were Harold Vogel, 17 years old, of 429 East Eighty-third Street; Arthur Plum, 23, 514 East Eighty-first Street, and Edward Hensbry, 18, of 317 East Eighty-first Street.

Mr. Robinson was approaching his home at 750 Park Avenue, when three men stopped him with the order that he put up his hands. One of them pushed a revolver against his body. A pedestrian saw them and began to cry for help. Police Lieutenants Frank Brady and Patrick McCarthy, who were standing at Seventy-first Street and Park Avenue, ran toward the group, whereupon the highwaymen fled.

Two of the prisoners were caught after a short chase; Plum by Policeman James Monohan of the East Sixty-seventh Street Station and Hensbry by Policeman Leopold Salomon. The arrest attracted a crowd, and Lieutenant Brady, while making his way through it, saw Vogel, who was breathing heavily, as though he had been running. He put his hand over the boy's heart and found it was throbbing.

"You seem to have been running," he said, as he ran his hand over the boy's pockets. "And no wonder," he added, as he took a revolver from his pocket. Vogel was identified by Mr. Robinson as the man who had ordered him to throw up his hands and had threatened to shoot if he did not obey. All three were placed under $3,000 bail each by Magistrate Sims to await the action of the Grand Jury.

STOCK FRAUD CASE UP TO GRAND JURY

H. C. Loup of Accused Concern to Assist Prosecution on Sixty Complaints.

Several more of the customers who had lost $100 to $12,000 in their trading with the promoting firm of H. C. Loup & Co., at 50 Broad Street, told the details of their losses at the District Attorney's office, yesterday, making a total of sixty complaints thus far against the concern. Assistant District Attorney John T. Dooling said the evidence had been prepared to present to the Grand Jury today.

Miss Margaret McCabe, a public school teacher, of 545 West 152nd Street, who lost $12,000, will be one of the chief witnesses, he said.

Herbert C. Loup, the nominal head of the firm, according to District Attorney Swann, will assist the prosecution.

"Loup will be a material witness," Dooling announced. "We expect an arrest soon, and pending that we shall place the case before the Grand Jury. There appears to be little or nothing in the way of assets. We learned today that on Saturday, when Frank Taylor, the active manager, and Joseph Kesley, a partner, disappeared, a customer's Liberty Bond for $1,000 was converted into cash. A broker tells us that on the same day he loaned the concern $3,000. The money of the customers seems to have gone into a speculative pool, which figured on the wrong side of the market."

After Herbert Loup had told District Attorney Swann that he had been the nominal head only of H. C. Loup & Co., allowing the managers to use his name, and that he knew little about the affairs of the concern, the District Attorney started an inquiry to determine if there are other similar concerns operating in the financial district by using "dummy" heads and names. Mr. Swann directed Dooling and E. P. Kilroe of the Bureau of Commercial Frauds to go thoroughly into this feature of the investigation.

Mr. Dooling said that charges of grand larceny, "bucketing," and probably a charge of forgery would be made in the presentment of the evidence to the Grand Jury.

"One of the out-of-town claims against the firm which I shall try to get before the jury will include the loss of $123,000 by Joseph Kaye, a merchant of Emporium, Penn.," asserted Dooling. "From certain witnesses and from an examination of the books of the firm I find that Mrs. E. J. Mounts of Smithmill, Penn., has lost at least $100,000. Her total transactions reach approximately $725,000. She dealt in the best securities, but without her knowledge her orders for stocks were bucketed."

James I. Cramer, 35 years old, who said he lived at the Pennsylvania Hotel, pleaded guilty before Judge Wadhams in General Sessions yesterday to a charge of larceny growing out of a stock deal. He was remanded for sentence. Cramer, who is the first of the stock promoters to plead guilty since the District Attorney began his investigation, was accused by Mrs. Ada Newberger of 68 East 86d Street, of getting $600 for shares in the Record Oil & Refining Company, which, the complainant said, were never delivered.

United States Commissioner Hitchcock held W. H. Cunningham of 505 Fifth Avenue in $2,000 bail yesterday on a charge of alleged conspiracy to defraud investors by use of the mails. It was said that removal proceedings would be brought to have Cunningham taken to Louisville, Ky., where he is under indictment with several others for the crime charged.

According to the indictment, Cunningham and the others are charged with conspiracy to defraud Drs. James D. Jenkins and A. A. Marrett and others, by inducing them by false and fraudulent representations made in letters to purchase shares of oil stocks.

JOHN HOLDEN, in 1915, planned to build a bungalow. The contractor said it would cost $2500. But John postponed the building of his home—because the Government needed materials and labor.

The other day he took the same plans to the same contractor. "It will cost you $4,000 now," said the contractor.

"Somebody is gouging me," said Mr. Holden.

We placed the case with a Washington official who with a score of other experts, has been investigating rising costs in a hundred commodities.

The official went to the bottom of it. The story he tells in this month's NATION'S BUSINESS is as entertaining as a detective yarn—and leaves you with something to apply in your own business day's work.

Little Facts of Big Value

DO you know that Canada is lifting her import restrictions? The only commodities for which individual licenses are now required are listed in a six-line paragraph—one of over 100 nuggets of information in "Little Stories of the Nation's Business" in the July issue. Every month the business news of the country is assembled, reviewed and boiled down to the bone for this department. Just one paragraph may mean volumes—and perhaps fortunes—to you. Get all this information at a glance. You need it in your business.

The Romance of Trade Routes

UNDER the English Channel, across Europe, through a submarine-tunnel under Gibralter, across the African desert—and the train from London stands puffing at a dock 1963 nautical miles nearer South America than New York is to the same point. A British plan for bringing European trade closer to South America, as gripping as the wildest midsummer fiction, is described in the July issue.

All in the July number.

REMEMBER this: You have a representative in Washington. THE NATION'S BUSINESS is more than the official publication of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. It is your personal representative, on the job in your interest, sifting and interpreting business tendencies so that you may apply them to your individual business.
